TRAFFIC CONGESTION in up-Island ports mounts daily as freighters are diverted from strike-bound American ports on the west coast. Seen from the air, the waters off Ladysmith are the setting for a nine-ship armada, each lost day costing the ships' owners thousands of dollars. Conditions are getting more critical in the port of Vancouver as more and more shipping is diverted there, with 56 ships clogging up the berths and approaches today. No settlement of the longshoremen's strike, which began July 1, is yet in sight. (John Robertson Photo)

Sunro to Start Hiring For Quick Production

Sunro mine, near Jordan River will begin hiring about 120 men immediately and will be in production in about three months, one of the developers said today.

Pollution control standards set out in the permit the province has just issued are "rather stringent but not prohibitive," E. C. Dobell, vice-president of Crownex International, said from Vancouver today.

The mine will meet them and work is going ahead immediately, he added. Crownex is one of the firms backing Dison Development Ltd. which is reactivating the old copper mine.

NO PROBLEM

Dobell said there will be no problem rapidly completing the necessary preliminaries the Pollution Control Branch is insisting upon before production starts.

One of these is extending about 1,500 feet into Juan de Fuca Strait the pipe which will discharge up to a million gallons of mine tailings a day. That's the distance the company will have to carry it to meet the permit's requirement that tailings be discharged at a minimum depth of 40 feet.

Among numerous other controls set by pollution control director William Venables:

- The company must pay for before-and-after studies of sea life in the vicinity of the discharge. (Venables has the power to tighten controls at any time should monitoring show the need).
- Traces of heavy metals in the tailings must not total more than one part per million and cyanide traces must not be higher than one part in 10 million. Cyanide is sometimes used in the extraction process.
- Before starting production Dison must build an emergency spill basin (in case the tailings discharge system breaks down) and it must have an automatic alarm system.

DIFFERENT LOCATION

The tailings pipe is also to be located about 2,000 feet west of where the company intended to have it meet the water. While this means it will be only 3,000 feet east of the Jordan River Mouth, it also means the pipe will enter the water from a promontory and reach further into the strait.

Jordan River residents, commercial fishermen, conservationists and two government departments had earlier opposed granting the permit, arguing mine tailings in years past have fouled beaches and could adversely affect salmon migration and recreation quality.

Venables initially rejected Dison's application but the company appealed to the Pollution Control Board.

BULLETIN

Heat Wave Ending, Weatherman Says

The heat wave that has broken temperature records for several days in British Columbia is expected to subside Thursday in the Victoria area.

Weatherman Allan McQuarrie said today a low pressure area building in the lower B.C. Interior because of the extreme heat there will be drawing air in through Juan de Fuca Strait, bringing temperatures in the mid 70s and high 60s Thursday.

This may be the end of what is probably the hottest early August on record, McQuarrie said.

Despite the relatively cooler temperatures, the sky is expected to remain clear and sunny, he said.

The change in weather may also bring some fog patches into the Victoria area.

Ex-Victorian Named To Cabinet Post

Alastair Gillespie, a Victoria-born Member of Parliament, has been named Canada's first minister of science and technology.

The appointment was announced today as part of a slight cabinet shuffle by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Robert Stanbury, a minister without portfolio, has become the new communications minister and a Toronto MP, Martin O'Connell, will replace Stanbury.

ELECTED 1968

His parents are the F. P. Gillespies of 1326 Manor Road, and his brothers and sisters also live in Victoria.

Gillespie attended Brentwood College and was a Rhodes Scholar in 1946. He came to the Commons with a wide background in business and international affairs. He has been an active member of several Commons committees.

Stanbury, 41, and a minister without portfolio since 1969, will replace Eric Kierans who resigned from the cabinet in April over the government's economic policies.

Lindsay Joins Democrats . . . On Way to President?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor John Lindsay quit the Republican party today and became a Democrat, paving the way for his possible bid for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

Many elements in the Democratic party look to Lindsay as a charismatic personality who would make the strongest challenge to President Nixon in the 1972 elections. Lindsay has become known as the spokesman for the big cities in the U.S. and is familiar with such problems as crime, narcotics addiction and housing in a metropolitan area containing more than eight million people.

Lindsay has been a Republican throughout his political career. But he lost the Republican primary in his bid for a second term in the 1969 mayoral election and has strayed far from the Nixon administration line in GOP politics.

In what was described as a great comeback, Lindsay won re-election in 1969, running as an independent with the endorsement of the Liberal party and strong support from Democratic reform elements in New York.

Belfast Toll Rises to 21

Times News Services

BELFAST — Northern Ireland exploded today in a fourth day of violence that pushed the death toll to at least 21 and threatened this city with economic strangulation.

British troops battled snipers and called in 600 more British marines to try to avert a civil war.

Meanwhile, hundreds more refugees fled into the Irish Republic to the south to escape the violence and the Dublin government put its 6,500 police on alert.

Three Civilians Killed

Three civilians, one of them a sniper, were killed today in Belfast where the British troops trying to tear down the street barricades were attacked by roof-top snipers and hostile crowds.

Normal life in the Roman Catholic areas was at a standstill and economic life in the city was slowly grinding to a halt. Delivery trucks could not get through to many areas and food and milk was running short.

Workers were unable to move in the cluttered streets and many stores were closed.

More than 100 persons have been wounded and millions of dollars worth of damage has been done since riots started Monday in a wake of an Ulster government proclamation of a law permitting internment without trial.

Tuesday night mobs of Protestants and Roman Catholics battled each other. Rival factions of the outlawed Irish Republican Army clashed. Troops and police fought all of them in an attempt to restore order.

IRA Rivals Fight Too

Armed IRA men took over a bakery two blocks from Belfast city hall and held it until troops seized it at dawn. Troops said they killed one IRA man, wounded another and captured six.

The rebels appeared to be re-enacting Dublin's 1916 uprising when Eamon de Valera, now president of the Irish Republic, led a rebel detachment in the seizure of Bolands Mills, a flour mill and bakery.

Insurgents fought at least one gun battle among themselves while troops stood by, barred from action by street barriers. Snipers from the two groups, believed to be rivals within the IRA, exchanged more than 100 rounds.

In the midst of the violence, police continued questioning persons arrested in massive raids earlier. An informed source said 230 persons have been detained after questioning and are held in Crumlin Road prison and on a former submarine depot ship, HMS Maintone, in Belfast harbor.

This source said Prime Minister Brian Faulkner would sign internment orders against the majority of the detainees.

In Dublin, an army spokesman said more than 2,000 Catholic refugees had fled across the border from the North and were housed in five camps opened by the Republic.

Protestant refugees from the fighting flew to England or took shelter with friends or in empty houses in quieter parts of Belfast.

DEMANDS MEETING

Hillery was reported to have put on record his government's opposition to the internment policy. Political sources also speculated that Hillery had demanded a meeting between the leaders of Britain, his country and the Northern Ireland regime.

Prime Minister Edward Heath is leading the British yacht team in the Fastnet Cup Races. Heath was expected to reach shore today and return to London Thursday.

Northern Ireland, predominantly Protestant, is part of the United Kingdom. The IRA wants it joined with the independent Irish Republic to the south which is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic. The Northern Ireland violence arises out of protests by Roman Catholics about alleged discrimination in jobs and housing by the Protest-

CAMPBELL FACING LAWSUIT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two members of the Gastown Merchants Association announced today plans to launch a lawsuit against Mayor Tom Campbell and the city police "for trying to ruin Gastown," a refurbished area of boutiques and restaurants.

Ed Hicks and Barry Mills, co-owners of the Gastown Wax Museum, said they would start the suit and a decision would be made later today on whether other merchants would join in. The suit could be for about $20 million in lost business and damage to reputation if other members of the association joined in.

The merchants said the mayor's statements would keep potential customers away and incite trouble.

Island Fire Unchecked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sizzling dry weather continued to make work difficult for more than 2,500 men battling some 550 forest fires in B.C., many of them burning out of control.

About 20 fires were burning in the Vancouver district and one small one was out of control in Campbell River area. Another blaze was reported over 150 acres near Pemberton and a third fire was held to 100 acres 35 miles east of Hope in Manning Provincial Park.

More than half the fires in the province — 324 — were burning in the Kamloops and Nelson forest districts in southern and southeastern B.C. Dense smoke in some areas kept water bombers and spotting planes grounded.

NEWS BRIEFS

'Save Rahman'

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has appealed to 23 government heads to use their influence to save the life of the East Pakistani leader, Sheik Mujibur Rahman.

Improvement Sought

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The director of the provincial pollution control board, W. N. Venables, has ordered Finning Tractor to improve its effluent and discharge facilities to prevent a recurrence of an oil spill into the South Thompson River.

More Talks Urged

NICOSIA (Reuter) — Turkish Cypriots want intercommunal talks to continue for a settlement of the eight-year-old split between Greeks and Turks on Cyprus, a Turkish Cypriot spokesman said today.

School Construction Projects Held Up

The provincial education department is holding up about $3 or $4 million in school construction projects to avoid overloading the construction industry, deputy minister Joe Phillipson said today.

"There is no 'freeze'. . . no overall order that nothing should go forward," Phillipson said in denying radio reports of a freeze on all contracts.

He said the construction industry is "plugged" with work in most parts of the province and suggestions have been made to the department both from people in the industry and from school boards to try to level off the workload.

Phillipson said he is "most hopeful" that the constuction peak will ease in the next month or two.

One of the effects of building at the peak is higher costs, he said. The delay in putting out the tenders is simply "common sense," he said.

About $8 million in work is currently out to tender and isn't affected by the new policy, he said. None of the delayed work was expected to be ready for the current school term, he said.

Phillipson said that most of the shift classes in the province in September will be the result of burn-outs. The school construction program this year was "extra large," Phillipson said, adding that the delayed projects account for only a small proportion of the total.

In the Greater Victoria school district a spokesman said today that it's not known for certain if any projects will be affected.

CAMPFIRE PERMITS NOW SUSPENDED

Suspension of campfire permits imposed today throughout the Vancouver forest district does not include the use of approved fireplaces in developed provincial park campgrounds, a B.C. Forest Service official said.

Provincial picnic grounds are also excluded unless regulations to the contrary are posted.

But open fires of any kind are illegal although portable campstoves are acceptable, he said.

Restricted industrial closure has also been ordered by the forest service as the fire hazard remains extremely high.

The restrictions are designed to have workmen out of the woods before the hottest part of the day. All industrial operations in the forests must stop by 1 p.m.

Meanwhile a strong ridge of high pressure remains over the south coastal region and no precipitation is forecast for at least the next five days.

Wallace Asks Bennett To Discuss Future

Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace has written to Premier W. A. C. Bennett requesting a meeting to discuss the MLA's political future.

Wallace, elected as a Social Credit candidate in the August, 1969, provincial election, said Monday he hasn't yet had a reply from Bennett's office.

The MLA said 10 days ago he is seriously considering leaving the party — and possibly politics entirely — following recent government moves to increase its control of medical practice.

Wallace wrote the letter to Bennett before returning to Victoria after a week's vacation in the Kelowna area.

BUT WILL PROTECT TAIWAN

Japan Will Back U.S. on Peking

Japan will strongly support the U.S. position on Communist China's admission to the United Nations, the speaker of the Japanese house of representatives said today.

Naka Funada, here for an 11-day visit as guest of the B.C. and federal governments, said his country is negotiating with Washington on terms for seating China at the UN.

Funada said the talks were concerned primarily with ensuring that the interests of the Nationalist Chinese on Taiwan were protected.

He discounted Red China's concern, expresed frequently by Mao and Premier Chou En-Lai, over what they call the rise of Japanese militarism and ambitious in Taiwan and Korea.

"Absolutely not," Funada said. "We are a nation of peaceful constitution. We want to co-exist with friendly relations."

NO DECISION

He said his government had come to no offical decision on the China question, but would continue negotiations with the U.S. with the aim of establishing relations if this can be done without damage to Taiwan's position.

One of Japan's most distinguished parliamentarians, Funada is a member of the ruling Liberal Democratic party, which holds a strong 62 per cent of the lower house seats.

"They make a great deal of noise, but the noise is not in proportion to the support which they have among the people," he said.

On Tuesday night Funada met William Murray, speaker of the B.C. legislature, in what Murray called a friendly workshop on mutual parliamentary interests.

The Japanese party of 12 planned a tour of the Crofton kraft mill today before heading for Vancouver, Kelowna, Vernon and the Okanagan. They arrive in Ottawa Aug. 18 for talks with House of Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Agriculture Stays

CALGARY (CP) — The agricultural section of the Calgary Stampede won't be dropped from the mid-summer show, Ed O'Connor, president of the Exhibition and Stampede Board, said Tuesday.

The idea of segregating agriculture never reached the executive board for discussion, he said, but future plans have called for an expansion of agricultural facilities.

When the 10-day Stampede ended in July, Agriculture Manager John Dean said agriculture exhibits — the basis for the stampede when it originated in 1908 — soon may be dropped.

ant-dominated Ulster government.

During Tuesday night's fighting, British soldiers sealed off the Falls Road, Ballymurphy, Ardoyne and Old Park Road areas of Belfast as those Catholic districts crackled to the sound of gunfire under the flickering light of burning buildings.

Mobs of Protestants and Catholics tried to get at each other across Crumlin Road Tuesday night, but troops drove a wedge between them. As the mobs retreated, the soldiers came under sustained sniper fire. The troops flattened themselves on the sidewalk and poured bullets into the surrounding rooftops, which were lit by flares.

Police reported a civilian died in a truck overturned during another clash between Protestants and Catholics hurling rocks and bottles. A youth lost a leg.

FIRE 'VICIOUS'

As Belfast's night fell streets deserted except for combatants. Troops came under "really vicious, highly controlled" fire, the army said.

Explosions damaged a movie theatre and a garage. A bank blazed, and several homes were in flames, stripped of valuables as their occupants fled.

More violence hit Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city, and Newry, its third. A sniper killed a soldier in Derry, and two other soldiers were wounded there.

A boy of 11 and another of 14 were seen placing a package outside an army recruiting office in Londonderry. Seconds later a powerful explosion wrecked the building and hurled a car 30 yards across the street.

Four other explosions shattered the night air in less than seven minutes. One hundred rioters assaulted troops with rocks, flaming gasoline bombs and gelignite nail bombs.

At Newry, firemen who tried to tackle the work of arsonists found their hoses severed by rioters with axes and knives.

Doctors, Minister Talking

The meetings began Tuesday morning at the medical services commission office on Government Street. Black is chairman of a government committee which is dealing with a committee representing B.C. doctors.

Higher Costs, More Benefits

OTTAWA (CP) — A cost-of-living formula will mean both higher contribution and higher benefit payments under the Canada Pension Plan and other federal legislation in 1972, it was announced Tuesday.

Maximum contributions by employers and employees under the Canada Pension Plan will go to $88.20 a year from $86.40 now being paid. Self-employed persons will be required to contribute $176.40 in 1972, compared with $172.80 in 1971.

More than 300,000 retirement, survivors' and disability benefits will be increased in January. Retirement pensions will be based on earnings of up to $5,500 in 1972 compared with $5,400 in 1971.

Benefits for orphans and children of disabled contributors, and the basic flat-rate pensions for widows, disabled widowers and disabled contributors will increase to $27.60 a month from $27.06.

The maximum death benefit will be $550 for deaths occurring in 1972, compared with the 1971 maximum of $540.

The maximum combined old age security pension and guaranteed income supplement for a single person, or a married person, or a married person whose spouse is not also a pensioner, will go up in April to $137.70 from $135 now being paid.

For a married person whose spouse is also a pensioner, the maximum will be $130.05 a month each, compared with $127.50.

All increases are based on a formula by which pension contributions and benefits are index rises by two per cent or increased by two per cent when the consumer price more in the year ending six months before the start of the new calendar year.

Judgment on Safeway Litter Case Reserved After 'Legal Writhing'

Ostler's decision came at the end of what he termed much "legalistic writhing" by both the Crown and the defence over the purchase of four tins of soft drinks at a Safeway store last June 18.

The company had earlier pleaded not guilty to contravening the provincial Litter Act by failing to give Craig Butler, 22, of 175 Robertson, a refund on four tins he bought at the store at 1950 Foul Bay Road.

The Litter Act says any retailer selling soft drinks must refund the containers at two cents per tin for the brands they sell.

Butler testified Tuesday that he bought the tins in the afternoon of June 18 and returned to the store about 8:15 p.m. to get a refund on the empty tins.

He said he went to one of the check-out girls who told him refunds were not given at the store. She told him he could get a refund at one of several bottle depots downtown.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said the offence was committed when the refund was refused.

He said the customer bought the tins believing the store would give him a refund when he returned the empty containers to the store.

Macintyre added, however, that he would have to agree with defence counsel R. P. Anderson that the act doesn't say it is an offence not to provide a refund at the place of sale.

NO REFUNDS

The prosecutor noted testimony of the store manager, James Vance Gill, that employees are instructed not to give a refund.

Gill said there is a sign in the store's front window and at each check-out counter stating refunds can be obtained at several bottle depots. The signs also give the locations of the depots.

"I say here the offence is selling without giving an undertaking (to refund), " Defence counsel Anderson said.

Store manager Gill, when cross-examined by Anderson, said the returned tins are in a contaminated condition.

"I know we are not allowed to have contaminated items in the store," the manager said.

He added some tins are in "terrible" condition and "dirty" because "kids dig them out of dumps."

"What is to stop him from putting them in a box in the back of the store and then taking them to the depot himself?" Ostler said at one point, speaking of vendors generally.

Anderson said there was a similar case involving Safeway in Nanaimo to be heard Aug. 23.

Victim and Driver Ruled Both at Fault

A coroner's jury ruled Tuesday that both the victim, a pedestrian knocked down by a car who died four weeks later, and the driver of the car involved were at fault.

The jury said Alfred Nelson Cull, 61, of 3933 Winton, Saanich, was not on the crosswalk when he crossed Johnson at Broad July 2.

Cull died in Royal Jubilee Hospital July 30 of his injuries, aggravated by severe emphysema.

The driver, Frank Nosek, 27, of 21030 Bradford, Sidney, was "driving in a dangerous manner in driving through a crosswalk," the jury said.

Nosek testified he had been drinking at a local beer parlor for about one and half hours before the accident and consumed about five beers.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves, if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

LAKEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — First you take 24,000 eggs, scramble with a truck, blend in some gasoline . . .

Deputies said Kenneth McCoy, 25, stole a truck loaded with eggs while the driver was making a restaurant delivery, and the truck turned over as he tried to elude a pursuing patrol car.

McCoy was charged with auto theft, driving under the influence of dangerous drugs, hit and run and resisting arrest.

Firemen were faced with the job of cleaning up the enormous omelette left when the truck's 24,000 eggs smashed against the pavement, blended with leaking gasoline, and began to cook in the 95-degree heat.

With Qualifications

THE DISMAY OF LOCAL CONservationists when the ruling of the Pollution Control Branch was reversed to permit the Jordan River mining interests to dump tailings into coastal waters may be somewhat abated by the restrictions which have been imposed.

The company had asked for a permit to dump up to a million gallons a day of mixed water and mud at the low tide mark near the river mouth. In reversing the rejection by Mr. William Venables, the provincial director of pollution control, the Pollution Control Board recognized the protests of opponents of the plan and directed him to set up regulations and standards which the company must observe. These appear to be comprehensive and may set a new procedure for such requests.

The proof, of course, will lie in the efficiency with which they are followed and the alertness of officials charged with supervising the operation. An independent firm is to monitor the outfall and report regularly on the maximum percentages of various metals in the mud, as well as cyanide, which is used in the extraction process. An emergency spill basin must be constructed, and the present condition of the local marine life must be thoroughly defined so that changes, if any, may be noted.

There are still doubts as to the effects on fishing of cloudiness in the offshore waters even though the tailings must be discharged at a minimum depth of 40 feet some 1,500 feet from the beach. And even the minimum amounts of copper, lead, zinc and other substances permissible in the discharge may result in harm to the fish and plant life. These studies must await completion of the disposal system and a trial period of mine operation.

The controls are a big advance over previous laissez faire methods in this area. They could establish a workable compromise between proper conservation practices and economic development. But close observation and strict application of the controls will be necessary, with full public access. It is more sensible — and cheaper — to prevent than to cure.

If They Make Their Beds . . .

THE REPORT OF A STRATford, Ont., 18-year-old girl appealing a two-months' jail sentence, in Fez, Morocco, for drug possession emphasizes an international problem that appears to be snowballing for travelling Canadian youth.

Whatever the merits of the case or the appeal, the incident has brought from External Affairs the statement that "a very great number" of young Canadians are in trouble this summer on drug charges in various parts of the world — the Middle East, North Africa, Eastern Europe and Mexico included. The problem is by no means limited to young Canadians on the move. It is common to most nations whose transient youth finds that, regardless of personal opinions on the drug issue, specific laws are in force in various countries that impose penalties for activities which they consider to be offences. The matter is not one of philosophical difference concerning the drug culture. It is a straightforward question of the law of the land in places where young people are encountering trouble.

Of course there is a duty imposed upon Canadian authorities to see that their young nationals are not the victims of unjust persecution in lands to which the children go of their own accord. There seems little justification, however, for Canadian interference in such cases where the law is flouted by visitors.

The situation defined by External Affairs emphasizes a hard fact: the youngsters who run the risks by breaking narcotics laws away from home automatically expose themselves to the punishments the foreign country imposes on violators. They had better understand the laws and appreciate the risks. Except for seeing that they are given fair treatment by the authorities in other nations, Canada can have no further responsibility in these cases.

Chill Wind From Cuba

ANY ASSUMPTIONS THAT contacts between the United States and Cuba during the year implied the prospects of easier relations between the two countries were squelched by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's speech a few days ago marking the 18th anniversary of his own revolutionary movement.

The contacts were relatively minor—negotiatitons on such issues as the return to the United States of skyjackers and the exchange of prisoners. They had, nevertheless, seemed hopeful to some Americans, including members of Congress, who suggested that the time might have arrived for Washington to look afresh at the issue of policy toward Cuba with a view toward re-establishing relations.

These tentative probings were rebuffed by the Castro speech. "We are not seeking conciliation of any kind with Yankee imperialism," he said at one point, after pledging "Cuban solidarity with revolutionary movements in Latin America."

The hard line persists from Havana, despite what appear to be only meagre gains in its economic position since last year. Castro still calls for and expects his people to face "resolutely, valiantly and decisively" whatever economic or foreign political challenges rise to confront them. And he obviously sees no need at this time to soften his attitude toward the United States as a possible means of easing the road ahead for them.

Spreading the Trouble

THE FULL-FLEDGED ENTRY of the Soviet Union into the politics of the Indian subcontinent through the recently signed Soviet-Indian treaty is not likely to have the calming effect the Soviet foreign minister, Mr. Andrei Gromyko, claims to foresee. Although officially dubbed a treaty of "peace, friendship and co-operation" the document verges on a mutual assistance pact. The treaty moves Indian foreign policy closer to the vagaries of Moscow's interests and diminishes what is left of Indian non-alignment.

Clearly the atmosphere in which India acceded to this potentially very dangerous shift in policies was dominated by considerations of possible war over East Bengal with the Pakistanis. The West is only gradually coming to recognize the seriousness of the situation in Bengal.

In the current state of tension in India and Pakistan a marshalling of external allies will not alleviate matters. A conflict among the Soviets, Chinese and Americans over the fate of south Asia would hardly solve Indian-Pakistani problems. The problem in East Bengal must be contained, not allowed to spread infectiously through the international community. The danger of matters getting out of hand has been significantly increased. Constraint could be the least result of the new treaty.

CAN TRUDEAU FIND HUMILITY? — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

A Timetable Is Disrupted, a Magic Wanes

UNDER an old law of Canadian politics any prime minister's career moves through two distinct phases. A party leader may win his first election rather easily and quickly master his new government. But this does not necessarily mean that he has mastered the nation to reach the second phase, undisputed power. In fact only five prime ministers at most — Macdonald, Laurier, Borden, King and St. Laurent — ever reached that phase and truly mastered the nation.

Hutchison

Today, their current successor, Pierre Trudeau, is encountering the old law and facing the familiar test which so many men have failed. Three years ago in his dizzy triumph he seemed to be the nation's master but now comes his time of trouble, as it comes to all prime ministers.

In the Gallic side of his mind he planned, programmed, computerized and white papered everything for the election of 1972 or sooner — a perfectly logical French design like a formal garden at Versailles. We are reminded however, when he wears the kilt of the Elliott clan in Nova Scotia, that he is half Scottish, and this other Trudeau must see that the logic is not working very well. It seldom does, since the democratic process is by nature illogical.

Stark Equation

The thrifty Scottish Trudeau doubtless has added up the electoral figures and noted a stark equation. He knows that the loss of some 20 Liberal seats will destroy his majority in the next Parliament and plunge the nation back into the disorder of minority government. He knows too, that those seats are in danger.

It would require no earthquake, only a mild tremor, to lose half a dozen, or more, in the four western provinces. In Ontario the Liberals surely reached their peak in 1968, can hardly go higher and must reckon on the possibility of going down, at least marginally. Even with its solid hold on Quebec and its small clutch of safe seats in the Maritimes, the government could lack a majority, though no other party could hope to govern, unless the climate changed unbelievably before next summer.

All this arithmetic means that Mr. Trudeau has not yet mastered the nation. He has merely mastered his government and party, another thing entirely. And the fact that no rival leader is anywhere near him in talent or public confidence does not solve his problem. He alone can solve it.

The sudden change in his personal plans, the cancellation of his African tour, the tacit admission that his economic policies have been bungled, the folksy visits to the West and the Maritimes all indicate that the French and Scottish Trudeaus are thinking furiously. They had better. Why, they must be asking, is the neat timetable planned in 1968 so obviously crumbling? For two main reasons, as a remote observer sees it.

Too Logical

The design was too logical, and too naive at the beginning. It provided for some three years of leisurely study and preparation followed by a fourth year of legislative blitzkrieg and then an election to confirm these vast social reforms. But it allowed for no accidents and a grave economic accident of unemployment combined with inflation has intervened to alter everything.

Consequently, the government approaches the election that must finally test the prime minister under conditions that he did not foresee. Still worse, the most controversial items in his program — tax reform, the Competition Act and other legislative boxes overloaded by Pandora — will soon be opened to provoke public dispute when the government can least afford it.

Apart from his battered timetable, something else has happened to the prime minister and it may be more serious. As he clearly foresaw from the start, his personal magic is now waning. How could it be otherwise? The sort of miracle performed in 1968 is not repeatable.

Of course, he may win a second majority to master the nation, but he cannot win it by the original method of gaudy Trudeaumania and another Roman circus, because the public mind has turned sober and sceptical in a different and less happy time.

Also, with that almost infallible, subconscious wisdom that so often saves the democratic system in the pinch, the Canadian people have sized up Mr. Trudeau for themselves and their judgment will not change significantly before the election anyhow.

Defects Showing

What is their judgment? It is still very high, I believe, but not exactly the judgment formed three years ago. The prime minister, as seen by the people, remains unequalled in talent, unrivaled in crowd appeal, almost indispensable in his party, but his defects at last are clearly visible — above all, a streak of intellectual arrogance which all his charm, and even his Scottish costume, cannot disguise.

Since he has so few defects, perhaps this one wouldn't matter too much in normal times. In our abnormal, jittery times it could be just enough to tilt the balance of a tight election when Mr. Trudeau, not his party, will win or lose a majority.

If anyone notes even the slightest flaws in a prime minister — and none, being human, is without them — his friends cry foul and denounce the critic as an enemy. Now, it happens that this old reporter, while disagreeing with some of Mr. Trudeau's policies, can see no good for the nation in a minority government. Nevertheless, that possibility has to be faced by this friends and enemies alike, as he is presumably facing it. And in the next decisive year nothing could help him so much as a little humility.

Letters to the Editor

Mr. Fisher's Companion

Although I resigned from a life time appointment to the Senate when I reached the age of 75, I still take a keen interest in politics as a member of Her Majesty's Privy Council for Canada and I am a subscriber and attentive reader of "The Times".

Your political writers are outstanding but, being human, they sometimes err. It is about one such occurrence that I am writing to you.

Douglas Fisher recently committed an error that calls for correction. In his column of July 23 he made a most disparaging attack on the Hon. Ron Basford by the subtle technique of quoting an unnamed informer whom he "happened to sit alongside of in the gallery". This chance, unidentified, stranger was a rather strange and dangerous source of information on which Fisher wrote a very damaging and untrue story.

One statement was that Basford was a CCFer in the mid-fifties. This was only one of the many statements that I know to be false, but it is one that I happen to be able to disprove with concrete evidence. I have a written record that proves that Basford was President of the U.B.C. Liberal Club for some time previous to 1955. The club had a membership of 55 and I think it is safe to assume that they would have advanced him, over a period of time, to the Presidency.

Even in 1955 I knew that Basford was an active Liberal worker who had broken away from a well-known Conservative family to embrace Liberalism. He never was a CCFer and I am sure that Fisher knew that too for he himself was then active in the C.C.F. I suspect that Fisher invented the hearsay story he learned from the stranger in the gallery.

I am complaining to you for I consider this is the brand of irresponsible journalism that makes it hard to get desirable candidates for office. — Sydney J. Smith, 527 Prince Robert Drive.

Editor's Note: In a subsequent article Mr. Fisher corrected his statement about Mr. Basford's supposed membership in the CCF.

More for Chiropractors

I am sure it would be a great help to many thousands if the Premier would do his best to raise the yearly allowance of the chiropractors. I am speaking from my own experience. If it hadn't been the help and guidance of Dr. Sturdy, I would not be walking around today. I had the misfortune to have a nasty fall and injured my spine from top to bottom. I was allowed only $25 for the year. The x-ray alone cost me $20 and from March on it cost $5 a treatment. — Mrs. Lily Clarke, 710 Yates.

Discomfort Station

My wife and I had the pleasure once again to visit your fair city. It has always amazed us how Victoria could be kept so clean and retain throughout the year that peculiar air of serenity that no other city in the world can boast. The hotels and motels are beyond compare as are the facilities that are synonymous with a quiet, restful holiday.

However, sir, on this visit we were accompanied by a very dear relative on a holiday from Ireland. We had occasion to sojourn for four hours while waiting for a ferry. During the wait we all were forced to use your "Public Comfort Station" at the junction of Wharf and Government Streets. To think that the city fathers have the gall to call this diabolical facility a "Public Comfort Station" is beyond the comprehension of the human brain.

If the city must keep these facilities, a more appropriate name would be "Public Penance Station." 1871-1971 Centennial present for visitors. — G. H. Williamson, Maple Ridge.

Pakistani Refugees

The plight of the nearly ten million refugees of East Pakistan is becoming so grave, that unless the world at large does provide food and money right now, we will have to share the collective burden for the increasing decimation of human lives.

Only ten dollars will provide one meal for seventy people. Most banks are accepting contributions which will be directed towards organizations such as OXFAM. OXFAM will provide the necessary receipts. We plead with all those who are concerned to consider the enormity of the refugee problem and to be generous in their contributions. Isaac and Paula Judah, Montreal.

Parliament Lives

From BARNETT J. DANSON
Parliamentary Secretary to the Prime Minister

My attention has been drawn to a July 8 column by Bruce Hutchison which appeared in your newspaper under the title "Power of Parliament — Dead or Sleeping?"

The article laments the decline of Parliament which, the author contends, results from the efforts of the present Prime Minister to change in a basic way the whole governing system of Canada. Parliament, says Mr. Hutchison, is the first victim of this alleged change. Nonetheless, he hopefully concluded that, in spite of government indifference, obituaries for the institution may be premature.

As one who has had the opportunity to watch Parliament operate on a daily basis during the past three years, I can only be encouraged that at least Mr. Hutchison has not given up hope. However, I should like to suggest respectfully that he has become a bit of a pessimist.

Parliament may not function in the same manner as it did years ago, but surely Mr. Hutchison would be the last to suggest that revisions in themselves are suspect and damaging.

Since the present government was elected in 1968 Parliament has undergone substantial changes. They have not been changes in the "whole governing system." They have been changes designed to make the present system, the institution of Parliament and its individual elected members better prepared to respond to rapidly increasing legislative demands.

During the hectic years of minority governments in the sixties it was evident that the procedual machinery of the House of Commons was less and less able to meet these demands. Considerable study was made by representatives of all parties to determine what reform measures might be instituted to improve the situation and, at the same time, protect the traditional righs of both government and opposition.

Up to the election of 1968 there was no agreement as to specific reforms but there was widespread agreement that reforms were necessary. In the first session of this parliament the government introduced a number of changes.

For the first time a minister was appointed to operate full time as Government House Leader, rather than performing this function in addition to another cabinet job. Therefore, a senior minister is now free to devote his entire activity towards organizing the business of Parliament in a realistic manner in consultation with his opposition colleagues. In the current session of Parliament this level of consultation and co-operation has achieved results that are recognized by all parties.

Committee Expansion

Another innovation was a significant expansion of Parliamentary committees allowing them to examine thoroughly all estimates and legislation with the exception of tax bills. This increased reliance on the committee system permits individual members to have a greater opportunity to scrutinize policy and work towards change as was evident in the results of studies on Arctic sovereignty and tax reforms. In addition, channeling consideration of legislation at various stages throughout the Parliamentary system had helped to reduce bottlenecks in the House of Commons itself. This does not mean that debate itself is reduced.

In changing the rules of Parliament, the government also moved to strengthen the position of Speaker of the House of Commons. His power has been considerably increased by the abolition of all appeals against his rulings and the present incumbent further maintains his impartiality by sitting as an independent.

Finally, the growing complexity of Parliamentary business has been recognized by the government in its decision to provide annual grants to each political party for the purpose of increasing its staff and research capabilities.

These revisions — and there are others — have been directed by a Prime Minister who has a personal commitment to maximum possible attendance in the House of Commons for the daily Question Period. His attendance to date during this important period is excellent.

In order to avoid absences because of conflicts of commitments, the Prime Minister established a "roster" system which guarantees the presence of every department at Question Period three days out of each five to be represented either by a minister, an acting minister or the parliamentary secretary. He has made a point of giving his policy statements in Parliament, a procedure which has been followed in most cases by his cabinet colleagues.

I merely wish to point out these facts as an illustration that they do not seem to me to indicate a government which is intent on destroying Parliament. On the contrary, they are the actions of a government which was given a majority mandate by the Canadian voters to get down to work. It would seem natural that part of that mandate might include improving the efficiency of Parliament.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of August 11, 1911:

The CPR steamer Empress of Japan is due here early tomorrow afternoon from the Orient, having been spoken to by the Triangle wireless operator shortly before noon this morning.

The Empress of Japan brings a cargo from the Orient of 2,100 tons measurement, including 500 tons measurement of silk consigned for New York and worth in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. Her passenger list comprises 35 saloon and 119 other-class passengers.

Freedom May Be Just Another Word for Future Man

By VICTOR COHN

Free man as we know him, or imagined him, is dying.

Society, using a new technology of behavior, must instead design and control him.

This will leave man "free" to act beneficially on a better world — not an Orwellian "1984," but a meaningful world without war, violence, overpopulation.

In a manifesto likely to arouse anger and argument in political and intellectual circles throughout the world, Skinner says man must give up his claims to "individual freedom and dignity" and surrender the basic rights of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" to ensure the survival of his culture.

* * *

Such "basic rights," Skinner contends, are increasingly irrelevant or harmful to development of a future culture in which men of reason would want to live. Society, he contends, has failed man badly by permitting him too much of the wrong kind of freedom.

In fact, he says, "it is not difficult to demonstrate a connection between the unlimited right of the individual to pursue happiness and the catastrophes threatened by unchecked breeding, the unrestrained affluence that exhausts resources and pollutes the environment, and the imminence of nuclear war."

"What we need," asserts Skinner, "is more control, not less" or "some other culture" will possess the future.

In the future he seeks, both behavioral and genetic engineering would be part of a design to change man's character. Men would change the genetics they inherit "with a clearer eye to the consequences," and introduce cultural practices to mold society.

Skinner's provocative demands are made in a new book, Beyond Freedom and Dignity, to be published later this year by Alfred A. Knopf.

The argument is important because Skinner is important. He counts as scientist, technologist and social prophet.

Some will sharply criticize his new statements, but they will first listen.

Others will hate him. He expects this. Copernicus was hated, he points out, when he insulted man's cosmological view of the universe, Darwin was hated when he insulted man's biological view and Freud was hated when he insulted man's psychological view.

Skinner insults our deeply implanted behavioral view of the "autonomous man of traditional theory," endowed or entitled to "individual freedom and dignity."

He says in essence:

The traditional autonomous man "is held responsible for his conduct and given credit for his achievements." Almost everyone attributes human behavior to "intentions, purposes, aims and goals," but "a scientific analysis shifts both the responsibility and the achievement to the environment."

* * *

It is only when "we do not know why a person acts as he does that we attribute his behavior to him."

Science has now learned that "behavior is shaped and maintained by its consequences." This means "we can manipulate" man's environment. Man's genetic endowment can be changed only slowly, but changes in the individual's environment have "quick and dramatic results."

Therefore, by developing a "technology of behavior" — a technology only in its infancy and for which Skinner cannot yet draw a detailed social or political blueprint — "It should be possible to design a world in which behavior likely to be punished seldom or never occurs."

Though Skinner offers no plan, he does suggest a beginning.

He believes an intensive study should be made of man, his needs and his society — in order to see which actions should be reinforced and which conditioned out of his behavior.

To those who say, "Will not controlled man be simply a victim?" Skinner answers: There have always been the controlled and the controllers. Man is now controlled and in fact has reached a dead end in the struggle to shape his destiny.

"Permissive practices," he argues, are not truly policy but "the abandonment of policy," with any apparent advantages, in fact illusory.

To him, the agrressiveness and hostility of much of youth is due to "defective social environment." To refuse to control is "to leave control not to the person himself" but to the environment.

"The problem," he maintains, "is to free man not from control but from the certain kinds of control . . . to make the social environment as free as possible of aversive stimuli."

* * *

As to such critics as Britain's C. S. Lewis — who wrote that "man is being abolished" through Skinnerian psychology — Skinner now answers: If Lewis means today's overautonomous man, then that man's abolition "is long overdue," for he is about to destroy us.

Skinner does not guarantee a Utopia, but frankly seeks it. In his Utopia people would learn to live together without wars and quarrelling. They would produce the goods they need by consuming no more than a reasonable part of the world's resources. They would bear no more children than they can raise decently.

Man's attempts so far to create Utopias have, he concedes, been ignominious failures. But "unplanned and imperfect cultures have failed too," and — his conclusion — "We have not yet seen what man can make of man."

The Commons Has Become a Dreary Place

By DOUGLAS FISHER

KNOWLES

DIEFENBAKER

OTTAWA — Attacks on the ethics and standards of members of Parliament are familiar and are numerous. They go in cycles.

The recent pay increases set off an explosion of public bitterness. Probably the "research" findings of a McMaster professor, Roman March, will extend the latest cycle. Whether they will "jack up" MPs, as Stanley Knowles suggests, is doubtful.

The professor found attendance of MPs at recorded votes ran at only 62 per cent through the current session. He believes a "general malaise" has pervaded Parliament since Mr. Trudeau became Prime Minister.

●

His sharpest shaft was sunk in those MPs, other than John Diefenbaker, who were much absent from their Parliamentary duties. They did not declare their absences and thus evaded the process of pay deduction.

A number of MPs have replied to the March criticisms with explanations such as illnesses, committee meetings, work in constituencies, international conferences, etc.

Dr. Philip Rynard, the veteran Tory MP for Simcoe North, put forward the generalization: That changes in the style of Parliamentary business are knocking MPs' attend dance records all to pieces.

"Parliament," he said, "isn't like it used to be."

Most of us close to Parliament would agree with the Rynard statement but essentially it is a bromide, an excuse.

●

The golden age in Parliamentary attendance was based on minority government and the fear of a defeat in the House. Surely, the sweep fashioned by Mr. Trudeau in 1968 owed much to a public desire to give one man and his party clear title to run the country. The large margin of Liberal MPs over opposition MPs has made votes in this Parliament mere formalities.

Is there a deeper malaise? Is there more to the poor attendance than the simple fact of the large majority, plus peregrinating committees and multiplying international conferences.

If the answer is affirmative, it is unlikely to be made clear by the quantitative methods of Professor March. Data on votes and pay cannot explain why this has been a limp, undramatic, and unappealing Parliament.

The pattern of this Parliament was determined largely by the big Trudeau victory. And this was more than a healthy margin of seats, which gave sure control of the Commons. The popularity of Mr. Trudeau was so high in 1968 when Parliament assembled that the opposition parties were cowed.

Oh, their spokesman may deny it now, but it is true and it dictated an opposition strategy of humility and caution and waiting.

●

In the early winter of 1969 I braced a numbr of Conservatives and New Democrats about this strategy.

Why not attack and attack again, particularly the Prime Minister?

I was told that it was far too early: "Let him make some mistakes. Wait until he has a record. He can walk on water now with the public. If we slash at him it will only make him bigger and ourselves petty and more unpopular."

●

Late this winter, early this spring, there was a drop in the Trudeau ratings in the popularity polls. To a minor degree, the opposition parties swung into more bitter attacks and, again in a minor way, they made Parliament rather uncomfortable for the government.

Unfortunately, the tame, pat-their-wrists approach taken up by the opposition had become a pattern of behavior and mood which they could not break. A football team of the defensive, two-bucks-and-a-kick style finds it almost impossible to switch readily to a wide-open, throw-the-ball-around game. The coach needs a different kind of personnel.

Month after month of careful waiting, with few sustained attacks, has made the Commons itself a dreary place. No wonder MPs downgrade it for committees, or their constituencies, or for trips abroad.

This dearth of excitement in the Commons also had some other causes. The new rules took from the opposition the power to create crises for the government, artificial or real, through the withholding of money by "supply" debate filibustering.

The roster system of ministerial attendance subtracted from the vitality of the question periods but, even more, it sustained a growing view among ministers that they are much too busy and important to spend any hours in the House unless they are actually putting their legislation through.

●

The Prime Minister helped accentuate this last reaction. He has no time for Parliament once the question period is over. On a few occasions he would show the courtesy of listening to Mr. Stanfield's speeches. But his practice is to get out of the House. Not for him the odd evening in the chamber or browsing in the lobby with his MPs.

He has been more successful in deflating the House, abetted by a cautious, fearful opposition, than he was at deflating prices and wages.

Two other aspects of Mr. Trudeau's methods have helped reduce the importance of the House among MPs. His use of TV and the wandering, well-arranged progresses through selected parts of Canada, the "regional desks," the strenuous Liberal Party work in having policy brought forth from the ridings, all join to reduce the role of the MP, particularly the government MP.

The latter is now so much on the "coat-tail" of the luminous personality, that what the MP does as a Parliamentarian is trivial to what his leader does in kissing girls in his riding or region.

There is something pleasant and warming for most of us in the news that the Trudeaus are to be parents. But nothing has been more indicative of the feeble self-respect of the Liberal Parliamentarian than their intense and hopeful speculation among the government MPs since last March that a baby in 24 Sussex would be a wonderful bonus to their side in the next general election.

As Doc Rynard said, there are changes in Parliamentary style. Poor attendance at votes is an indication of a quite understandable indifference. This indifference has causes which can be assigned to many persons and groups, not just to the prime minister.

On Prof. March's other point that he cannot believe that John Diefenbaker was the only MP absent from the House on personal business or for personal reasons, there isn't any reasonable explanation except slack integrity among a score or so MPs.

They are without conscience when they sign those monthly forms on which they should record their absences.

Someone Seemed to Be Spoiling for a Fight

By ALLAN FOTHERINGHAM
The Sun

Maple Tree Square has developed over the last year into the most vibrant and interesting intersection in Vancouver.

Freed from the dull grid pattern of most of the city, it has an angular, European feel to it — with Alexander and Cordova streets converging and then veering off into Water and Carrall.

It's dominated by the flat-iron shape of the old Hotel Europe which is built as a triangle to fit into the pie-shaped block. It's the natural heart of Gastown.

So Maple Tree Square was the chosen site when the Yippie element, through two issues of the Georgia Straight last week promoted a "Grasstown Smoke-in and Street Jamboree" for Saturday night.

* * *

The excuse was to protest the police tactics used in Operation Dustpan, the search for drug traffickers and users.

The Yippies printed a long list of instructions on "how not to get busted" at the smoke-in, including a prophetic sentence on police who "ride horses at high speed through the crowd, in an attempt to atomize the crowd."

What did happen Saturday night in Maple Tree Square, by the accounts of dozens of sober and sensible adults who were witness, was a disaster for future public-police relations in this town. What happened was a police riot.

* * *

The silly Yippies, whose goal is to provoke the police into repressive action, were out of luck. The tom-toms blatted away, the street theatre types went through their act but the 100 or so youths sitting in the square were merely watched by some 1,200 spectators who included hundreds of tourists and middle-aged couples out for Gastown dining and browsing. Reporters present agreed the seated kids were not organized. Some were smoking hay wrapped in cigaret paper. It was at least in part a put-on for the watching squares.

Early on, the police redirected traffic around the area, seemingly giving a legitimacy to the gathering. Things were so dull, in fact, that the crowds were beginning to drift away. Several nervous Gastown merchants, relieved at the lack of tension, began to gather equipment for a dance.

* * *

Then at about 9.45, Inspector Bob Abercrombie called on a loud-hailer for the crowd to disperse in two minutes. According to those reporters in the front, the hailer was either defective or wasn't being used properly — it could be heard for perhaps for 20 feet.

The police concern was with traffic delays. Considering the harbor to the north and the one-way streets in Gastown, it meant Hastings had to handle all the flow westwards.

There was no reading of the Riot Act, no declaration of an illegal assembly. There didn't have to be — it was clear the police were merely waiting for the signal.

Two youths scaled the front of the Hotel Europe to the first-floor balcony of top-hatted Ace Aasen, the character known as the Mayor of Gastown, to plant a flag. On their way up they knocked loose pieces of dead neon tubing that fell to the sidewalk. This was translated into the police information that windows were being broken in the Hotel Europe.

Two minutes after Abercrombie's faintly heard order, mounted police from their hiding place charged into the square. Spectators were bowled over. A baby carriage was upturned, the infant rolling into the street. The occupants of the square fled before the charge.

In 10 minutes the police had control of the situation. It is what happened over the next three hours that is the disgrace of what has been a generally respected police force.

* * *

Peter Fox is a man of perhaps 40-45, owner of a shoe store in the area. He has a well-bred English voice. He was on a building overlooking the square and he says, "For the first time in my adult life I wept."

He shook his head in wonderment yesterday. "I believe in law and order. Even when I saw those horses galloping on those people I kept thinking, 'The police have got to be right, the police have got to be right.' But I saw it all. There was no provocation. I couldn't believe that I could live in a country where this was happening."

* * *

He says, "There had been no property damage. I couldn't believe it when the police started to put on their riot gear. I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw those horses charge the crowd. It was like watching a huge TV screen." In retaliation came the bottles and the bricks. The Yippies had won after all.

Ald. Art Phillips was phoned at home by Gastown entrepreneur Larry Killam who was, according to Phillips, "almost incoherent with rage" at what the police were doing. By the time Phillips arrived, police were still "charging up and down the sidewalk swinging clubs."

Ald. Ed Sweeney was phoned and it was a fortunate choice. Sweeney is a faithful NPA man, a faithful Tom Campbell supporter, a right-winger in philosophy and firm supporter at the time of the police getting these "defensive riot sticks."!

In Gastown Saturday night, a disgusted Sweeney said, "They are using them like you'd use a stick to beat a dog." A police car purposely drive right at the two aldermen.

The mayor and the police can dismiss Phillips and Harry Rankin, but they'll have a tough time talking away Sweeney's evidence.

There were others being beaten. What witnesses found apparent was a certain police mentality we thought was restricted to U.S. TV screens.

Photographers were special targets. One of the recent tactims of the street people in Gastown has been to photograph where possible police roughing up drug suspects.

The Georgia Straight has published several damaging sequences. So police, carrying no numbers or badges, intimidated every photographer they could find.

* * *

CTV's Len Kowalewich was threatened, jostled and shoved. The Sun's Glenn Baglo was bullied. CBC's Dave Loy was slugged and that was no mistake since he wore a face shield and a hard-hat with CBC emblazoned in fluorescent paint. His colleague Peter Allies was given similar treatment and his superiors today are considering official protests.

There was more than policemen temporarily losing their cool — which might have been understandable in the face of grubby, cursing youths. There was a pent-up vindictiveness that lasted for hours. Someone seemed to be spoiling for a fight.

The mayor's excuse that the men were provoked is nonsense — the police swinging clubs from horseback were entering the scene for the first time.

* * *

A respected financial man in town who saw it said yesterday. "For God's sake don't quote me, but the cops were enjoying it too much."

The solution to a traffic tie-up was to break open heads. The mayor kept predicting a riot; it never came, so the police supplied him with one. If someone isn't sacked over this one, we live in a rather unpleasant town.

Pigs is a dirty word and no one likes to use it, but there were some pigs loose in Gastown on Saturday night.

Syncrude Wins Major Concession

EDMONTON (CP) — Syncrude will receive major tax concessions from the federal government says a spokesman for Premier Harry Strom. Details were not disclosed.

The spokesman said a telegram to Strom from Ottawa indicated the tax situation had been settled to Syncrude's satisfaction.

Basically, it would permit the firm to operate as a mining operation instead of a normal oil firm, allowing it the tax concessions granted to mines. Syncrude has proposed a $400 million plant at Fort McMurray in northeastern Alberta to extract oil from oil-bearing sand deposits.

Husky

The earnings of Husky Oil Ltd. increased slightly to $2 million (18 cents a share) during the six months ended June 30.

In the period a year earlier, the company earned $1.64 million (14 cents).

The 1971 first half earnings would have been higher except for a loss of $1.7 million on sale of offshore contract drilling assets last year.

Gross revenue increased seven per cent to $89.49 million from $83.97 million in 1970.

Aquitaine

Aquitaine Co. of Canada Ltd. had net income of $8.67 million or 42.1 cents a share for the first half of 1971, compared with $7.17 million (34.8 cents) the previous period.

Gross income for the first six months was $12.75 million down from $13.2 million.

Pr. Edward Isle

An investment group headed by Royal Securities Corp. is offering a new issue of Prince Edward Island sinking fund debentures totalling $5 million.

The first series dated Sept. 15 is for 10 years at 8½ per cent, the second for 20 years at 9 per cent.

Dynasty

DYNASTY Explorations Ltd. of Vancouver reports net earnings of $933,276 or 31 cents a share for the six-month period ended June 30 compared with earnings of $96,777 or three cents a share for the same period of 1970.

ITL Industries

Kenton Molded Plastics Inc., of Kenton, Ohio, has been bought by ITL Industries Ltd., of Windsor, after three years of manufacturing products sold by ITL subdiaries.

It will operate as a division of ITL subsidiary Ray-O-Lite International Corp., continuing to serve major independents and provide lamp and reflector lines for the truck, trailer and recreation vehicle industries served by Ray-O-Lite.

Calta

Favorable assay of the third diamond drill hole on its Cantact, Nev., property is reported by Calta Mines Ltd. for the 27 feet below 1,251 feet. Drilling continues in the 1,555-foot area toward a 1,600-foot target.

Another hole is planned for 1,600 feet of depth, to be spudded 400 feet east of number three.

Giant Ex.

Giant Explorations Ltd. has encountered promising nickel grade and low copper values in the first of a series of diamond drill holes on property adjoining Giant Mascot Mines near Hope.

Detailed geological mapping, goechemical and magnetometer surveys are in progress as part of the exploration program including diamond drilling at 500-foot intervals.

Induced polarization survey also is planned.

Atlas

Atlas Explorations Ltd. reports six-month income of $371,757 or seven cents a share, compared with a loss of $149,867 (three cents) in the 1970 period. President Aaro E. Aho said a $100,000 exploration program is under way in the Anvil district of the Yukon.

MLW

MLW-Worthington Ltd. and its subsidiaries report net income of $291,000 or 36 cents a share for the first six months of 1971, compared with $453,000 (57 cents) for the period last year.

Cominco

Mineral exploration on Little Cornwallis Island, NWT, indicates significant lead-zinc potential, reports Cominco Ltd., which has 75 per cent interest in the property, held 25 per cent by Bankeno Mines Ltd.

Drilling this year follows a number of years of intermittent exploration.

Cominco gave assays from five diamond drill holes of up to 805 feet, all showing values in zinc and all but five sections showing lead values. (The five sections each showed trace values.)

Anglo-Rouyn

Lower grade ore and a decline in copper prices are the attributed causes of a net loss of $253,000 vs. a net profit of $499,000 in the same six month period a year ago, reports Anglo-Rouyn Mines Ltd.

For the half year ended June 30, Algo-Royn had revenue of $1.88 million compared with $3 million in 1970, and despite 16 per cent lower operating costs, mine operating profit dropped to $292,000 against $1.24 million.

Other expenses, depreciation and amortization raised deductions to $545,000 to produce the net loss.

Preston

Net earnings unchanged from a year ago are reported for the six months ended June 30 by Preston Mines Ltd., whose major asset is investment in Rio Algom Mines Ltd.

Revenue was $91,000, down from $151,000 but dividends and other income raised the figure to $1.21 million, vs. $1.29 million last year. Expenses were lower at $23,000 compared with $101,000 to leave net earnings at $1.197 million.

Working capital rose by $98,000 in the period, compared with $83,000 last year.

Swedish Neutrality Again Pays Dividends

By ROLAND HUNTFORD
The London Observer

STOCKHOLM — Volvo, the Swedish auto manufacturer, has been asked to operate the Ford assembly plant in Chile taken over by President Salvador Allende's Marxist government. The offer will probably be accepted, but even if it is not, the very fact that it has been made is a vindication of Swedish foreign policy.

Sweden is a neutral country. It is also a Socialist one. It's celebrated engineering industry has the best of European technical reputations. But, having stood aside from European affairs for well over a century, it is not associated with European colonialism.

It is an excellent point of departure for winning friends and influencing people in contemporary Latin America, not to mention Africa and Asia.

Over the past decade, Swedish foreign policy has taken the form of ostentatiously dissociating Sweden from the west.

A GROUND SWELL

As far as Latin America and Asia are concerned it has been based on the assumption that whatever the names borne by the various kinds of upheaval there, they are at heart expressions of a nationalistic groundswell. By judicial manoeuvring, it has been possible to profit from that phenomenon.

If this is the real explanation of Swedish foreign policy, it has been effectively masked by ideological window-dressing.

The recognition of North Vietnam and the cultivation of friendship with Cuba are both justifiable in terms of a leftward swing toward a "Socialist" Swedish foreign policy at the end of the 1960s. The change came about partly — but not entirely — because of pressure from the radical wing of the ruling Social Democratic Party. In practical terms it has been most noticeable in the field of foreign aid.

CUBA GAINED

So far, Cuba has been an obvious beneficiary. In 1969, Sweden decided to give considerable educational and medical assistance to Cuba through UNESCO. Whatever the pros and cons of technical assistance administered through the United Nations organization, it is an observable fact that trade follows aid.

After the UNESCO scheme materialized, Swedish companies were able to negotiate considerable deals with Cuba. To take one example, Alfa-Laval, a company celebrated in the sphere of dairy machinery (the founder invented the centrifugal cream separator) has contracted to design and equip a milk processing plant in Havana.

Then in May this year, a Swedish delegation under Kjell-Olof Feldt, the minister of trade, went to Cuba where they were more than favor ably received. Pursuing a variant of diplomacy whose novelty had not yet worn off, Castro himself publicly played ping-pong with the Swedes.

Within Sweden a few politicians criticized their government's Cuban flirtation. But it was noticeable that the leaders of industry, and especially those concerned with exports, held their tongues.

For Sweden is now in disturbing economic difficulties. It must find new markets quickly.

Unemployment is rising and the outlet for exports is bleak. Sweden, as a neutral country, cannot join the European Economic Community and this will eventually mean that the Swedes will be cut off from the economic mainstream of Europe.

As an export market for Swedish goods, Europe is approaching saturation, and it is doubtful if there is much room for expansion. The obvious remedy is to look for new pastures.

Latin America offers great possibilities. At present it takes less than 5 per cent of Sweden's total exports, and it is only beginning its industrial expansion.

But here, as in other places, it is not a matter of business alone, and the dividing line between economics and politics is somewhat blurred. Other thangs being equal, most Latin American countries would doubtless prefer to take delivery from an innocuous small country like Sweden than from the United States.

Application by York Cablevision Limited:

a) for permission, by way of a dividend, to transfer 100 common shares (being all the issued shares) from National Cablevision Limited to the shareholders of National Cablevision Limited.

b) for permission to transfer the 100 common shares from the proposed shareholders to Classic Developments Ltd.

Decision: APPROVED

Order in Council P.C. 1969-2228 as amended directs the Canadian Radio-Television Commission that broadcasting licences may not be issued and renewals of broadcasting licences may not be granted to applicants who are not Canadian citizens or eligible Canadian corporations.

The licences for all the cable systems involved in these applications expire December 31, 1971.

With the exception of Victoria Cablevision Limited, the present licensees are not eligible Canadian corporations since the participation by the Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc. exceeds the maximum of 20% foreign ownership permitted in a broadcasting undertaking under the direction: P.C. 1969-2228.

The basic purpose of these applications is to obtain the permission of the Commission for proposed changes in ownership to make all the licensees eligible Canadian corporations. Other applications involving some of the same persons were heard at the same Hearing. The Commission is dealing with them in a separate announcement.

Unless the licensee companies conform to the requirements of P.C. 1969-2228 as amended, the Commission cannot renew the licences.

The applicants proposed that all the licensee companies will be owned 100% by Classic Developments Ltd., which in turn will be owned 20% by Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., in excess of 25% by the Welsh group and Victoria Press, L.&R. Curran—D. J. Paynter, and the remainder by the Canadian public through an underwriting.

The Commission considered whether the 20% of Classic to be owned by Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc. — being the largest single block of shares — would thereby give CBS a degree of control or influence not in keeping with P.C. 1969-2228 as amended.

The Commission also considered where, in fact, the control of the undertaking would lie.

In arriving at a favourable decision in this matter the Commission has given particular consideration to the following factors:

—the considerable divestiture program resulting from the foreign ownership directive (P.C. 1969-2228, given to the Commission by the Governor General in Council) and the urgency to complete the task resulting from this direction;

—the fact that to complete the divestiture program envisioned in these applications, it will be necessary to raise a very large amount of capital from the Canadian public;

—the need for the Commission in any decision of this nature to take into account the financial situation in the country and the region concerned;

—the shares being held by CBS do not represent control. Other shareholders in the undertakings hold substantial blocks of shares which will enable them to assume the dominant role in the licensee companies.

In this respect the Commission has accepted in good faith a statement by Mr. R. O. Briscoe, President COMTEC Group — Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc. — concerning the stewardship of the CBS holdings and a statement of Mr. S. W. Welsh concerning the intention of the present Canadian shareholders to continue to work "as a team".

The Commission also considered the economic feasibility of separating the York system from the undertaking proposed by the applicants. With respect to some of the policies of the Commission, such a proposal would have presented certain advantages. However, the Commission — taking all factors into consideration — has reached the conclusion that such a solution would not be in the public interest for the following reasons:

—the present Canadian shareholders of these undertakings are not required by P.C. 1969-2228 to reduce their interest, and to separate York from the proposed transactions would force them to do so;

—the carrying out of the proposed plan of divestiture depends on a successful public underwriting. In this connection the York system will contribute substantially to the potential growth thus will contribute to the success of the divestiture;

—York has not been owned by local interests in the Toronto area, and there will now be an opportunity for people in the area to participate in the ownership in some measure through the purchase of shares in Classic Developments Ltd.

The Commission granted licences for the undertakings involved in these applications for the period ending March 31, 1976, conditional upon the completion of the transactions proposed in the applications, and subject to such other conditions as the Commission may place on the licences.

Slater-Walker Touch Exported to Canada

TORONTO (CP) — In Britain it is called the Slater-Walker touch, and it has been exported to Canada.

Slater-Walker Securities Ltd. is an investment-management firm and during the 1960s its stock was the best performer in Britain.

The companies operations in Canada were opened late last year by Robert Smith, then 32. He began negotiations in January for a takeover of Stanley Brock Ltd., a long-established distributor of dry-cleaning and laundry equipment based in Winnipeg and operating in Western Canada, and what happened next is typical.

Net book value of assets was $1.76 million at the end of 1970 and net profit for the year was $103,000.

During 1970, the company's shares traded between $8 and $9.37. Shares were primarily management-owned.

Slater Walker announced in March it would acquire 61-percent control of the firm at a price of $15 a share or a total of about $900,000.

MULTIPLIES QUICKLY

By mid-year, Stanley Brock shares were trading at about $60. The Brock name disappeared from stock lists in July when it became part of the new parent company.

Mr. Smith learned of the Winnipeg situation from undisclosed sources who told him the company was available "to the right purchaser." He met officers of Stanley Brock for the first time when he went to Winnipeg in January.

"I liked them right away—good, straight, honest people from Winnipeg."

He said he was not interested in the company because of its operation. "I picked it up for its balance sheet."

The British firm was started in 1963 by James Slater, then 34, and Peter Walker, then 37. They bought a run-down clothing manufacturer for $180,000 and after rejuvenating the operation sold it for a profit.

By 1968, the company was large enough to buy Crittall-Hope, the largest metal window manufacturer in Europe, for $72 million. Slater-Walker liquidated three subsidiaries, closed old factories and sold off a company office building.

CAPITAL DOWN

Crittall-Hope was transformed from a company with $43 million capital employed and a profit of $2.2 million to a leaner $38 million capital employed earning $5 million.

By 1970, Slater-Walker had $250 million in assets spread over 200 companies.

Counting dividends and the rise in share prices, Slater-Walker had a gain of 2,509 per cent during the decade. That means someone who invested $100 in the company at the start could have made a gain of $2,509 through the end of 1969. Only one other British company —a Slater offshoot— topped 2,000 per cent.

Mr. Smith is the eldest son of a labor class family and got top marks in the crucial school examinations British children must take at age 11. He left school at 17 and went to work for a London law firm, Allen and Overy.

He got a thorough grounding in corporation law and in evaluating and negotiating acquisitions. He went on to work for Lord Thomson of Fleet and at one point was publisher of the Bangkok Post during a six-week changeover period.

Publishing, he said, did not interest him but the investment management style of Slater Walker did.

'Fantastic' Zinc Find In Arctic

VANCOUVER (CP) — Exploratory drilling on Little Cornwallis Island in the central high Arctic has located "significant" amounts of lead and zinc, Cominco Ltd. announced.

The firm said drilling on a property in which Cominco has 75 per cent and Bankeno Mines Ltd. of Toronto has 25 per cent followed several years of intermittent exploratory work.

Assays on four holes drilled to varying depths up to 805 feet showed — in one location at least — zinc content as high as 24.7 per cent and lead content as high as 7.2 per cent. The holes are 800 feet apart.

Bob Hornal, resident geologist for the federal government at Yellowknife, N.W.T., said if preliminary investigations of the ore body bear up under further exploration it could be a "fantastic" find.

During the short time the stock traded it climbed 40 cents to $9.

PROSPECTING FIRM STARTED BY JAPANESE

TOKYO (UPI) — Four Japanese companies will soon set up a firm in Vancouver to prospect for nonferrous metals in Canada, Sumitomo Metal Mining Co. announced today.

Sumitomo said it will put up 52 per cent of the capital of the company to be named Somao Mining Ltd., while the rest will be provided by Marubeni-Iida Co., Ataka and Co., and C. Itoh and Co.

The proposed company will be based in Vancouver and its main business will be to hunt for copper, nickel, lead and zinc resources, the announcement said.

The new company will be capitalized at $400,000.

Exports Improve

OTTAWA (CP) — Export prices improved during the second quarter of 1971 and, seasonal factors aside, Canada's trade balance was almost as good as last year's, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

Exports in April, May and June totalled $4,640 million, giving a surplus of $538 million over imports for the period totalling $4,103 million.

But on a seasonally-adjusted basis, computed to take into account such factors as the unusually late opening of the St. Lawrence seaway system this year, the federal statistics bureau said the trade balance was the equivalent of $611 million. This was about the same as $618 million for the second quarter of last year.

Statistics Canada said exports were 3.1 per cent higher in the first half of 1971 than in the same period last year, while imports rose 4.3 per cent. But in the volume of goods moving across the country's borders, exports were up 4.6 per cent and imports up only four per cent.

Export prices fell as the result of Canada letting its dollar float on international exchange markets starting in June, 1970.

Lower returns were obtained by Canadian exporters through the second half of last year and the first three months of this year. Since then, however, export prices turned upward.

Import prices rose in the third quarter of 1970 and have continued to rise, Statistics Canada said.

FIGURES VARY

There was a $1,199 million merchandise and trade surplus for Canada in the first half of this year. This was down $45 million from a year earlier. Canada had a record commodity trade surplus last year, and an unusual surplus even after bills were paid for non-commodity trade, such as freight and insurance services, and the payment of interest and tourist accounts.

The small change in the commodity trade balance this year was accounted for by a bigger surplus in trade with the United States, Central America and Oceania. There were lower surpluses in trade with European, Asian and African countries, and a higher deficit in trade with South America.

In Canadian exports, gains were made in the shipment of both crude materials and finished end products, while exports of fabricated or semi-finished goods were down. On the import side, Canada bought relatively more fabricated materials and end products.

Exports of passenger cars and chassis rose to $1,135.6 million in six months this year from $1,052.4 million in the first half of last year. Newsprint exports were down to $532 million from $558 million. Petroleum exports were up to $387 million from $327 million, and wheat exports rose to $297 million from $289 million.

$237 million from $205 million and motor vehicle parts imports rose to $947 million from

Petroleum imports rose to $897 million.

REMNANTS OF CAR SHOP TO BE SOLD

MONTREAL (CP) — The remnants of what was to be a Quebec automobile industry will be sold Monday.

Tenders have been called for the purchase of the last seven new Manic sports cars, 10 demonstrator models, accessories and immovables.

The Manic, a small sports car using Renault parts but designed and built in Quebec, was the brainchild of Jacques About three years ago.

UAW Checks Report Japan Cars Dumped

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers, which represents more than 700,000 auto industry workers in the United States, confirmed it is "looking into" reports that Japanese automakers are "dumping" cars on the U.S. market.

Dumping is the practice of selling surplus production cars which command a higher price at home, on a foreign market at much lower prices. It is considered an unfair practice in international trade.

Reports of Japanese "dumping" have surfaced several times over the past two years because of the sensational increase in imports of Japanese cars. That country's two leading makers, Toyota and Nissan, maker of the Datsun, now occupy second and third place behind Volkswagen as the leading imports.

However, the American auto industry has never made any charges against the Japanese.

Building Unions May Face Curbs

By PAUL LONGPRE

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial government is making a three-pronged study aimed at bringing some order to Quebec's chaotic construction industry.

And government sources indicate that one result may be a reduction of the 130,000-man construction labor force because of the apparent inability of the industry to provide an adequate income for persons now working in construction.

A labor department source says Quebec construction workers put in an average work week of 22 hours.

As a result, the government will be faced with deciding whether to reduce the number of construction workers or to institute a bank to which employers and workers would contribute to give the workers a guaranteed annual income, the source said.

In recent years, the construction industry has been hit by a shortage of work projects, irregular income and massive unemployment.

UNIONS DIVIDED

Also dividing the industry is the fact that the workers are represented almost equally by the urban-based Quebec Federation of Labor and the rural-based Confederation of National Trade Unions.

In an effort to "rationalize" the industry, the government established a construction industry committee last June.

Among other things, the 14-member committee will make a monthly inventory of total construction manpower in the 11 regions under its jurisdiction.

In January, 1972, the committee will issue a work permit to every employee currently in possession of a labor department identity card, as well as to all those who have worked in construction in the last 18 months.

The committee also will determine by Jan. 1, 1972, norms for admitting new wage-earners to the industry and, based on these standards, decide on how many wage earners are to be accepted.

The government also established a social benefits committee to study problems related to fringe benefits in the industry.

Both bodies will be headed by the same chairman.

WILL STUDY CONFLICTS

The government also authorized the labor department to study the two principal causes of labor conflicts within the industry: wage instability and freedom of unions.

Beginning Oct. 1, the department will begin a study aimed at seeking a solution to these two problems, which have halted construction projects in the last two years.

Government sources indicate that the recent government action to sort out the problem was spurred, ironically, by legislation late last year which Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer has admitted was unworkable.

The legislation, aimed at guaranteeing job security, required that work permits be issued to construction workers who had worked 1,500 hours during the year or 4,500 in the previous three years.

The measure was boycotted by the QFL which termed the plan a "tremendous bluff." Instead of reducing unemployment, it would enable the government to select who would be out of work in various areas of the province.

The federation said very few workers would be able to meet the qualifications needed for an identification card.

Mr. Cournoyer himself said last March: "Nothing is served by giving work permits to 130,000 laborers when only 60,000 can live decently off construction."

Red Harassment Claim By Chinese-Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker called today for a government investigation into claims of harassment made by Chinese-Canadians since Canadian recognition of the Peoples Republic of China last year.

Mr. Diefenbaker said in an interview that many citizens of Chinese descent have told him of their fears of coercive action because of their anti-Communist sentiments.

He said he received a letter from the Chinese Benevolent Association of Vancouver saying two Chinese-language periodicals—not named—published in Canada have threatened "remnant nationalist elements" with violent action. The association said there has been intimidation by anonymous telephone callers.

"The government should at once investigate the allegations made by the Chinese Benevolent Association," said Mr. Diefenbaker. "This kind of thing can't be tolerated."

The association said in its letter that it wants the government to tell the Chinese embassy here that such actions will not be accepted.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Diefenbaker said the 100,000 Chinese in Canada are overwhelmingly opposed to communism and he thinks there is danger of subversive activity against them by sympathizers of the mainland regime.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 11, 1971 —PAGE 13

Save the Trees!

Shelbourne Residents Irate: 'Where Is It Going to Stop?'

A small group of Shelbourne Street area residents nailed their protest sign to a plane tree this morning.

The group is upset at the removal of all the trees on both sides of the street between Cedar Hill Cross Road and Feltham Road. The street is to be widened to four lanes to handle growing traffic.

Randy Patch, who has lived in the area for 10 years and now studies at the University of B.C., said there are alternative methods. He suggested repaving Cedar Hill Road, Shelbourne and Gordon Head Road.

"There is really no alternative to driving cars at the present, but where is it going to stop? It will be a hot, arid, California 'dream' street.

"My concern right now is that we have a council which is following the same pattern that seems not to be the best pattern in other areas."

●

"Saanich should be sued. It is not necessary at all, I am uptight that they did not do real research and we taxpayers were sold down the river," he said.

He suggested Cedar Hill Road could have been made one-way in one direction and Shelbourne one-way in the other, to avoid widening.

Mrs. W. R. Tapp, 1600 Derby, said she knows the protest is too late to be effective "but maybe it will be a lesson for the future."

Asked why she had not protested earlier, she said others did. "I hadn't realized it was going to happen," she said.

"I can see the point in taking down some trees. But does this make sense? It is supposed to be progress, but I just don't see it. Traffic seems to move perfectly smoothly."

She suggested a bicycle path be built to Mount Douglas Park.

The acting Saanich engineer, John Cowlin, said this morning he sympathizes fully with the protesters.

He said the trees were planted too close to the road and are the type which "heave" roads and sidewalks — which will be built with the widening.

Traffic volumes were increasing and "causing some congestion which is going to get much worse." He pointed out that sewerage construction in Gordon Head will lead to more houses — and thus more people and more cars.

Before the road design was approved, he and public works committee chairman Ald. William Campbell went over the plan very carefully to look at the alternative of saving the trees on the west side, he said.

●

This would involve moving the road over, at a higher cost, retain the problem of "heaving" and bring the road close to residential properties. In addition, some land will have to be bought for bus bays.

Cowlin said new trees were planted aout 10 years ago behind the plane trees. Some had to be removed. They are in the municipal nursery, have grown to about 16 feet and will be replanted.

"So, while in the short run we are taking down some trees, in the long run we will have something just as nice," he said.

Saanich, however, has already taken steps to preserve at least one row of plane trees for half a mile between Kenmore and the park. It has been acquiring a strip of land on the west side behind the trees and when, in the future, four lanes are put in, the west-side trees will form a median strip.

DIARY NOTES

Out of the Dark And Into a Dream

Deary Diary: My ninth day without a cigarette and I do believe I may have the habit licked. There are a lot of bad moments — the first coffee in the morning; starting to write a piece for the paper; coming out of the lake from a swim, etc. But if I felt any better, physically, I couldn't stand it.

I owe it all to the paperback, "The Smoke Watchers' How-to-Quit Book." The whole complicated ritualistic rigmarole of the Smoke Watchers' method with its self-analysis, paperwork, and therapy seemed to me so downright silly I felt impelled to demonstrate that the way to quit is to just bloody well quit. What Smoke Watchers' promises in 26 weeks I did in 26 seconds.

And, by coincidence, reading today some lines by the Globe and Mail's Melinda McCracken that amused me:

jack scott

"You can always stop smoking and tap a magic source of health that will give you extra mileage, like the extra gallon of gas in a Volks when the gauge reads empty. It's not that hard to throw smoking overboard. You just focus the willpower you use for getting things done on your Habit and it will disappear. You think more clearly. Feel freer. Things taste better. You become aware of a lot of little things you missed as a nicotine freak . . . The feeling of freedom is so unfamiliar one hardly knows how to cope with it. It's enough to make you light up immediately."

Dear Diary: A wonderful man at Nancy's party last night, name of Edgar Stone, visiting from Edmonton, the only man I ever met in my life who has made a hobby of dreaming. He's in a class by himself both in the quality of the dreams he enjoys and in his knowledge of the stuff they're made of.

"For as long as I can remember long before the process was developed in films," Edgar told me, "I have been dreaming in CinemaScope. I have what you might call the wide screen or wall-to-wall dream. They are in full, glorious color. Sometimes they're in the form of serial stories. If I've enjoyed a particular story I can almost count on it to be continued in my next dream. As a matter of fact, I enjoy them all, since I never dream anything except gay, happy dreams."

Everyone expressed envy at this and my wife, a virtuoso dreamer in her own right, mentioned a recent dream in which she saw herself let loose in an exclusive British import shop on Government where she'd spent hours trying on clothes. She could remember vividly, she claimed, every single item of apparel she tried on.

"Not at all unusual," Edgar assured her. "The studies show that women sleep more lightly and dream more intensely and also that nearly twice as many women as men remember their dreams with total recall."

A man at the party who had suffered at one time from insomnia told us his story. Counting sheep hadn't worked, he said, and so, to slow his mind to idling speed, he had taken to playing golf mentally. He would lie in bed imagining himself playing a certain links and this would take his mind off the crowded worries that normally kept him awake. But the remarkable thing, he said, was that when sleep came he would very often continue the game in his dreams, making fantastic holes-in-one, sinking 80-foot putts and so on.

"That would be a form of the controlled dream," Edgar told us. "There are a great many cases in the books of intellectuals who were able to dream in what you might call a premeditated way. One was Robert Louis Stevenson. Very often when he was unable to work out the plot of a novel he would take it to bed with him and dream the solution. I'm fortunate enough to have this ability myself," he added. "Occasionally, when I'm in the mood I may dream a costume piece or a travelogue, though generally I find it more rewarding to be surprised."

Someone asked him how he'd happened to accumulate this sort of off-beat information and Edgar explained that, having discovered his talent for dreaming, he had acquired a number of texts on the subject. Some things most people don't know:

● The strength of the dream image far exceeds that of the imagination while awake which accounts for the fact that a nightmare may be more terrifying than any actual experience.

● Unpleasant dreams are caused entirely by physical discomfort. Researchers were able to cause some subjects to dream of murder simply by holding them in an uncomfortable position. Dreams of crashing in airplanes have been related directly to indigestion.

● Dreams begin as early as the age of four months and continue throughout life except that after the age of 65 they are more infrequent and "weakly-plotted."

● The popular idea that we dream with extreme rapidity isn't true. Some tested dream sequences have been good for an entire night's sleep and it was likely that my wife's dream of trying on clothing may have lasted for upwards of two hours.

Why would a fellow get so interested in dreams, so keen to anticipate them each night in living color? The answer simply is that Edgar Stone, now 53 years of age, has been blind since he was 10.

Island Ferries Going Full Out And Then Some

Island ferries were operating at more than full capacity at the height of the tourist season today, with delays of up to a full day reported by one line.

More people were coming to the island than leaving it on the B.C. Ferries Tsawwassen-Swartz Bay run.

Delays of two to three hours were reported by the terminal agent at Tsawwassen. There were no overloads at Swartz Bay and ships were running either on time or 10 to 15 minutes late.

The Princess Marguerite to Seattle was booked a full day ahead for cars today, with incoming traffic slightly heavier than that leaving the island.

Black Ball Ferries was turning away cars as much as three hours before sailing times for the line's four ferries to Port Angeles. Black Ball operated an extra ferry overnight Monday and Tuesday, but reports last night's ship was less than full.

PLUCKED FOUR FROM SEA

Heroic Rescuer Gets Silver Medal

Percy Brown, the Becher Bay marina operator who risked his life March 13, 1971, to pluck four people from the storm-tossed waters off Beechey Head, will receive the Royal Canadian Humane Association's second highest award.

The association announced today that Brown will be awarded a silver medal in recognition of his bravery.

Single-handed, in a 12-foot wooden boat that later piled up on the rocks, Brown rescued Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wick and Mr. and Mrs. John Parris after the 40-foot troller Janola capsized.

Parris and Mrs. Wick died.

Told of the award today, Brown said he was pleased. "But I don't really worry about medals. It's the work we're doing that counts."

A long-time advocate for better marine rescue facilties in his area, Brown led a one-man campaign after the March 13 accident and raised enough money to buy a rescue boat.

The provincial government, recognizing Brown's services and the area's needs, contributed $500.

Brown patrols the waters daily when pleasure boats are out. On Tuesday he towed a boat in trouble to Sooke harbor.

Brown was recommended for the medal by the Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Esquimalt and Rear-Admiral Richard Leir, commander maritime command Pacific.

Major Gordon Bissell, the centre's commanding officer, said today the award was "good news."

"We're delighted to hear that the society has seen fit to confer this honor on Mr. Brown in recognition of his heroic action," he said.

A silver medal will be awarded to Jack Joris of Kerford, Ont., who saved two persons from a blazing service station after a truck loaded with barbecue-lighting fluid crashed into it Aug. 27, 1970.

Two Esquimalt youths have also been honored by the association.

Tom Bates, 15, of 466 Sturdee, and Rick Crothers, 19, of 481 Sturdee, will receive bronze medals for rescuing four persons after their boat overturned Feb. 14.

Two North Vancouver men are also among the bronze medal recipients. They are Carl Agin, who rescued a boy from a burning house Sept. 22, 1970, and Richard Dergousoff, who saved a child from a burning house Jan. 15.

The association awarded three more bronze medals, 10 testimonial parchments and 17 certificates of merit.

Letter from Queen 'Presumed Lost'

A letter from Queen Victoria to Charles Ross, Victoria pioneer, must be presumed lost, Tacoma lawyer A'Lan Hutchison said today in a telephone interview.

The letter was willed to the provincial archives by Maud Wren, Ross's great-granddaughter, who died near Tacoma in 1970.

Ross built Fort Victoria for the Hudson's Bay Company. The letter was reputed to have told him to name the place Fort Albert.

Before she died, Miss Wren said she had loaned the letter to a friend, Mrs. Edith Sokolik. Hutchison, who is executor of Miss Wren's estate, visited Mrs. Sokolik Tuesday but did not find the letter.

Mrs. Sokolik told me she had heard of the letter but never saw it."

Discovery of the letter could have helped historians settle a dispute over the fort's first name.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you tell me the name of the theatre that was situated on Douglas between Fort and View many years ago, when it was opened, and when it was closed?—J.S.

A. It was called the Victoria and the official opening took place Oct. 10, 1885; the cornerstone was laid March 31 of that year by Robert Dunsmuir and Mayor R. P. Rithet. On Oct. 26, 1910, fire swept the adjoining Driard House. The Spencer brothers bought the hotel and the Victoria for a reported $370,000 and changed them into what is now Eaton's department store.

AS AN ANGLER, I DISAPprove in theory of that West Coast phenomenon known as the salmon derby, and could hold forth with a fair degree of heat on the commercialization of what should be pure sport. But as a fisherman who wouldn't in the least mind boating a money-fish, I've never had the slightest difficulty in putting my scruples aside when a derby beckons.

Not that these yieldings to the gambler's urge have paid off. The only fish we ever snared on a derby day was a spawned steelhead that took a languid pass at my wife's cherished lucky plug. It was a melancholy creature, all big head and skinny body, and we freed it in hopes that it would find its way to less dangerous wyters.

The salmon derby, an import from the American Northwest, started small. A fish-and-game club would persuade a few merchants into donating prizes. Then the guys would fish for them, assisted by any outsider who cared to buy an entry ticket.

They were innocent affairs, unmarred by larceny or attempts at the same. Those came later, as derbies that had started small developed into hook-and-line brannigans with cars and boats offered as bait.

I went to my first such derby as a non-participant. My job was to observe the proceedings and help out when it came time to announce the prize-winners. It was an amazing experience for me, and a shattering one for the mild-mannered outdoors writer who had been dragooned into the judging.

As more and more salmon were brought in to be weighed, a kind of gold-rush fever settled upon the scene.

On examination, one spring salmon entered was found to weigh more than its length and girth warranted. A post mortem revealed that it had been ballasted with lead sinkers.

Arguments broke out. Some of the heartier contestants, well-ballasted themselves with spirituous liquors, began to cut up rough.

My friend the outdoors writer got pushed from behind, skidded on a stray fish, and toppled off the weigh-in float into the saltchuck.

Plainly, the lure of gold or its equivalent had worked some changes on the contemplative sport.

Today's derbies are much better organized and policed.

The rewards for a winning catch are far greater, and the sharp operator who might be minded to shoot for the loot with a doctored salmon or one not hooked in fair competition is most unlikely to get away with his swindle.

From merely big, the major derbies have swelled to colossal proportions.

The multi-sponsored British Columbia fish-in coming up next weekend is expected to lure at least 12,000 fishermen in 4200 boats ranging from dinghies to cruisers.

The contestant who draws out leviathan with a hook stands to pouch a first prize of $25,000.

Most Canadian provinces and upwards of 20 American states including Hawaii will be represented on 400 square miles of salmon-frequented water north and south of Vancouver. Other hopeful fishermen will be checking in from Japan, Australia, Brazil, Switzerland, Peru, Holland, Mexico and Italy.

The salmon derby has become big business, made so in part by the fact that it remains an event in which skill takes second place to bull luck. But the smaller derby for lesser prizes hasn't vanished from our scene. I like that kind better, and before the season's done, we'll wet our lines in at least one such.

Not in expectation of winning anything. Nothing would surprise us more. Still, there's always that chance — and though angling purists may frown, it does lend an edge to a day on the water.

BILL WALKER

Penny May is back, and glad of it. And no, she doesn't particularly want to return to Colombia. Not just yet, at any rate. If results were a "little disappointing," other conditions were, at best, deplorable, crowded, dirty and, at times, "sort of ugly."

The Pan-American Games themselves were "just great," the track facilities excellent, and her biggest thrill until she was to get two more.

Those came with her two medals—a silver in the pentathlon, and a bronze in the 100-metre hurdles.

And if she is not unhappy with that result, she still feels that she wasn't at her peak.

Penny is Victoria's only medal winner at Cali, site of the Games, is 19 years of age, and an education student at the University of Victoria.

"I guess I should have done better," she said Tuesday, shortly after a workout at Uvic. Yes, she's in training again. "But I'm also pleased to have done as well as I did. I was just tired after being there for a few days. On the Wednesday before the hurdles race, I was running really great. But I guess that was too much, and I may have psyched myself out of it.

"Or maybe, I was just scared," she added.

"After all it was my first big championship. When I went to Tokyo before, I wasn't very good. "And, this time . . . well . . now I've got a lot of work to do."

The pentathlon turned out to be strictly a test between two Canadians. Debbie Van Kiebebelt was first and Penny second. This was also a trifle disappointing. "I did better in everything in Toronto," she recalled.

●

"We were living 14 to a room," she said, "with seven bunk beds squashed into a quite tiny place.

"There were no cupboards, and we had to get lockers on another floor.

"It was just that nothing was quite ready, or finished.

"There were six sections in each wing, 84 people to a section, and only one bathroom.

"That's when you had to be really quick," she laughed.

"The showers weren't showers, no spray; the water was cold, and it came out of a hose.

"The places were dirty too, by our standards. There was mud or dirt everywhere, and the floors were just filthy.

"When they cleaned up, which they did every day, it mostly consisted of throwing a bucket of dirty water at the wall, and then swishing it around.

"When it dried, the mud was still there.

"There were lots of insects. When I first saw my bunk with the white sheets, it was covered with bugs. Little flies were everywhere, and one day as the girls were walking down the hall, a rat ran out of the washroom. Rats had been seen before by some of the others.

"Then there was a bat in one of the rooms one night.

"The food was good enough, mostly American, and cooked well. But it was short on variety, as is the case in cafeteria style." And no, she wasn't sick, although dysentery was commonplace in the camp. "We didn't touch the water. We drank soft drinks, juices or milk"

●

On the political front, there were defections, riots in the stands, guards on the buses, one kidnapping a week, and Cubans mostly going about with chips on their shoulders.

Besides, there was a suicide, right in the Games village.

Six Cubans allegedly defected from the Games, and it is believed that one Cuban official, Amingo Gomez, was sympathetic to their cause.

He was a Cuban trainer, and he made his exit from five storeys up, right in the Games village.

It was no accident. He had been beaten. He jumped. And he left seven children.

"They just threw him in the back of a car," said Penny.

"Another time," said Penny, "a photographer was beaten up — we kept getting pushed away from the incident, and there also was a full-scale riot in the stands. It was ugly.

(News dispatches laid the riot blame to Cuban police, 150 strong, who had accompanied the Cuban team. There also was a report that star Cuban sprinter Pablo Montez had been beaten for giving assistance to the defectors.)

Penny saw some of the country. "It was sort of pretty, I guess, but the only place I have ever seen where there is no middle class. There were the super rich, in their fabulous mansions, and the very poor, in their mud huts. It was a really strange contrast"

Weather was fine, and warm, "although it may be hotter here (in Victoria)" and the nights were cool enough.

"I had no trouble sleeping, although some did," said Penny.

●

Penny also got to compete in an unadvertised special, and unreported as well.

"Debbie and I got on the relay team," she said, "at the last minute.

"It wasn't until that morning that we heard we would be running, and we had to slip away from the pentathlon events, in which we were competing, to practice the handoffs

"Patti Loverock had come down with shin splints. She didn't even run in the 100, and Joyce Sadowick couldn't make it. So Debbie and I got called. We finished fourth, Stephanie Berto, running the anchor leg, and just missing by two-tenths of a second in catching the third-place Colombian team."

But now it's back to business. Penny worked out on Monday night, her first day home, was back at the grind Tuesday, and has a two-a-day program for this week.

Because ahead are the Western Canadian championships at Vancouver on Saturday, the Canadian championships at Winnipeg on Aug. 21, a dual meet in Italy, another in Sicily, and then hopefully, an Olympic preview in Munich, in September.

As Penny said:

"I've got lots to do."

DOUBLE MEDALLIST at Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia, Victoria's Penny May shows off her awards between workouts at University of Victoria's Centennial Stadium Tuesday. Penny won silver medal in pentathlon, and bronze in the 100-metre hurdles. She also was a member of Canada's 400-metre relay team which finished fourth. See Bill Walker's column.

Canadian Esquestrians Add to Medal Harvest

Dressage Team Gets Gold As Games at Halfway Mark

CALI, Colombia (CP)—Pretty Christilot Hanson of Sharon, Ont., who has been putting horses through their paces since she was 10, aimed for her second gold medal of the Pan-American Games today as the spotlight shifted momentarily from the poolside to the equestrian show ring.

The 24-year-old Indonesian-born rider was drawn first for the ride-off against two Chileans in the individual dressage event with a gold medal at stake.

Her first-place performance Tuesday helped the Canadian equestrians win the team dressage gold by a margin of 230 points. It was Canada's first Pan-Am gold ever in dressage. Miss Hanson won a third-place individual bronze in dressage in the 1967 Games at Winnipeg.

The Canadian equestrian team's effort so far has produced two team gold and individual silver and bronze in the four competitions completed, with two left.

The Games are drawing to a close with half the 20-sport program completed. The 29-event swimming program winds up tonight with four finals on tap and the Canadian girls needing just one gold to share the team title with the United States.

The American girls won two swimming gold Tuesday night to tie the Canadians at six gold each. The only women's events left on the program are the two freestyle races over the 100- and 800-metre distances. Canada's top-rated freestyler, Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., watched the wake of American winners in the 200 and 400 freestyle, winning silver and bronze. Her gold came in the 400 medley relay.

Angela won her fourth medal, another silver, swimming the anchor leg of the 400 freestyle relay final Tuesay night. The Canadian girls were second as a young U.S. team won the race with a clocking of 4:04.2, bettering the Games record by four-tenths of a second.

MacDonald, Smith Collect Bronze

Other Canadian medals came in two butterfly events. Byron MacDonald, a naturalized Canadian living in Glenview, Ill., was a bronze medallist in the men's 100-metre race, won by Frank Heckl, the American star of the meet with a total of four gold. Sue Smith of Edmonton took a bronze in the women's 200-metre final, where the winner, Lynn Colella, did 2:23.1, clipping 2.4 seconds off the Games mark.

Outsider Pat Miles clocked another Games record in winning the men's 1,500 metres for the U.S., with Ron Jacks of Vancouver sixth. Miles swam the gruelling race in 16 minutes 32 seconds, almost 15 seconds under the Games standard. Jacks clocked 17:07.6.

The four Canadian medals Tuesday brought the team's total after 11 days of competition to 74: 17 gold, 18 silver and 39 bronze.

The team is third in the medal standing and can't catch second-place Cuba which has 26 gold. The Cubans have shown tremendous improvement since the Winnipeg competition when they finished fifth with eight gold.

But the 17 Canadian gold medals bettered by five the total gold won in Winnipeg and the team has a chance of equalling or passing the all-time Canadian high in international competition—20 gold won in the first British Empire Games at Hamilton, Ont., in 1930.

Canada came close to doing just that in the Commonwealth Games at Edinburgh last year when the squad won 18 gold.

Canuck Riders Always Posted First

Just as it got pretty tiresome to hear the Star Spangled Banner played 120 times in Winnipeg, the South Americans have heard it here 96 times for U.S. gold medals. But the Americans are not going to come close to their 120-gold total of 1967.

Here, the equestrian team's showing in the last three days of the Games looms large in the over-all Canadian picture. The Prix de Nations team jumping is scheduled Friday just before the closing ceremonies.

Canadian officials were unhappy with the way the Canadian equestrians have been posted first in riding order for every event so far.

No rider likes to go first. In judgment competition such as dressage, the judges usually award lower points to the first rider to allow room for higher points to a better performer who might follow.

Golden Chance for Victoria's Hryb

Despite going first, Miss Hanson's ride stood up as the best of the day as she scored 1,832 points riding her 10-year-old chestnut gelding Armagnac.

Cindy Neale of King City, riding Alexandra, had 1,538 and Zoltan Sztehlo of Calgary, on Virtuoso, scored 1,515.

Miss Hanson went into the ride-off for the individual gold against Chilean riders Antonio Piraino on Salitre and Roberto Gomez on Palermo. The two Chileans, in helping give their country the silver team medal, scored 1,617 and 1,682 respectively.

Canada totalled 4,885 points, Chile 4,655 and third-place Colombia 4,233.

Canada's wrestling team meanwhile has a chance for medals in at least one class — middleweight. Taras Hryb, 19-year-old Canadian champion from Victoria, will face off against two others tonight for the gold medal. Hryb, a native of Timmins, Ont., won two matches Tuesday to reach the final round.

The far-from-folksy rivalry between the U.S. and Cuba will be accented tonight when the two countries, both with perfect 4-0 records, clash for the water polo gold medal. Canada is out of the running after losing to Mexico 5-2 Tuesday for its fourth loss. Dave Hart and George Steplock of Hamilton, Ont., scored the Canadian goals.

The Canadian baseball team with a 4-4 record wound up fourth as Cuba won gold, the U.S. silver and Colombia bronze medals. Cuba won all its eight games, the U.S., was 6-2 and Colombia and Canada had identical records. But Columbia defeated Canada and took the bronze on that basis.

Optimist Spurt Beats Oregon

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Victoria Evening Optimists scored three runs in the seventh inning to defeat Oregon, 4-2, here Tuesday in an opening-round game of the rain-delayed Pacific Regional Babe Ruth 15-year-old baseball tournament.

Only one of four scheduled games was played Monday, Washington downing Wyoming, 6-2. State-champion West Alaska edged Idaho, 3-2, in the first game Tuesday and will take on the Washington team from Everett in the second round of the eight - team, double - knockout tournament.

Evening Optimists will play East Anchorage tonight. The host club defeated Montana 9-0 Tuesday.

After Oregon scored a run in the first inning, Victoria tied it in the third when Wayne Krimmer singled, stole second and scored on two passed balls.

Ron James started Optimists' three-run rally in the seventh with a leadoff base on balls. After a sacrifice bunt by Bob Wilson and Rick Turcotte's strikeout, Krimmer worked losing-pitcher Russ Norris for his only other base on balls. Both runners came home on Barry McLachlin's double. A bad throw from third base to second went into the outfield and McLachlin raced home with the final run for Victoria.

COOL SHARP

Victoria pitcher Bob Cool struck out nine batters and gave up two bases on balls.

He got into last-inning difficulties when an error and a wild pitch put a runner on second base with one out. The right-hander forced the next batter to ground out for the second out, but Mario Kroo singled to drive in Oregon's final run. Cool struck out the next batter to end the game.

Wrestling Results

The duo of McKenzie and Hayes whipped Marconi and Sky Lo in a mixed tag team wrestling match at Memorial Arena Tuesday. In the main event, Koloff defeated Higuchi and Little Bear won a decision from McTavish. Brutus beat Adams in the midget match.

Three Champions Alive in Seniors

Close and keen competition is expected throughout the 49th annual Pacific North West Seniors Golf Association tournament as three of five former champions advanced in the first match-play round at Victoria Golf Club Tuesday.

Bill Thompson, defending champion from the host club, scored a 7 and 6 victory over Berry Wright of Seattle and met former champion Harry Givan also of Seattle, in today's quarter-finals.

Givan, who advanced with a 3 and 2 win over Stewart Cooper of Vancouver, lost the final to Thompson last year.

Meanwhile, two former titleholders, Bill Blakely of Portland and Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria, fought it out Tuesday with Blakely scoring a 1-up victory.

Gordon Millin of Royal Colwood defeated former champion Dr. Mel Aspray of Spokane, on the 19th hole Tuesday and met Pete McIntyre of Victoria in an all-lefthanders match today. McIntyre slipped by Bruce Shorts, 2 up.

Max Hunter of Olympia downed Vancouver's Jack Richardson, 3 and 2, to advance to the quarter-finals. Hunter, who shared medalist honors with Givan and Blakely, met Dr. Ole Jensen of Seattle today. Dr. Jensen won 5 and 4 over George Black of Portland.

Playoffs Next Step In McGinnis League

Winning pitcher Jack Lundquist broke a seventh-inning 3-3 deadlock when he scored on a passed ball. He reached base on an error to loser Wade Burns and advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt by George Farrell before the passed ball.

League-champion Langfords will open a best-of-five semi-final series against Century Inn Thursday night. A second series between Bell's Men's Wear and Colwood will begin Friday night.

GORGE VALE ACE . . . . . IN SUB-PAR FORM

Mick Sparks B.C. to Team Triumph

(Times News Services)

OAKFIELD, N.S. — Dave Mick, of Victoria, a 20-year-old just out of junior golf ranks, fired a sparkling three-under-par 70 Tuesday to lead British Columbia to the Winningdon Cup team championship.

Mick, playing on his first Willingdon Cup team, finished the two-day, 36-hole event with a 142, lowest in the 40-golfer field. His 70 was also the lowest individual round.

Team-mate Burt Ticehurst of Vancouver credited the Gorge Vale ace with the team victory. "We came away with the best possible team," Ticehurst said. "Mick played beautiful. I think he made the difference."

The next contest for the Victoria shotmaker is the Canadian Amateur. Some 164 golfers were to start the 72-hole event today. It finishes Saturday.

Ticehurst shot a one-under 72 Tuesday and finished with a 144 second best in the tournament.

Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver contributed a 148 on rounds of 75 and 73 while John Russell of Vancouver added rounds of 76 and 75 for a 151.

Ontario had three of the four players that won the 1970 Willingdon Cup with them again this year. But the team ran into trouble.

Nick Weslock of Burlington, a four-time Canadian Amateur champion, blew to a 76 Tuesday. He had a 71 in the opening round and finished the event with a 147, one stroke over par.

"I had bad lies on three holes," Weslock said after the round. "Each of them cost me. Then I lacked concentration. I just lapsed."

Gary Cowan of Kitchener, also a former Canadian Amateur champion, had a two-under 71 Tuesday. But coupled with his troublesome 75 in the opening round, he finished with a 146.

Stu Hamilton of Brampton had a second-round 73 and finished with a 150 while Kelly Roberts of London contributed a 151 on rounds of 76 and 75. Roberts was the only new member of the Ontario team this year.

Alberta finished with a 606 in third place, displacing Nova Scotia which had third place after the first round. Nova Scotia was fourth with 609, six strokes better than Quebec.

Ray Buys a Winner Benny's Cost: $40

By BILL WALKER

There's always something interesting at the races.

Take Tuesday at Sandown Park for instance in the sixth day of the current mixed Quarter Horse and Thoroughbred meeting.

A horse that went for $40 last fall broke his maiden; Another one ran away;

It all started in the very first race.

Furious Benny, a four-year-old bay gelding who had never done anything to distinguish himself until a few days ago, turned up a winner.

Matter of fact, until Furious Benny finished second on August 3, he had never been better than last!

But then this is new year, and Furious Benny has a new owner.

COST $40

Ray Barron paid the princely sum of $40 for him last year. This season he has a win and a second to show for it.

That's performance!

But more amazing is that Furious Benny went off at 3-5 and once was 1-5 on the board.

Then there was Call for Blue, running in the same race.

Caught in a traffic jam going down the back side, Call for Blue was eased back, and then unceremoniously dumped his jockey Kevin Furlong, flat on his backside and near the quarter pole.

LEAVES TRACK

Furlong was uninjured, but Call for Blue wasn't through. He did another turn around the track, then ducked up the chute on the far side and headed for the highway.

Finally, he was headed off (for perhaps he took one look at the ferry traffic, and decided to stay around a few days longer.)

It was just after the fourth race when a plea for help came.

A young woman arrived at the press tent and said "there's a boy up in the tower and crying his eyes out."

Times reporter Ernie Fedoruk sped to the rescue, raced up the ladder, and into the tower on the clubhouse turn.

A young boy had climbed up earlier, only to have the trap door jam shut behind him. And he couldn't get out. Thus the tears.

KAREN WINS

Then in the eighth race came stage two of Karen Campbell's racing history. The girl jockey scored her second win.

This may not be unusual in itself, but for Miss Campbell it was.

Because it came on the very same four-year-old chestnut gelding Rim Ram on which she had scored her first win, just one week earlier and in the same final race of the day's card.

In between these happenings, O'Leary, making his first start, was a handy winner of the second, and paid $5.30; Vill Ridge ($6.80) took the third; Mahina ($3.20) was a handy winner of the featured Harknett Fuel Invitational in the seventh, and Shining Vessel ($6.10) won the sixth.

Those were the public choices.

HEALTHY EXACTO

In the fourth, Count Pincio (the Times longshot of the day) won almost as he pleased, unusual indeed for a five-year-old maiden, and paid $16.90. The exacto to Bay Bullet, an even greater surprise, was a healthy $152.80.

Aldee Bar Tack, tripped down in front in the Quarter Horse Allowance in the fifth, and returned $19.30. The exacto to Nevada Cowgirl was worth $48.20.

Furlong, who was thrown by Call for Blue, in the first, was the day's riding leader with two wins, Aldee Bar Tack and Mahina.

Turner, Bawlf Top Pentathlon

Polz Keeps Cool As Hotelmen Win

Behind the steady pitching of Bill Polz, Strathcona Hotel upset Seaboard Construction 3-0, at Central Park Tuesday night to take the opening game in a best-of-five Victoria Major Men's Softball League semi-final.

Wayne King's seventh-inning triple scored Derek Stone and the Hotelmen's third run, but the winning run came across in the first frame when shortstop Jim Moody scored on Roy St. Denis' single.

The teams meet in the second game of their series Thursday at 6:45 p.m. at Central.

New-Esk Lawrence Faces Former Mates

EDMONTON (CP) — Quarterback Larry Lawrence has signed with Edmonton Eskimos and probably will see action against his former team, Calgary Stampeders, in tonight's Western Football Conference game, the Eskimos said Tuesday.

The Eskimos cut second-year quarterback Rusty Clark to make room for the 22-year-old University of Iowa graduate.

Lawrence played for the Stampeders last year, but was cut after the pre-season games this year when Calgary decided to keep rookie quarterback Jim Lindsey from Abilene Christian in Texas.

Tonight's Calgary at Edmonton game will be telecast on Channel 8 starting at 8 p.m.

Lawrence then had a five-day tryout with British Columbia Lions and was cut. He was picked up by the Eskimos, winners of one game and losers of two so far this season, and has had five workouts with the team.

It is speculated that head coach Ray Jauch decided to keep Lawrence around because of his familiarity with the Stampeder defences, but another factor may be the unimpressive showing of No. 1 quarterback Don Trull in the Eskimos' first three games.

In an Eastern Conference game tonight, Ottawa Rough Riders are at home to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

MAIN HOPE of Victoria victory in prestigious International Drivers Challenge super modified racing series is Roy Smith. He swept Canadian-American Modified Racing Association card at Vernon last weekend, is main threat to strong U.S. contingent entered in Challenge series. First of five races will be held tonight at Western Speedway, starting at 7 p.m.

MARATHON WINNER

ROBERVAL, Que. (CP) — Horacio Iglesias of Argentina won the 17th Lake St. John marathon swim for the fourth time Saturday, covering the 25 miles between Peribonka and Roberval in eight hours and 39 minutes. Iglesias won a total of $4,100.

Women's Tourney Under Way

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hot, sunny weather and a challenging, mountain-slope course will try the talents of most of the country's top women golfers in the Canadian amateur women's championships here today through Saturday.

Among the more than 100 entrants in the individual and interprovincial team championships are nine of the Canadian Ladies Golf Association's top 10, including defending champion Gail Moore of Vancouver, Marlene Streit of Fonthill, Ont., Joselyne Bourrassa of Shawinigan, Que., and Barbara Turnbull of Saskatoon. These four comprised Canada's team to the world championships in Spain last year.

The entry list is limited to 120 players with the lowest handicaps, plus members of the provincial teams whose scores on the first two days of medal play count in the contest. The field will be cut to 70 after 36 holes.

Killebrew Unloads Home Run No. 500

By The Associated Press

Killebrew snapped a long dry spell with his 500th career home run and then added another for good measure Tuesday night, but it wasn't enough for Minnesota and the Orioles overtook the Twins 4-3 in 10 innings.

McDowell, absent in a contract dispute since July 31, returned to Cleveland and combined with two relievers for a six-hitter, as the Indians beat the White Sox 4-1.

In other American League action Tuesday, Detroit Tigers walloped Milwaukee Brewers 12-3, California Angels stopped New York Yankees 7-6, Kansas City Royals swept a double-header from Washington Senators 9-2 and 3-1, and Oakland Athletics took a pair from Boston Red Sox 6-5 and 7-5.

Killebrew became the 10th man in major league history to reach 500 career homers when he unloaded on Baltimore left-hander Mike Cuellar in the first inning.

He had No. 499 on July 25.

He unloaded on Cuellar again in the sixth inning, tying the score at 3-3, where it stayed until the 10th when Merv Rettenmund broke the tie with a Baltimore homer, giving the Birds and Cuellar, the victory.

"They don't matter," said Killebrew of his homers, "if you don't win."

McDowell, making his first start since July 27, remembered to win his game. The tall left-hander hurled six shutout innings before leaving the game and Alan Foster and Phil Hennigan finished up, nailing down Sudden Sam's 11th victory of the season.

ALLOWS FOUR HITS

McDowell allowed four hits, struck out seven and walked two as he beat Chicago for the third straight time.

Dick McAuliffe, Norm Cash and Bill Freehan drove in three runs apiece, leading Detroit to its romp over Milwaukee.

McAuliffe contributed a triple and homer and Freehan and Cash also homered as Joe Coleman, 13-6, coasted to his sixth consecutive victory.

Freehan's homer—his 17th of the season—gave him four in the last two games.

Gene Tenace's two-out single in the ninth inning drove in Oakland's winning run in the first game of the doubleheader at Boston. Tommy Davis and Dick Green smacked homers for the Athletics.

In the second game, Oakland used home runs by Sal Bando, Reggie Jackson and Dave Duncan to beat the Sox again. Jim (Mudcat) Grant, acquired from Pittsburgh Monday, made his first appearance for the Athletics and saved the victory for John Odom.

Juan Marichal pitched a brilliant two-hitter as San Francisco Giants edged Montreal Expos 1-0 Tuesday.

In other National League games, Los Angeles Dodgers downed Philadelphia Phillies 6-1; Atlanta Braves topped St. Louis Cardinals, 2-1; Houston Astros nipped Cincinnati Reds 3-2, New York Mets trimmed San Diego Padres 6-4, and Chicago Cubs edged Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1.

Marichal, the enigmatic veteran Giants' right-hander, had started the season with 203 victories and 98 losses. He also led active pitchers in shutouts with 46 and was third on the all-time earned-run-average list with a 2.68 mark, behind only Walter Johnson's 2.37 and Grover Cleveland Alexander's 2.56.

This was despite the worst season of his 11-year San Francisco career, when he won only 12 and lost 10 in 1970 and his ERA soared to 4.11.

This season, Marichal appeared to have overcome the illness that plagued him last year, as he got off winging with a 10-4 record through June 23.

Then he lost four in a row before blanking the Expos for his first victory in seven weeks.

Marichal walked three and struck out eight in helping the Giants preserve their 4½-game lead over Los Angeles in the National League West Division.

No Time for Lunch At Tryout Session

Boys planning to attend a baseball tryout camp Thursday at Topaz Park won't be making a mistake if they stow away hearty breakfasts before reporting for the one-day session.

Staged by Cincinnati Reds, last year's National League champions, the camp will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m., without a break for lunch.

First of four tryout sessions scheduled in B.C. by the Reds, the Topaz Park outing will be open to all boys from 15 to 21 years. No pre-registration is required to attend the camp, which will be directed by Reno Debendetti, Cincinnati's west coast scouting supervisor. Boys need only report at the camp by 9 a.m. with their shoes, gloves and uniforms.

Although organized baseball rules prohibit signing any boy who has not reached his 17th birthday, the Reds are anxious to watch younger players in action.

"This is the first time our organization has held tryout camps in Canada," explained scout Murray Zuk, "and we expect to see prospects who will make us want to come back for a second look.

"Also, we think Canadian boys will benefit from learning what professional clubs want in a ballplayer."

The Reds will stage another tryout camp Friday at Vancouver's Capilano Stadium. In order to accommodate players who have summer jobs, that session will start at 5 p.m.

LONE BETTOR COLLECTS $34,913

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — One race fan collected $34,913.60 on a $2 big exacta wager at Charles Town Race Track Monday night, the third largest payoff in four years of West Virginia big exacta wagering.

Jennifer Rolland, a 20-year-old Maryland jockey, rode Mr. W. Harrison to a $70 upset victory in the fifth race. Herr Schulz finished second, paying $6.80.

A track spokesman said 57 fans survived the first half, but only the unidentified winner picked Glad Betty to win the sixth at $12.80 and Plym Bun second at $6.80.

Brice Supplies Greaves' Spark

Greaves Movers, aided by the hitting and pitching of Les Brice, clinched the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League championship Tuesday night with a 4-3 win over Farmer Construction at Royal Athletic Park.

Brice scattered nine hits in his winning mound performance, and scored two runs, including the winner. Bob Bowles drove in three of Greaves' runs, going two-for-three at the plate, including a double.

Rookie George Pakos went two-for-three for Farmers and drove in two runs with a first-inning double.

The game was the final league contest for the Movers. Brice received most-valuable-player honors while leading the Victoria Senior All Stars to the B.C. championship in Vancouver at the weekend.

Tillicums, Cablevision Win Openers

Tillicum Athletic Club and Cablevision scored opening game victories Tuesday night in the best-of-three Victoria Senior Women's Softball League semi-finals.

Wendy Granewall slammed a seventh-inning home run to lift Cablevision to a 6-5 victory over Westendale Constructionettes at Lochside Park while Tillicums handed Esquimalt a 12-6 defeat at Beacon Hill Park.

CUBANS HOLD CANADIAN ATHLETE

IT STARTED AS PRANK

Souvenir-Hunter Touches Off Games Uproar

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Little Lester Wong was just standing there beside a restaurant chatting with a Cuban fencer.

It was past midnight Tuesday night and Wong was below the flag stand which contains the flags of the countries competing in the Games.

An unidentified Canadian athlete came up and asked which was the Cuban flag. Wong said he didn't know but his friend promptly pointed to his national symbol.

The unidentified Canadian went after the flag in what most observers report was an attempt to collect a souvenir.

After that the reports become a little blurry but there was a fight and pretty soon Wong, who apparently was just standing there trying to mind his own business, was the business of many people.

Top Canadian, Cuban and United States officials at the Games were awakened in an effort to get Wong back—he was taken hostage by the Cubans but released unhurt shortly after.

Some of the aftermath was this:

● A U.S. athlete had to walk around with dark glasses because he was cut above and below the right eye.

● Top U.S. officials demanded an apology from Cuba, saying their athlete, James P. Culhane, a 28-year-old gymnast, had been attacked by a group of Cubans while also trying to take a flag as a souvenir.

● Cuba got their flag back but it had a three-inch tear in it.

● Wong went sightseeing.

Bob Osborne of Vancouver, the Canadian chef de mission, expressed regret over the incident and promised to investigate and "take appropriate action." He said he felt no malice had been intended.

Clifford Buck, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said it all started as a prank. He said some athletes decided to grab some flags as souvenirs.

"We have a statement from Culhane," said Buck. "He acknowledged that he took one of the . . . flags, although it is against team rules."

He expressed apologies to the people of Cali for Culhane's removal of the flag.

AVOIDRS PICTURES

Culhane declined comment. Wearing dark glasses to hide his damaged right eye, he swung at a photographer who tried to take his picture.

Village governor Franco Mejia said:

"There were so many people around with different track suits that we really don't know who hit whom."

Ruiz Fabio, a Cuban official, said:

"We do not know whether this was an attempt to get a souvenir. We do not know if this was an attempt to cause a provocation.

"A Chinese boy from Canada and another boy were trying to take down our flag. Cuban athletes tried to stop them . . ."

Adanacs Cooled By Burrard Club

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Burrards took an early 8-2 lead, survived a strong Coquitlam Adanac comeback, then scored three times in the final two minutes for a 14-12 win over the visitors before 1389 fans.

Bill Rawson's goal at 17:41 broke a 12-12 third-period stalemate, with Gord Frederickson scoring an insurance marker into an open net in the final 60 seconds.

Visiting Shooter Connects

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP) — Clarion Tang Choon, 30, a relative new-comer to international rifle shooting, flirted with perfection Tuesday to win the Gibson match in the annual meet of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association.

Choon, of Sangre Grande, Trinidad, shot a near perfect score of 99 out of a possible 100 points.

The Gibson, second match in the eight-day meet, is fired prone from 300 and 500 yards.

In the sport only four years, Choon scored 13 hits in the "V bull" — a small, inner bullseye used to determine winners of close matches. Choon is visiting Canada for the first time, as part of a 13-member team from Trinidad-Tobago. He is an assistant in his father's gas station.

Second place went to Sgt. G. Westling of Coquitlam, B.C., who shot 98 with 13 V-bulls. S. Sgt. W. K. Gregory of Richmond Hill, Ont., shot 98 and placed third.

A Saskatchewan team won the Steinhardt trophy, presented on behalf of the late Lawrence Steinhardt, former U.S. ambassador to Canada: G. A. Gilmer, W. E. Hall, A. D. McDonald, Lieut. D. J. McDonald, A. G. Mann and Cpl. H. A. Newcombe made up the team.

A British Columbia Rifle Association team came second and an Alberta team third.

Rain Rescues Indian Squad

MANCHESTER, England (Reuter) — Rain came to India's rescue in the second cricket test against England at Old Trafford here Tuesday, washing out the final day's play and forcing abandonment of the match as a draw.

At the close Monday, England was poised for victory. India, needing 430 to win, was struggling at 65 for 3.

Bad weather also forced the first test at Lord's to end in a draw and the outcome of the series now depends on the third and final test which begins at the London Oval Aug. 19.

The score was England 386 and 245 for 3 declared, India 212 and 65 for 3.

Warwickshire 217 and 25 for 2; Middlesex, 257.

Leicestershire 178 and 161 for 6; Essex 146 for 3 declared and 45 for 2 (Draw).

Gloucestershire 213 and 210 for 8 declared; Worcestershire 87 and 74 for 4 (Draw).

Berlin Wall Marks 10th Anniversary

BERLIN (AP) — This week marks the 10th anniversary of communism's legacy to Berlin — a wall that epitomizes the political gulf between East and West.

It was built to keep East Germans at home, and there is no sign this goal will change, whatever the results of the current negotiations on Berlin's future.

This old capital city is an island of territory surrounded by East Germany. West Berlin remains under nominal control of the Allied powers of the Second World War, but its effective links are with West Germany 100 miles away.

The wall stretches for 62 of the 100 miles that makes up the periphery of West Berlin. The rest is steel-mesh fence.

In 10 years the externals have changed. The wall has been made into a barrier three yards high, white-washed on its eastern face, round at the top to make it harder to grasp.

MANY KILLED

Police count only those whose bodies fall on Western ground; they can't be sure of others. In any case, they cite more than 1,300 incidents of East German gunfire at the wall.

In 16 years after the war ended, three million Germans moved to West Germany.

This tremendous drain, 100,000 alone in the last weeks before the wall, led East German authorities to decree a physical barrier, and the Soviet Union supported the move.

At least 5,000 persons have managed to come across the wall at great physical risk. In 1970 the figure was about 80. An additional 500 came west roundabout — for example, vacations in Hungary and then flight via Austria.

'Snowing Sawdust' Evidence Heard

A federal fisheries official who testified Monday in the trial of Sooke Forest Products Ltd. — charged with contravening the Fisheries Act — said "it was snowing sawdust" on the waters of Cooper Cove one day last April.

The company was charged with permitting a deleterious substance to be deposited in water frequented by fish, contrary to the Fisheries Act. The incident allegedly happened April 22 when sawdust and wood chips were discharged into Cooper Cove.

Judge William Ostler, after hearing the testimony of two fisheries officials, remanded the case to Monday.

Fisheries officer Lloyd Roger Gudewill said about 40 per cent of the fine sawdust being loaded on barges through a chute was carried into the water of the cove by wind.

"You could say it was snowing sawdust . . . there was a considerable amount of chips on the water," he said.

Cross-examination by defence counsel Robert Hutchison disclosed that the fisheries officials had not tried to notify the company of the incident. McNairnay said later in the afternoon of April 22 the company had attached an extension tube to the chute used in the loading, and that the sawdust was no longer being carried into the water.

DETROIT WATCHING

NO-POLLUTION CAR

BOSTON (AP) — "You could get your face right next to the exhaust and not see or smell anything," a United States government inspector said of low pollution cars being put into use by the General Services Administration.

"These cars are about 95 per cent emission-free," said Robert W. Kelly, an automotive inspector for the GSA.

Eleven of the vehicles powered by liquid natural gas were put into service this week by the GSA and long-range plans call for the agency to convert all of its 49,500 vehicles across the U.S. within the next five years. Eighty-nine more are expected to be ready here within a few months.

Under the Clean Air Act of 1970, manufacturers are required to produce a virtually pollution-free auto by 1976. But auto-makers have said it will be impossible to mass produce a substitute for the internal combustion engine in that time.

"Detroit is watching this experiment closely," said Robert L. Kunzig, GSA administrator. "Perhaps Detroit will come up with something similar, or better."

The government cars have their liquid natural gas stored at 259 degrees below zero — in an insulated 20-gallon tank in the trunk. The gas costs the government about 16 cents a gallon, the same price it pays — tax free — for regular gasoline.

Mileage is about the same as regular gasoline, but there is no lead in the fuel and less wear on the engine.

Cost of the unit and installation, however, is the problem. The price of the tank, tubing and carburetor adapter is about $750. Installation takes two men a day, adding another $100 to $150.

Garbage Explosion Defused in Ottawa

By GARRY FAIRBAIRN

OTTAWA (CP) — Police swiftly defused an early-morning confrontation between locked-out union garbage collectors and non-union garbage truck drivers of Ottawa Disposal Systems Ltd.

One member of the union group was hit by a car at the company's east-end garage, and bricks were thrown through the windshield of one truck. Several fistfights broke out, some involving policemen.

The man hit by the car was the only one requiring hospital treatment. Police made four arrests, including the driver of the car and a company security guard who was on one of the trucks. A baseball bat and tire iron were taken from the truck the guard was riding.

Other arrests were for impeding traffic and possession of dangerous weapons, including pieces of wood, iron bars and shovels.

But the 92 union garbage collectors, reinforced by about 200 sympathizers, appeared in a good-natured mood when the confrontation gradually melted away two hours later.

As the confrontation broke up, union organizers were exhorting their men to appear again Thursday morning.

"We'll have 3,000 men here tomorrow," one vowed.

Meanwhile, about 50 youths waited in a downtown park for jobs at $3.20 an hour loading garbage on the trucks.

The company's last offer to the union was $3.27 for drivers and $3.20 for loaders.

Before negotiations broke down several weeks ago, the company had offered a 14-per-cent increase over three years, but the union wanted 15 per cent in a one-year contract. The 15-per-cent increase would have given drivers about $3.67 and loaders about $3.47.

When the workers refused the last company offer Friday, they were locked out.

INDEPENDENT RESEARCH

Ottawa Policy Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — An independent research body will evaluate government policy, Prime Minister Trudeau announced Wednesday.

He told a news conference the government will provide $950,000 for the institute to be organized by Ronald Ritchie, a vice-president of Imperial Oil Ltd.

The research group, recommended by Mr. Ritchie in a 1969 report, would receive up to $10 million from the federal government, matched dollar for dollar by private contributions. The Ritchie report was made public today.

The prime minister said five "eminent Canadian citizens," including Mr. Ritchie, would be invited to incorporate the institute.

Mr. Ritchie, former executive director of the royal commission on governmental organization, recommended that an institute be set up to improve understanding of Canadian economic, social and political problems.

The institute is intended to assess policies accepted by Canadians and Canadian governments.

The research institute is to be set up as a non-profit corporation under the Canadian Corporations Act.

Mr. Ritchie was asked to carry out the study after the government said in the September, 1968, throne speech that it was interested in such an institute. He visited all provinces and policy research institutes in other countries.

Trudeau said operations of the institute will not affect the Economic Council of Canada. The institute would not operate in the same area, but would look at broader problems affecting Canadian society.

In his report, Mr. Ritchie says it will take months to organize the body and three or more years before the first substantial results are produced.

Most provincial premiers consulted seemed to feel that a competent research institute would be a valuable aid.

But these discussions indicated the premiers had an "inherent distrust of any institute which would appear in form . . . to be a creature of the federal government."

It was therefore important that the directors be private citizens and that the institute be independent of government.

Mr. Ritchie suggested the institute could rely on getting 50 per cent of its operating budget from Canadian governments in the form of contracts. This would follow an initial $10 - million capital grant.

More Gastown Violence Predicted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell has predicted renewed violence between police and young people this weekend in the old Gastown area on the waterfront where a protest against drug arrests turned into a violent riot.

In a television interview Tuesday on CBC, Mr. Campbell said what happened last Saturday "was necessary and may be necessary again. . . . Anybody that goes to Gastown next Saturday night may be standing in the middle of a riot."

He said the police were provoked into action Saturday night, a statement contradicted by many eyewitnesses, including two aldermen, who said the demonstration was peaceful until riot police moved in on two-minute notice to break it up.

Earlier in the day, city council — without the support of Mayor Campbell — voted 5-2 to ask Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to investigate the incident. Mr. Campbell favored a probe by the police commission, and a government inquiry only if the commission's findings warranted one.

Council received a preliminary report from a five-man police team investigating the riot which interviewed some 200 witnesses and reviewed statements by most of the 80 police involved.

Meanwhile, the Gastown Merchants Association delivered about 100 sworn affidavits to the city clerk's office, taken by a lawyer from eyewitnesses to the fray. The affidavits alleged police brutality and criticized their tactics in clearing the demonstrators from Gastown.

TWO STABBED IN DRUG-HIGH PRISON RIOT

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Authorities say about 50 convicts were high on drugs during rioting at the Idaho Penitentiary in which two prisoners were stabbed and two buildings were burned.

Guards fired tear gas as about 150 of the prison's 245 convicts, some armed with knives or baseball bats, rioted Tuesday night. The convicts demanded more frequent changes of clothing because temperatures range as high as 118 degrees in the 100-year-old institution.

Warden Raymond W. May, who made the estimate that about 50 prisoners were high on drugs, brought the situation under control by telling the prisoners that none will be punished for the uprising and that their demand probably will be met.

During a lull in the riot, Warden May and Sheriff Paul Bright argued heatedly before reporters. Bright accused May of being too lenient.

May met with a six-member prisoner council and said the main prisoner grievance was over a rule allowing changes of clothing only every three days despite the 100-degree heat.

A medical attendant, David Bortz, 25, was stabbed in the chest by prisoners who broke into the hospital in search of drugs, prison officials said. Bortz was serving a two-year sentence for passing bad cheques.

"We had removed all the 'hot' drugs," May said. "But they got quite a few pills and some needles."

Charles Rice, 30, serving 10 years for lewd conduct, also was stabbed in the chest.

There were no escape attempts and no hostages were taken.

The warden ordered his guards and more than 100 sheriff's deputies and state policemen to stay out of sight to avoid provoking the prisoners.

Sheriff Bright said had he been in charge, "I would have had this mess cleaned up 30 minutes after it happened."

May replied that "it was a controllable situation" and that a show of force would have caused more bloodshed.

BUSINESS RIVAL FOR LEBANON RISING IN GREECE

By IBRAHIM NOORY

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Lebanon which has long prided itself as the business centre of the Middle East, now is facing stiff competition from Greece.

About 2,000 foreign companies are said to have opened offices in Greece since the military seized power there four years ago.

Among the companies attracted by the facilities offered by Greece were about 200 operating in Lebanon, although some of these are reported to have returned.

Beirut, the Arab world's biggest banking centre, enjoys a free money market. Greece, however, has enacted laws allowing foreign firms to employ expatriates and import cars and other goods without paying customs duty.

The new Greek business tactics coincided with Lebanese business problems caused by a dramatic crash of the country's main bank, the Intra Bank, in October, 1966.

The Lebanese government has set up a ministerial committee to study the flight of business firms to Greece and the problems facing them here.

Communications difficulties appear to be the main headache, according to replies to questions circulated by the committee to representatives of 400 foreign companies.

The study showed that 77 per cent of the companies complained of constant loss of their mail, and 98 per cent said the mail service was slow.

In addition, 94 per cent of the firms said they could not get a telephone line and 41 per cent said they had problems even when trying to pay their telephone bills.

The majority of companies questioned said that either they could not get a telex line or their telex messages and incoming cables suffered delays.

On the other hand no less than 65 per cent of the firms said they had no problems recruiting qualified Lebanese staff.

These findings are being examined by a high-level committee, charged with recommending ways and means of solving the businessmen's problems.

By the middle of next year, officials say, an automatic telephone exchange will be installed in Beirut enabling a business firm to dial direct to any European capital.

Woodward's Summer Savers

The Man-Made Meal

The barbecue is probably the greatest thing for women's liberation there is . . . liberation from the kitchen, that is. So when you're shopping, scheme a little and pick up lots of things that taste so much better barbecued , and that nobody can do like he can and you can spend more time in the sun. Woodward's has lots of great-tasting barbecue Summer Savers as well as the foil, charcoal and starter.

Barbecue . . . Rock Cornish Game Hens

4 . . . 1 lb. Rock Cornish Game Hens.
Salt and pepper.
1/3 cup melted butter.
1/4 cup condensed consomme soup.
1/4 cup light corn syrup.
Season the hens inside and out with salt and pepper. Stuff each with 1/4 cup stuffing, if desired. Place breast side up on rack or shallow pan or rotisserie — brush well with butter.

Rotisserie roast over hot coals 1 hour 15 minutes or until tender and baste with mixture of consomme and syrup.

Oven roast uncovered in hot oven (400F) 45 minutes or until tender. During the last 15 minutes of baking time baste several times with mixture of consomme and syrup.

Barbecue . . . Spareribs

Allow 3/4 to 1 lb. per person . . . use loin back spareribs. Allow plenty of time for barbecuing . . . you will need at lease 45 minutes to 1 hour. Spareribs like all cuts of pork require long, slow cooking. When done the meat will shrink from the ends of the bones. For best results, barbecue ribs in a spit basket or laced on the spit itself. In a spit basket or on a spit the constant turning bastes the ribs in their own natural juices. If ribs are on the spit baste them constantly during the last 5 minutes of barbecuing time with Barbecue Sauce. When done, slice them apart at once, place individual servings on pieces of foil and brush generously with sauce. Then wrap and place in the warming oven or near the briquets to keep warm until serving time.

Tourists enjoy looking over paintings on Causeway.

His Customers Are Tourists So He Paints Them 'Souvenirs'

By HELEN MELNYK

It is at this time that Harris, a local artist, drags his canvases, paints and brushes out of his basement studio, loads his car, and drives to the causeway at the waterfront by the Legislative Buildings.

There, on the main tourist thoroughfare, he sets up quarters for the summer. The stone wall surrounding the harbor becomes a display case for the paintings Harris has to sell, and the sidewalk becomes his workroom.

For the past 12 years, Harris has made this move. The tradition was started by a local society of artists that decided to show its work to the public in true French fashion.

Every day, providing the weather is good, Harris sets up his easel and "spreads gobs of paint across an empty canvas or two."

On weekends, he is joined by his son, who works at another job during the week.

Harris' love for his work is not interrupted by strivings for monetary rewards. He says that, "with luck," he and his son net $300 per season.

Tourists, he says, are unwilling to pay much for paintings sold on the street. People will pay more for mass-produced paintings sold in department stores, because they think they are getting better value, he said.

As a compromise, Harris has had to accommodate some of his work to his customers' tastes. He gave up painting flowers and still life scenes, his favorite subjects, because no one liked them. Since tourists favor souvenir pictures, he paints a lot of landscapes of the Lower Island.

Harris came to Victoria in the 40s, after serving 30 years as a construction engineer with the British forces in India. His desire to continue making things led him into painting. And what started as a dabbling with colors is now a way of life for Harris.

He scorns copying photographs or other pictures, because, he says, his painting is a form of self-expression.

"I paint as I see things," he said.

Harris has little sentimental attachment to the work he has completed. The paintings which he doesn't sell or give away often end up in the incinerator because he doesn't "see any sense in hanging onto pictures that nobody likes, including myself."

On Tuesday morning, however, it appeared that a great portion of that world stopped to watch him at work. Tourists and natives looked over his shoulder as he worked, scrutinized the paintings on display, and offered free advice and criticism.

When the last bunch of summer tourists depart for the mainland after Labor Day, Harris will pack up and make his exit.

Night Belongs to Jackie

WASHINGTON (UPI) President Nixon will not attend the formal opening of the John F. Kennedy Centre for the Performing Arts on Sept. 8 because he feels the night belongs to Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, White House sources said Tuesday.

Instead, Nixon will appear at the centre the following night for the opening of the New Concert hall with the National Symphony.

Nixon also turned over the President's box to Mrs. Onassis and the Kennedy family for the opening performance.

It will be the former First Lady's first public appearance in Washington since she left the White House in December, 1963. She has asked high-fashion designer Valentino to create a long gown for her to wear on the occasion.

Big Role for Mothers At Tots' Swim Lessons

Mothers are the most important factor when it comes to teaching young children how to swim.

And if a mother isn't available, an older brother or sister will do almost as well.

These are the thoughts of Mrs. Nancy McLaren, 24, swim instructor for the YM-YWCA's mother and tot summer swim session now under way at 880 Courtney.

Eight classes will be held this month at a cost of $10 for non-members and $5 for members. The "Y" accepts toilet-trained children from 3 to school age.

"The idea of the class is to teach the mothers what they can do with their kids, because they're the ones that work with them in the water — more than the instructor," Mrs. McLaren said.

By playing water games, the mothers and the instructor make the pool a "fun place" for the children.

"Playing games seems to get them going the best," Mrs. McLaren said: "We're also trying to use a lot of equipment, such as floating bar bells,a life ring and plastic balls. By using these, the children know there is something to hold on to in the water and they won't be afraid to leave the edge of the pool.

"It helps a bit when there are a few more children in the classes," Mrs. McLaren said. (There are only two tots and their mothers enrolled in this month's session).

"Most of the children like to copy. When they see other kids doing something, they'll often get up more nerve to try it," Mrs. McLaren said.

Brother and sistern teams work well together too, she said. The younger ones will often feel obligated to copy and follow the older ones.

"But they learn only as fast as they want to," Mrs. McLaren added.

Age 3 is about the right time to start teaching children how to swim. "That's usually when they're ready to try something. Once their faces are in the water, they can start out on their own."

Only one of the tots in this month's classes charges wilfully into the pool's depths.

Irene Lawrence, 4, of 209 Raynor, started swimming last March and has no qualms about "diging like a turtle" (the beginning stages of the crawl, in tots terms), or splashing around on top of or underneath the water.

Her companion, Josa Schneider, 3, of 1476 Gladstone, however, is a little dubious about wetting her golden locks. This is Josa's first encounter with water, besides the bathtub, and she still has a few reservations about the whole thing.

Cyclists' Calves Stay Untasted In Bike Dorado

By JURGEN HESSE

Nicholas Johnson, one of the Federal Communication Commissioners in the United States, rides his bicycle to work every morning. The only weapon he carries is a can of pepper to discourage dogs from sampling a succulent piece of his calf.

We need not go into the reasons why he chooses the second best mode of locomotion — the best being per pedes, or walking. He and untold thousands with him in the U.S. and Canada have rediscovered the joys of cycling.

(Today is Bike-to-Work Day in Victoria and, as with all such days, officials will pay leg service but continue to use their cars.)

I only mentioned the pepper because I cycle to work, too, every morning. My route is a scant 3½ miles, compared to Johnson's gruelling 15, but then he's obviously in better shape.

No, it's the pepper that gets me. Perhaps Johnson has just cause to carry that stinging spice with him, what with him cycling in the U.S., where dogs may be the lesser of two evils, mugging being the other.

Dogs Know Better

In Victoria, of course, no cyclist that I've ever met carries pepper. Victoria dogs know better than to endanger the local cycling or walking population. It would also detract from the precious tourist trade (ahoy there, Jolly Aunt Empress).

My pepper stays in the kitchen and goes on le bifteck au poivre where it belongs. But this story is not about pepper. It has to do with air, leg muscles and morning dew. It has to do with my standard British-made three-speed.

I've heard about cyclists in the U.S. being crowded off the road by brawny motorists. In Victoria, naturally, motorists are averaging 17 miles an hour and will give the right-of-way to an ant. So no danger from that department.

On the contrary, when I hit the streets at around 6:30 a.m. daily, I encounter the bus driver or the bleary-eyed worker (executives get up later), or the occasional Little Old Man walking his dog for a morning defecation (the dog's).

Hark, hark. I say. Never, so far, have I met a bus driver, L.O.M. or worker who has not given me a thoughtful nod, a tender "Good morning, lovely day, isn't it?" or a grumpy acknowledgement at worst. And, what is even better, I feel so gloriously condescending on my bike, experiencing the cool morning breeze ruffling my hair, smelling the as yet under-polluted street air, working up a mild and benevolent perspiration. (Cyclists don't sweat.)

Any cobwebs hanging around my head after an unsuccessful — or more often brutally shortened — sleep get blown away in the most delicate manner. Try ye olde Victoria morning breeze and see if I'm wrong about that.

So then I arrive fresh-lunged at the desk, the gentle purr of the ribbed tires on asphalt still playing a soothing fandango in my ears.

Hazardous in Big Cities

In Canada, cycling in big cities is a hazardous occupation. Not in Victoria, as yet, where most drivers take only a 50-50 chance in crowding you against the curb because they are rush-houring home to their ever-loving wife and the lawn mower.

No, I'm talking about Big Bad Ugly Vancouver, where last year I owned — for shame and $145 — a 10-speed but sold it when several near-misses made me realize that cars are bigger and don't care as much about dents as I do. The Vancouver exhaust fumes are another matter.

Cycling in Europe is less dangerous and better organized. There, in most countries (especially bike-conscious Denmark and Holland), thoughtful city fathers have had bikeways constructed where one may pedal with impunity.

In Vancouver — I haven't tried Beacon Hill Park yet — all parks purport to cater to pedestrians who arrive in cars. In bold letters the park board announces 'No Cycling.'

I've kept my cycle philosophy for the end. Isn't it ironic that when man finally made his first golf swings on that piece of blue (or was it green) cheese up there, that more and more internal-combustion-engine conductors should forswear the four-wheeled, self-propelled behemoth and return to the simple muscle-powered bicicletta, fahrrad, bicyclette, veloziped, bicycle?

Cycling is the most organic method of automotion. Your heart gets a gentle massage, your lungs are being worked (not everybody is keen on the loneliness of the short-distance puffer), you save on gas and repairs and finance company hassles, you stop more roads being built for those of us who think Mr. Gaglardi didn't do us a favor when he paved everything over, you don't pollute the air, you don't create noise that can drive you nuts, you feel younger, you are more in touch with flowers and bees and smells and people. Isn't that worth a trip on the bike shop?

Uganda's Underprivileged Children To Be Helped by Montreal Doctor

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Klaus Minde, known to his patients as the "talking doctor," plans to use experience gained in working with underprivileged children in Montreal when he joins a World Health Organization team in Uganda later this month.

The German-born physician, appointed a WHO consultant, says he sees little relation between problems encountered in Montreal's low-income Little Burgundy area and what he expects to find in Uganda. But he adds:

"There are certain characteristics common to all of those who are underprivileged — problems of malnutrition, the tradition of feeling inferior, lack of perseverence which accompanies this tradition and so on."

Dr. Minde, a pediatrician, psychologist and psychiatrist, says he became involved with underprivileged children because of experiences during his internship in pediatrics at Bellevue Hospital in New York.

"Look, I can't do much about genes, but I can do something about environment. At least, I can try."

On a leave of absence from his posts in Montreal, including one as assistant professor of psychiatry at McGill University, Dr. Minde will be in charge of developing services to aid the psychological and cognitive growth of Uganda children.

His task will be enormous because of Uganda, with an average family income of $150 a year, "only 40 per cent of children go to schools and those who do not attain a 90-per-cent average have to leave."

MEN THE LEAST OF ITS WORRIES

Italy's Women's 'Lib' Movement Can't Maintain a United Front

By PETER KAYSER

ROME (Reuter) — Women's liberation is having a hard time in Italy.

Not only is it having to battle the church, social tradition and the Italian male, but it also finds trouble maintaining a united front.

In the short space of one year, the original Italian Women's Liberation Movement Movimento par la Liberazione della Donna — has split and split again into four recognizable movements, ranging in philosophy from moderate to extremits, from radical to Marxist.

The Roman Catholic church is openly against the movement. The Vatican weekly l'Osservatore Romano said recently that woman was losing her maternal instinct. It maintained her role was to inspire kindness and human virtue.

The traditions of Italy do not help either. The woman is generally expected to divide her time between kitchen, church and her children — and otherwise remain silent.

Many married Italian women who would like to take on a job often cannot work up enough courage to do so, since their husbands would object violently to their wives, whom they often consider part of their belongings, being in the company of other men.

Law Tough

The law is tough on women, too. A woman can be sent to jail for not performing her marital duties — including refusing sexual intercourse — for having or seeking an abortion and, until recently, for adultery.

The law allows a man to do almost what he likes with his family. Legal rights over children belong to him. He can open his wife's mail and he has the last word on almost every issue from moving house to his children's education.

Some see hope in a draft law currently under study by a parliamentary commission. This would give men and women equal rights within marriage. But even this is likely to contain a proviso that the husband has the last word on decisions affecting the life and death of chuldren.

Abortion Issue

The main movement, the relatively moderate Movimento per la Liberazione della Donna (MLD) apart from demanding equal pay for equal work — rarely the case in Italy — has decided to make abortion its main target.

Abortion is illegal in Italy, but every year an estimated one million to three million women undergo operations, and 20,000 to 25,000 die as a result of bungling, at an average daily death rate of over 50 women.

The MDL is seeking 50,000 signatures needed to present a bill in Parliament aimed at unfettered and state controlled abortion.

The most extreme group, the Rivolta Femminile (Feminine Revolt) refuses to have anything to do with men and is accused by detractors of being basically lesbian.

Of the remaining groups, the leftist Collettivo di Lotta Femminista (Feminist Struggle Collective), is angling its campaign at advertising, which it charges makes women enslaved sexual stereotypes — and the Fronte Italiano per la Liberazione della Donna Italian Womens Liberation Front, is a Marxist movement.

In this centennial year of 1971 it's been stimulating for those with a sense of history, to couple certain facets of our well-thought-out commemorative program with comparable events that took place one hundred years ago.

For instance, the Centennial '71 Canoe Pageant and the wild-water ride of its 12 six-man crews due to end here tomorrow, sent me to my bookcase to find the story of the Overlanders of 1862. They took much of the same wild ride from Tete Jaune Cache down the Fraser River on their way to the Cariboo gold fields. Not as part of a centennial pageant, but through grim necessity.

There isn't room in this column to tell you (or to remind you) of all the hazards and hardships those men (and one woman, Catharine Schubert) endured. However, I would like to give you a brief outline (through the words of several who meticulously kept diaries) of what they faced in travelling that part of the journey from The Cache to Fort George (now Prince George).

They left Tete Jaune Cache in roughly made canoes, dugouts, and on large rafts, after a long and arduous trek from Fort Garry by way of Fort Edmonton. Some killed their cattle and took the meat along with them. Others took both freshly killed beef and some live oxen, securely tied to their rafts.

Shook Heads

As each group set out it was followed by the lamentations of the Indians who shook their heads sadly and exclaimed "poor white men no more."

A. L. Fortune, years later to be a pioneer in the North Okanagan Valley, wrote in his diary: "The river flowed swiftly and our raft with its cargo of stock and passengers glided with the current . . . we were much cheered . . . having no serious interruption in the river and making so long a run with no fatigue to animals or men. This was a great change from the labor of walking, cutting a trail, or making bridges."

The lighter canoes shot down-stream without mishap until the first one, carrying three Toronto men, reached the Grand Rapids.

They attempted to lower their canoe down the wild water by means of a lariat, but it foundered with all their supplies.

Men in the next two canoes, lashed together, fared still worse. They had only reached the first riffle when the canoes capsized and separated, throwing them and all their goods into the river where one in the party drowned.

Survivors of both mishaps were picked up, wet, cold and starving, two or three days later by the slower moving rafts.

All rafts eventually got through the dangerous canyon. Thomas McMicking describes the passage as follows: "At half-past five in the morning of Saturday, the 6th, we were suddenly startled by an unusual roaring noise . . . soon explained by the lookout shouting 'breakers ahead!' "

Bluffs Rocky

They portaged around the first two stretches of the rapids but were unable to get over the rocky bluffs of the third.

So it was decided that 10 men would stay on the raft and take it through the rapids and the others would make the portage, with most of the supplies, on foot.

Immediately below the Grand Canyon the river broadened and became almost sluggish. Next morning however, they reached the Long Rapids and ran a continuous series of whirling waters, studded with huge masses of rock for another 15 miles.

Some of the rafts stuck hard and fast and had to be pulled off after men swam ashore and fastened lines to the trees.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 41 and Viva, my wife, is 36. After 12 years of marriage, Viva had an affair with a guy at work. (I'll call him Roy.) It wasn't her first affair, and I don't think it will be her last. I couldn't take it any more, so I divorced her and got our three kids. Meanwhile, Roy's wife wouldn't give him a divorce because she said she wasn't going to deprive their four kids of a father. Viva begged me to go with her and try to talk Roy's wife (I'll call her Minnie) into giving Roy a divorce so he could marry my ex-wife.

I went, and the minute I saw Minnie and she saw me, we knew we were meant for each other. We've been seeing each other, and she says she loves me, but she won't give Roy a divorce. I am going crazy!

So what do I do? Stop seeing Minnie? I can't. I love her. Or do I drive my car off a cliff? — Going Crazy

DEAR GOING: Don't look for any cliffs. In time, Minnie will realize that the kind of father she doesn't want to deprive her children of is not worth hanging onto. And if you and Minnie were indeed meant for each other, love will find a way.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ART: Don't expect anyone to pin a rose on your nose. Conscience gets a lot of credit for that which belongs to cold feet.

How to Cultivate Wrinkles.

A parched dry skin is the breeding ground for facial lines and wrinkles. After age 25 a woman's skin loses the ability to retain essential water and so the ageing process is accelerated. But now 2nd Debut with patented CEF—the specially formulated proven wrinkle lifter—is here. 2nd Debut with CEF enables the skin to retain the liquid balance that keeps skin smooth and younger looking. 2nd Debut with CEF-600 for the younger woman . . . CEF-1200 for the mature woman. At drug and cosmetic stores.

Apology Demanded

CALGARY (CP) — Police Chief M. J. Kent has demanded an apology from Mayor Rod Sykes for statements on the chief's handling of a police brutality charge against two members of the force.

In a letter sent by the chief's solicitor, he requested a letter of apology by Aug. 19 with copies to the news media.

The mayor and the chief declined comment.

Criticism of the chief's handling of the situation was made after the now defunct police commission, of which the mayor was chairman, investigated the charges and temporarily suspended two constables.

Solutions Offered

WINNIPEG (CP) — Proper management of the economy, such as wage and price controls in areas where there is no real competition, could return Canada to prosperity and reverse the cycle of unemployment, former federal cabinet minster Paul Hellyer said Tuesday.

Speaking on the first leg of a cross-Canada tour to promote the Action Canada political movement, Hellyer told about 250 persons at a meeting in a Winnipeg hotel the present effects of the federal government's "economic insanity" would first have to be reversed.

B.C. News Briefs

B.C. Horses Sick

KELOWNA (CP) — Four cases of equine sleeping sickness have been discovered among horses in the Okanagan and Similkameen valleys of Southern British Columbia by provincial veterinarians in the past week.

The government has urged ranchers to have their horses immunized. So far 1,100 doses of vaccine have been administered. Veterinarians said the outbreak of western equine encephahlomyelitis is the first since 1969.

"I don't think it's serious at all," said Dr. Abraham Kidd in Victoria. "We had eight cases in 1969."

Bridge Leap in Vain

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — An 11-year-old boy was missing and presumed drowned Tuesday night when he was forced off the old Fraser railway bridge by a west-bound CNR freight train.

RCMP said Tommy Prysclak was riding his red mustang-style bike between the rails when a train hit his bike. He jumped from the bridge into the river, near a concrete piling.

No sign of the boy was found. RCMP have organized a search of the river by divers, motorboats and canoes. The boy was riding with a friend, who kept his bike on one of the roadways at the side of the bridge.

Man Ordered Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twenty-six-year-old Gary Owens of Seattle was ordered to leave Vancouver within 12 hours Tuesday and not to return for 18 months.

Owens was arrested July 7, after Police received a complaint that he was openly smoking a marijuana cigarette in Gastown.

Judge Harvey Sedwick also imposed a $300 fine for possession of marijuana.

Rape Charges Laid

VANCOUVER (CP) — David Murray Livingstone, 26, of Vancouver will appear in court today on five charges of rape.

The charges were laid in connection with a recent series of attacks on young female hitchhikers in suburban Burnaby and Vancouver.

LOS ANGELES — A U.S. federal judge will hear a motion for dismissal Aug. 17 in the case of a prominent Canadian politician's daughter charged with conspiring to violate federal statutes regulating possession of hand grenades. Charges against Shirley Jean Sutherland, 36, of Beverly Hills, Calif., were dismissed earlier, but the dismissal was overturned on appeal by the prosecutor. Mrs. Sutherland is the daughter of T. C. Douglas, for many years leader of the federal New Democratic Party.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Black Panther Huey Newton has been ordered to trial a third time in the 1967 slaying of a rookie policeman. Superior Court Judge William Hayes Tuesday set Oct. 12 for Newton's retrial on a manslaughter charge, despite objections from defence lawyer Charles Garry who said he had other court commitments. The second trial of Newton, co-founder of the Panthers, ended in a mistrial Sunday when, after six days of deliberations, a jury of 10 women and two men announced itself hopelessly deadlocked, 11 to 1, and unable to enter a verdict.

MADISON, Wis. — Singer Tom Jones has denied charges he gave a professional boxer a beating. Jones denied in Circuit Court any knowledge of the alleged dispute with Michael Maret of Miami Beach, Fla., which allegedly took place after a singing engagement at the Dane Country Coliseum here June 7. Maret, a boxer, is seeking $60,000 in damages for his alleged injuries.

SHELBURNE, Mass. — Comedian Bill Cosby, 34, has bought a 15-room home on an 18-acre estate for $65,000. The home is approximately 20 miles from Amherst, where Cosby plans to enter the University of Massachusetts School of Education this fall.

LOS ANGELES — Darryl Zanuck, the 86-year-old founder of the 20th Century-Fox movie studio, has been sued by his long-estranged wife over a 1957 financial settlement. Virginia Zanuck's complaint, filed Tuesday in Superior Court, says Zanuck should reimburse her $75,000 from the proceeds of a life insurance annuity policy in which she has half interest. She also asks half of a $5,460 cost-of-living raise Zanuck received from Fox last April.

YUBA CITY, Calif. — Farm labor contractor Juan Corona, accused of hacking 25 men to death and burying them in orchards, apparently has suffered a second heart seizure and will remain in hospital indefinitely, doctors said Tuesday. Corona, 37, was brought to the hospital from his Marysville jail cell Friday after complaining of chest pains. Corona's trial is scheduled to begin in October.

12 Injured In Fight Against Worm

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 12 persons have been injured in Alberta and Saskatchewan in the battle to stop Bertha army worms from destroying valuable rapeseed crops.

Ten persons, six in Saskatchewan, have received hospital treatment for poisoning from the highly-toxic chemical Lannate which has been flown in from Texas to kill the voracious insects.

A Regin pilot, Lloyd Johnson, and his son were in Melfort, Sask., hospital Tuesday after their spray plane hit a power line and crashed about 50 miles southease of Prince Albert. Both suffered minor injuries.

More than 125,000 pounds of Lannate have been delivered to Saskatchewan farmers alone and more was expected to arrive in Saskatoon Wednesday night. Agriculture departments, in both provinces were issuing warnings to farmers to exercise extreme caution in mixing the chemical.

Dr. C. A. R. Dennis of Regina, director of the health department's occupational health branch, said inhaling Lannate dust could cause death.

URGES CAUTION

Lloyd Peterson, an entomologist with the Alberta agriculture department, said farmers should wear gloves, respirators and protective clothing when handling the chemical. All pesticides are dangerous, he said, but Lannate is more so because western farmers are unfamiliar with it.

There also were reports from North Battleford, Sask., of many birds being killed by the pesticide.

Lannate was ordered from the United States because DDT has been banned by the federal government and other chemicals were not effective in killing the 1½ inch greenish-black worms.

The infestation is killing rapeseed crops in a belt stretching from east-central Alberta to west-central Manitoba. About one million acres were affected in Saskatchewan and 250,000 acres in Alberta. The Manitoba outbreak was spotty.

Mr. Peterson said the infestation could be likened to the grasshopper plagues of the 1930s because a major crop was being attacked. Rapeseed, used in cooking oils, now is a more important crop than wheat in Alberta.

There are no indications yet how many acres actually have been ruined.

70 AIRCRAFT USED

There were 70 aircraft spraying in Saskatchewan Tuesday, each covering about 1,000 acres. At least 20 of the airplanes were brought in from South Dakota and more were standing by in Montana if needed.

An estimated 200,000 acres have been sprayed in Saskatchewan from the air and another 60,000 from the ground. There are 2.5 million acres seeded to rapeseed in that province.

Saskatchewan Agriculture Minister Jack Messer toured parts of the province Tuesday and was to fly over other affected areas today. Also, a federal-provincial team was to begin a survey today to locate areas where future outbreaks might occur.

Meanwhile, the situation spawned some political storms in both Alberta and Saskatchewan.

A shouting match erupted in the Saskatchewan legislature when Liberal opposition members accused the New Democratic Party government of "absolute terrible negligence" in not discovering the infestation earlier.

In Saskatoon, Dr. J. E. Greenshields of the federal agriculture research station denied that information on a possible outbreak was kept secret. He was commenting on Liberal claims that research stations knew about a potential infestation in July.

And in Alberta, NDP Leader Grant Notley, campaigning for the Aug. 30 provincial election, said the Social Credit party had done "too little, too late."

New Use For Old Drug

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Nevada, with the third-highest venereal disease rate in the United States, plans to fight back by enlisting prostitutes to test a new use for an old drug.

The drug is Progonasyl—for prophylactic against gonorrhea and syphilis—a spermicide, long used as a contraceptive.

Dr. William M. Edwards, chief of the Nevada bureau of preventive medicine, says that in limited testing it has been 100-per-cent effective at killing VD germs.

Nevada counties may, by local option, allow houses of prostitution. Dr. Edwards said the project will enlist the help of about 200 of the approximately 240 prostitutes in the 40 houses in the state.

Fine ingredients give Swanson 'oven-ready' Beef Dinners a goodness and freshness you can taste.

Swanson Beef Dinners.

Made with selected cuts of lean meat, plump green peas corn and good country potatoes.

The ingredients for a Swanson Beef Dinner.

Potatoes. Top quality peas and corn.
Special seasonings for the vegetables and gravy.

The preparation

Freshly peeled potatoes are inspected by hand.

First, the peas and corn are washed scrupulously clean, blanched and frozen, all on the day of picking. This fast preparation of the vegetables, ensures that they reach you in perfect condition.

Then the beef is almost fully cooked: you complete the cooking in your own oven.

The potatoes are finely shredded, lightly seasoned and deep fried, to give you some of the best hashed brown potatoes you've ever tasted.

A Beef Dinner that's 'oven-ready'

By selecting excellent ingredients, like the best green peas and corn; and by very carefully timing the cooking of the meat, so that it won't be over cooked when it comes out of your oven; Swanson prepares a Beef Dinner that really tastes good.

In your oven

1. Just take a look through your oven window. You'll be able to see the hashed brown potatoes becoming crisp and golden on top.
2. Under the foil 'lid' the peas and corn are cooking-up good and tasty in their specially seasoned Swanson sauce. (The foil 'lid' keeps in the moisture, keeps in the goodness.)
3. The lean sliced beef finishes cooking in its own delicious beef gravy.

A Beef Dinner, made with selected cuts of good lean meat; combined with potatoes, peas and corn. And a gravy that's made with juices from the meat.

Is it any wonder that Swanson Beef Dinners have a freshness and goodness that the whole family will enjoy!

WEST GOES ON BLOCK

By GENE HANDSAKER

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — The solitary gallows, its trap sprung, its noose swaying in the hot breeze, lacked only the victim.

Along the deserted western street—saloon, stage depot, jail, Perkins general store, Quong Lee laundry—tinkled the laughter of a nearby cocktail luncheon Tuesday celebrating an announcement that could only make dyed-in-Technicolor movie buffs weep:

This month bulldozers will start ripping out the Western street and many other historic sets on MGM's 68-acre back lot No. 3 for a $60 million centre of luxury condominiums and apartments.

Slated to fall, as the developer puts up 2,000 residential units with rustic exteriors on spacious sites, are:

—The street where Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy fought in the mud in Boom Town.

—The three-million-gallon water tank where the Cottonblossom sailed in Showboat, a 40-foot—miniature—of HMS Bounty sank in Mutiny on the Bounty and Wally Beery and Marie Dressler squabbled on shipboard in Tugboat Annie.

TARZAN'S TREES STAY

Slated to remain are many of the lot's pine, eucalyptus and other trees, including some from which Johnny Weissmuller swung as Tarzan. A quarter-mile man-made lake will be redesigned and given docks and recreational facilities.

The development will be called Raintree after Raintree County, one of the movies made on the lot. Other films made there include Huckleberry Finn, Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, Lilac Time, Billy the Kid, Ben Hur, Ice Station Zebra, The Singing Nun and The Brothers Karamazov.

The site was acquired from MGM for $7.25 million by ITT Levitt and Sons Inc.

Must Serve Sentence

NEW YORK (AP) — A legal aid lawyer said Monday Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has turned down a plea from a man the state of Louisiana wants back to serve a 50-year-prison term for selling $6 worth of marijuana.

William Hellerstein, representing Robert Apablaza, 35, said he had appealed to Rockefeller to vacate an order of extradition in the case, but the governor turned him down.

Apablaza was arrested in New Orleans in March, 1967, and accused of selling a matchbox containing marijuana to an undercover agent.

Hellerstein said Apablaza was sentenced to 50 years without parole, and under Louisiana law would be eligible for release under "good time" rules after 25 years.

Police Push Stolen Car Down 300-Foot Cliff

LLANDUDNO, Wales (UPI) — A Llandudno auto insurance company said it will pay up for: one $4,800 Jaguar sedan pushed over a 300 foot cliff — by police.

Officers explained: "The car was stolen and the thieves left it tottering at the edge. It was risky to leave it there and even riskier to have a truck to try pulling it away. So we agreed with the insurance company the best thing to do was push it over."

Before the Judge

A 28-year-old man with what Judge William Ostler described as "a substantial criminal history" was sentenced to 14 months in prison for several fraud and false pretence offences Tuesday.

Joseph G. Parizeau, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty to two counts of false pretenses, another of attempted false pretences, as well as counts of obtaining food by fraud and obtaining food and lodgings by fraud.

A Victoria policeman testified that the accused went to a clothing store in Trounce Alley July 31 and attempted to pay for $56.54 worth of clothing with a stolen Chargex card.

The officer said the same day the man used the card to buy $18 worth of merchandise from a Douglas Street drug store and two shirts, totalling $16.64, from a second men's clothing store.

Parizeau, the policeman said, bought $8.60 worth of food from Don Mee Restaurant, 538 Fisgard, with the card July 30. He also presented the card when he registered at the Strathcona Hotel, 919 Douglas, the same day.

The officer said the man had run up a bill of $22.93 for food and lodging at the hotel when he was apprehended the following day.

Court was told that the accused had convictions in Montreal including breaking, entering and theft and possession of stolen property in 1968, armed robbery in 1960 and breaking, entering and theft in 1958.

A 21-year-old registered nurse was fined $250 by Ostler when she pleaded guilty to stealing a 97-cent kerchief and a 29-cent package of "bobbi" pins from The Bay Tuesday.

"One usually looks up to nurses. I know I do," the judge said when passing sentence on Sharon A. Diamond, 710 Vancouver.

A security officer testified that the accused was observed picking up the items and carrying them in her hand up several floors before going into a fitting room.

When she came out of the room, the officer said, the items were not to be seen. She was apprehended as she was leaving the store.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said the woman was a registered nurse at St. Joseph's Hospital and had been regularly employed from three to four years.

James H. Fenner, 34, of 1761 Haultain Monday was sentenced concurrently to three months in prison for impaired driving and two months for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Judge Edmond St. Jorre also fined Fenner $250 for driving without insurance and suspended his licence for nine months.

Court was told that Fenner was stopped by police on Begbie Street May 29 shortly after he had driven into a car at Pandora and Fernwood. He had a blood-alcohol content of .20 per cent at the time.

Air Crash Kills 100

The travellers said the craft "came down heavily and flipped over as it was landing."

"We have no information on this," said the Soviet aviation ministry. That is its usual comment in such cases.

The last officially acknowledged Soviet air crash occurred at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport in August, 1969, when 16 summer vacationers were killed.

The most recent known air disaster happened at Leningrad airport last Dec. 31. Western airline representatives reporter at the time that an Aeroflot Ilyushin 18 ona flight to Armenia crashed on takeoff killing more than 93 persons.

Explosive Closes River Rhine

COLOGNE, West Germany (Reuter) — Shipping along a stretch of the River Rhine was halted Tuesday night as several tons of a highly explosive chemical leaked from a damaged tanker.

Riverside campers and people living along the waterway between here and Duesseldorf were warned over police loudspeakers not to switch on electric appliances to prevent sparks from being struck.

Police said the fluid has a low ignition point when it comes into contact with air, particularly in warm weather.

The tanker was still leaking and efforts were under way to pump the 80 tons of fluid into another vessel.

In Bochum, bulldozer teams probing a flooded rubbish pit here for drums of highly poisonous cyanide salts were ordered Tuesday to stop work because of danger from poison gas.

The workmen earlier found 200 drums of the chemical, a by-product of steel-making, after they started turning over masses of refuse following reports alleging that 15,000 to 20,000 drums had been sunk in the pit.

The Bochum public prosecutor ordered a legal investigation into the disposal of the waste.

Meanwhile, water in the West German town of Hohenlimburg was declared contaminated by arsenic Tuesday as a result of the dumping of sludge on public dumps last month.

An official told reporters that the arsenic content of water in Hohenlimburg is 10 times the maximum safe level.

Hohenlimburg, with a population of 27,000, was one of 13 locations where arsenic-contaminated sludge was illegally deposited on public garbage dumps in late July.

4 New Faces on Most Wanted List

OTTAWA (CP) — Four new faces are on the RCMP's list of "most wanted" persons sought on charges of various criminal offences.

HOME GARDEN

Shallow Planting for These

By HILDA BEASTALL

Only in old gardens do we now find Madonna lilies thriving, and then only if still in the care of gardeners equally old. Thinking about this recently, the idea occurred that with the introduction of dozens of new hybrid lilies in the past 30 years, gardeners have formed the habit of treating them like the new hybrids.

Hilda

The first planting of these fragrant white lilies (Lilium candidum) I saw in an old Fairfield garden, where the bulbs had been allowed to increase untouched for years. Shallow mulching with composted seaweed and old manures was the only attention given.

The astonishing thing to me was seeing the bulbs at surface level in summer.

But I was assured this was desirable; not to cover them deeply; and before winter to add just enough sand and compost to prevent frost damage, which was rare in that garden.

Each year, the bulbs flowered profusely in early summer with the delphiniums.

Later, I removed bulbs from the outer edges of these clumps to start other groups, always remembering to plant shallow.

The reason is that Lilium candidum is a basal rooting lily, not increasing by forming stem roots and bulblets as do so many of the other lilies, and most of the popular new hybrids.

Stem rooting lily bulbs must be planted six, eight or even ten inches deep (when the soil is open and gravelly), for the feeding roots emerge on the length of stem as it grows upward, and small new bulbs also form at these points.

Lilium candidum bulbs will rot away if planted deeply.

Another point is their short period of dormancy. The leafy flower stems of June die down by late July.

Madonna bulbs are now as dormant as they will ever be for in the cooler days of early September once again they start growing. Moving of bulbs or newly purchased bulbs of Lilum candidum should be done now. Never allow the bulbs to become dried out in the air.

In September they produce what is called an overwintering basal rosette of leaves, quite dissimilar to the flower-bearing stem which grows in spring.

The importance of these leaves is in preparing the bulbs for an early start next spring, since this is the first of the lilies to bloom.

By late March, a close watch should be kept for the central stem commencing its growth, for then the basal leaves must be cut off cleanly and burned.

This is a precaution in preventing a fungus lily disease, prevalent with this lovely Madonna-lily, whose spores are likely to spend the winter on the overwintering leaves.

If transmitted to other lilies, it causes expensive losses.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

As everyone agrees, "false-carding" by the defenders can be a dangerous and costly affair. The reason, of course, is that while the expressed intent of the false-card is to deceive declarer, quite often it also deceives partner, with catastrophic consequences.

However, situations arise when a defensive false-card becomes mandatory if the optimum result is to be attained. In today's deal, a defender correctly concluded that it was most essential to deceive his partner; and, as a result of this deception, the winning line of defence was found.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♢
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♢.

On West's opening lead of the diamond six, East played the king, which South captured with his ace. East's play of the king was unorthodox, for when a defender, sitting third hand, has adjacent high cards, he normally plays the lower of two and the lowest of three or more. In this case, East's "book" play should have been the ten-spot.

As East viewed the dummy, if his partner obtained the lead, he wanted West to return a club (through dummy's K-J-10) instead of continuing diamonds. And if East had put up the ten on the opening lead, West might come back a diamond, instead of a club.

Thus, by playing the king of diamonds on the opening lead, East technically denied possession of the queen, for, with the K-Q, he would have put up the queen. As far as West was concerned, therefore, when declarer won the diamond king with the ace, the latter figured to also have the diamond queen. From West's point of view, a diamond continuation would be hopeless when West obtained the lead (with the trump king).

After winning the diamond opening with his ace, declarer led the spade queen, which he overtook with the board's king. He then led the nine of trumps and finessed, losing to West's king. West now returned a club and East cashed two club tricks. His diamond queen then took the setting trick.

Had West returned a diamond (after winning his trump king), East would never have been able to cash two club tricks.

Actually, even if East had not falso-carded at trick one, West would probably have returned a club anyway. But East, at no cost, made sure that he would.

'Urban Ore' Being Mined

It's Plain Trash And There's Money In Recycling It

★ ★ ★

By DAVID MAHSMAN

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (WP) — The United States spends $4.5 billion a year to bury something worth millions of dollars.

It's called "urban ore" by the director of the U.S. bureau of mines research centre here, and he says it's the country's only growing natural resource at a time when other such resources are being consumed to the point of extinction.

Max Spendlove is not referring to copper, gold or silver. He is talking about refuse — tin cans, old bottles, everything that the housewife throws out as trash. A few miles away from the bureau's centre, a bureau pilot plant in suburban Edmonston is proving the ultimate value of "urban ore."

ONLY ONE

Since November, 1969, the Edmonston plant, the only one of its type in operation, has been taking incinerator residue — what is left after urban waste is burned — from Alexandria, Va., and other cities, and recycling the residue, separating its component parts — glass, iron and non-ferrous metals such as aluminum and zinc.

In the works is a new plant that will take raw, unburned refuse and do the same thing, recovering paper and plastics in the process.

The project was set up to prove that reclamation is both feasible and commercially attractive for areas with populations at least of 500,000. Martin Stanczyk, supervising metallurgist at the pilot plant, says the processing cost is about $4 a ton. But he says the products from the recycling process will sell for about $15 a ton.

$1 MILLION COST

The initial cost of setting up a recycling plant for an area of 500,000 population is estimated by Stanczyk at $1.4 million. The plant could process about 250 tons of incinerated residue a day, he says, and the $11 profit per ton would eventually offset the cost of the plant and the processing.

Francis Palumbo, a project chemist, sees two immediate and interrelated problems for recycled waste: the lack of a market for reclaimed products and consumer aversion to the term "secondary materials."

But Palumbo, along with other project officials, says that these are temporary problems at best and that recycling is the wave of the future.

Officials feel this will be particularly true when the raw refuse recycling plant — which operates without an incinerator — is developed. Paul Sullivan, co-ordinator for the Edmonston project, says the new plant should be open in three months.

Raw refuse recycling plants will be designed to serve areas of under 500,000 population. "In six months, we'll know if we're headed in the right direction," said Sullivan.

PROTEIN FEED

Officials estimate the cost of building a raw refuse recycling plant will be about the same as constructing an incinerator to handle the same amount of refuse. Paper and plastic will be the principal items reclaimed by such a plant.

Spendlove says that potential uses of reclaimed paper are "tremendous."

It can be used, he said, as a fuel or as wallboard or packing materials. "The agriculture department has a process for making it into protein for cattle feed. It can be converted into crude oil or synthetic natural gas.

"There are probably a half-dozen ways to use it that we haven't thought of yet, because we haven't had to," he continued. "I'm convinced that as the problem (lack of resources) becomes greater, ingenuity will show itself in even more products."

IMAGINATION LIMIT

"Urban ore is a phenomenal material," Spendlove asserts. "Based on the content of metals, it must be classed as a high-grade ore. And on the variety of different metals that it contains, it is different from anything that mother nature ever thought of.

The products that can be made from recycled waste "are limited only by your imagination," Palumbo said. Almost anything that can be made with virgin materials can be made with reclaimed materials.

Among the products that can be made from the recycled glass, Palumbo said, are new bottles, bricks that are better than bricks made from new materials, insulation, roofing materials and "glassphalt."

"I'd like to build a model demonstration house made entirely of reclaimed glass," Palumbo said. "This would include bricks, insulation, roofing and, of course, windows."

WHEN THE DAY'S PADDLING is over, canoeists have to exert their muscles once more to erect their tents for the night. While in Crofton, the paddlers lined up their tents with military precision. They obviously like staying close together.

VANCOUVER REMAINED COOL

Canoeists Showered With Affection

By DONNA CLEMENTS

CROFTON — The hearty reception given to members of the centennial canoe pageant on their arrival in Crofton Tuesday night was the best ever.

"We appreciate the great reaction we got from a community of this size," said pageant commentator Don Ethell of Victoria. "In Vancouver we were met by no officials or dignitaries although 2,000 people came to watch our race."

The purpose of the centennial race from Fort. St. James to Victoria, which started July 25, is two-fold, Ethell explained.

"It is to encourage the youth of Canada in outdoor adventure by canoeing and to honor explorers in the past."

Ethell said the trip, in which 84 paddlers participate plus a safety canoe, has been safe so far.

"I guess the biggest excitement was when three canoes went on the wrong side of a long boom and just about got drawn into a mill near Prince George. Chief voyageur Col. Bill Matthews from Gabriola Island saw the logs and gave a warning in time."

Ethell said 60 per cent of the competitors are in their early 20s except for two men in their 50s, and come from all walks of life. They belong to canoe clubs across Canada.

Crofton had planned its centennial celebrations — which included the official opening of the $14,000 open air swimming pool, a salmon barbecue, a beer garden and entertainment by the voyageurs — around the paddlers' visit.

The canoeists, bearing the flags of the 10 Canadian provinces, two territories and the names of famous explorers on their crafts, will race at 7 tonight in Sidney harbor and Thursday at the same time in Victoria harbor for their grand finale.

Higher Court Trial

Judge Eric Winch was told Johnson stole a purse containing more than $50 from a local hotel.

Has Anyone Spotted A Marmot?

Has anyone seen a Vancouver Island marmot?

He's known on the Island as a ground hog, though actually he's only a distant relative.

Every spring—so legend has it—he substitutes as a weather prophet by loking at his shadow and predicting the weather for a six-week period.

Jack Schick, assistant curator of birds and mammals at the Provincial Museum, wants to get in touch with anyone who has seen one. He wants to know their status — whether they are rare, increasing or decreasing.

If they are not rare, they are certainly elusive, Schick says.

He spent a week looking for marmots at Mount Douglas, situated south of Port Alberni — the headwaters of China Creek — where they were first spotted in 1910 by University of California biologist Harry S. Swarth.

But Schick didn't see any.

He also failed to see any on Flower Ridge, Strathcona Park, where some sightings were reported.

"We don't know much about the animal," he said. "It may be a distinct species or a subspecies of the hoary marmot (Whistler) of the mainland mountains."

The marmot is a large brown ground squirrel, about the size of a house cat, and lives in open or semi-open areas, mostly associated with rock slides.

It whistles occasionally and its den is usually among rocks or under trees. Frequently, more than one hole will be found as there is usually a colony of variable size like those of other marmots on the mainland.

The Vancouver Island marmot is a true hibernator and can only be seen from late June to early October and most often early in the morning or early evening.

Skipper Remanded On Oil Spill Count

LADYSMITH—An Iberian freighter captain who was charged with unlawfully discharging a substance in Canadian waters was remanded to Thursday for a plea in provincial court.

Lam Sze Cheong is captain of the Olympa Faith loading American logs in Ladysmith harbor. The substance is oil or an oily mixture discharged around Aug. 9.

The charge was laid by the federal transport department.

The maximum fine is $5,000 or six months in jail.

Better Deal Fishermen's Aim

DEEP BAY — About 150 commercial fishermen massed on the government wharf Tuesday to demand a better deal from the federal government.

They supported a brief which urged the establishment of annual licence fees for B.C. coastal shipping including foreign vessels.

The men said they didn't mind paying a fee if it was consistent and allowed them to tie up at any B.C. port.

Some ports now charge wharfage fees, others don't. The fishermen said this was unfair and inequitable.

Comox-Alberni NDP MP Tom Barnett told the fishermen he will present the fishermen's problems to Fisheries Minister Jack Davis and Transport Minister Don Jamieson.

The meeting was triggered by the cost of Deep Bay wharfage fees which the fishermen consider too hign.

'Shamble' Fear In Oak Bay

Fears that Oak Bay was becoming "a shamble of apartment houses" were voiced by G. K. Trim, 1219 Oliver, during a public hearing of Oak Bay Council Tuesday night.

The hearing was on a bylaw that would allow developers increased coverage of a site if they provide 120 per cent underground parking, plus an additional five per cent of underground suites with the stipulation they did not face on abutting streets.

Ald. Douglas Watt said he would support the zoning bylaw allowing the increased use of sites "only as a temporary measure." He said underground parking should be encouraged only on a temporary basis and added developers are finding Oak Bay a highly desirable municipality in which to invest.

OPPOSED

Watts said he felt that council should reconsider its philosophy on apartments but advised that the bylaw should be passed in order to provide an incentive for underground parking.

Ald. Brian Smith said he was opposed to the bylaw and Ald. John Goult said he agreed with Watts.

Several other residents, including Dr. Neil Swainson, 1823 Beach, and Mrs. W. B. Gordon, 2549 Currie, also opposed the bylaw.

The council approved the letters patent for the Capital Regional District that would lead to regionalization of social services, providing an amendment by the Family and Children's Service was included.

Basically, the amendment would ensure that the service, as has been in the case of the Family and Children's Service, would be given the rights of a Children's Aid Society under the Protection of Children Act.

In other business, council decided to refer a memorandum from the municipal administrator E. E. Hart, complaining about dog litter, to B committee.

It was also decided to hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 30 on a bylaw that would permit a kindergarten to be established at St. Mary's church hall.

Over the opposition of Ald. Gould and Smith council decided to hold a public hearing at the same time on a zoning bylaw that would allow the construction of an apartment building at the corner of St. David and Newport.

A letter from Minister of Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell asking that council examine land inventory under its jurisdiction was referred to a committee.

In his letter, Campbell suggested restraint in any further restrictive zoning as a holding device) until after Valuation Day, to be announced by the federal minister of finance.

Five letters were received from residents who opposed the proposed construction of two nine-storey towers overlooking Windsor Park.

Big Four Envoys Active on Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Big Four ambassadors met today for the second consecutive day, and another talk session is scheduled Thursday on the future of Berlin.

The ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France began negotiations in March, 1970. Sources said the burst of activity was an attempt to make progress toward new arrangements for the divided city, but reports were that the Soviet demands may still be too high for the others to accept.

Soviet Ambassador Pyotr Abrassimov said, "two big steps" were taken at the meeting Tuesday, but neither he nor his aides would identify the steps. A Soviet spokesman said he was referring to all issues and to the narrowing of the gap between the West and Moscow.

Western officials said the "two-big-steps" statement was purely a Soviet concept and they did not know what was meant.

A British official said there is no agreement on the concessions the Russians are demanding in exchange for their guarantee of unimpeded access to West Berlin. They include:

1. Reducing the political ties between West Berlin and West Germany, which heavily subsidizes the isolated city, and restricting trips of West German politicians to Berlin.

2. Opening a Soviet consulate in West Berlin, which the West fears will be used to soften up West Berlin for eventual absorption into East Germany.

3. Continued discrimination between West Berliners and West Germans in regard to travel and passports. West Berliners are not allowed to travel to East Berlin nor to use their West German passports to enter Communist countries. West Germans are not so restricted.

4. An end to the West German governments representing West Berlin in foreign affairs.

Car Tires Slashed

A car owned by R. S. Aust, 508 Fort had two tires slashed. The damage was discovered shortly before midnight Monday.

Investigation revealed that a car owned by a Saanich woman, two vehicles of American tourists and an auto owned by a Wharf Street machine shop, each had one tire slashed.

Police said all damage occurred since 11 p.m. Monday.

$5-a-Day Budget Tour of Europe Fun and Friendly

Ann Laughlin, a young Canadian Press staff writer from Montreal, is on a two-week hitching-hiking tour of Europe, living on $5 a day. Here is her first report.

By ANN LAUGHLIN

COPENHAGEN (CP) — So far I've made it.

After four days hitch-hiking on my own in Europe, I'm unmolested, several friends richer, well under my $5 daily budget and still fairly clean.

As soon as someone patted the flag stitched on my orange packsack and said in English "Canadian, eh?" I felt more at home.

More warmth was conveyed by Use It, Copenhagen's efficient but friendly youth agency which so far this summer has provided 100,000 young travellers with tips on what to see in the city and where to eat and sleep cheaply.

Young Danes direct wealthier youngsters to private hostels costing up to $2 a night. Most—including me—are booked into temporarily converted school buildings or a tent camp where 80 cents buys breakfast and a mattress for the night amid 15 youngsters of both sexes.

CALED 'SLEEP-INS'

Called sleep-ins, these city-financed hostels are a clearing house for the latest on road tips, dating, trip experiences and prices.

Packsackers meet easily. Through a quick exchange of information on one city square, I was able to get free beer during a brewery tour, join a sing-song by a lake in a park, pub-crawl with a handsome American boy on a more affluent budget and find cheap but good sandwiches in Tivoli Gardens before trekking back to the mattress for the night.

Total cost for my first day came to just $3.50—not bad.

I decided to head on my own for England and The Netherlands.

WARY OF MALES

Scandinavian drivers are leery of picking up male thumbers who may be carrying drugs or who may be out to rob. Motorists say this season has been an exceptionally bad one.

The motorists I met on a two-day trip across the island of Zeeland, and after a ferry trip across the Aarhus, along the Jutland playground peninsula, were courteous, helpful and more than willing to show me interesting sights along the way. Not one made a pass at me but one dumped me when I didn't co-operate.

Aside from one American couple, all my drivers were men alone, either Danish or German.

When the first one slowed down 10 minutes after I joined a straggle of hikers in the mid-morning rain outside Copenhagen, I wondered whether I was asking for trouble.

But the face peering through the rear window turned out to be a smiling young Dane who apologized that he couldn't take me more than about 20 miles and bought me lunch to make up for it.

LIFTS SHORT

Generally, lifts were short, averaging about 40 miles, but so were the waits. On highways I was picked up within a half-hour.

Drivers helped my budget by offering me lunch or dinner. During one two-day travel, my chief expense was a $2 ferry ride and a $2 overnight stay in a hotel.

In Aarhus, a ferry base on the east side of Jütland, the town's sole hostel was full. I wandered into what turned out to be a posh hotel where a clerk found me a dim little room to meet my limited budget.

A sunny morning's travel through the rolling farmlands of western Jutland, an afternoon on the beaches and I was ready for a restful 18-hour boat trip to England.

Shotgun Apology On the Air

RICHMOND HILL, Ont. (CP) — The announcer on a cable television station here didn't hesitate last weekend when requested to make an apology on the air.

The man making the request was armed with a shotgun.

Station officials said the man stormed into the station and ordered that an apology be made on the air for using his name as winner of a swimming award. The apology was made and the man left.

Officials said apparently a practical joker had phoned in a story about the man's winning the award.

John Burgin, 21, of Richmond Hill, just north of Toronto charged with possession of a dangerous weapon and common assault in connection with the incident, appeared in court Tuesday and was remanded to Aug. 20.

Firemen Stumped By $15,000 Fire In Restaurant

The $15,000 Net Loft restaurant fire last week was of "undetermined origin," Chief Eric Simmons said today.

The chief said the possibility of arson could not be ruled out although the investigation had ended.

The fire broke out last Friday at the restaurant, 640 Montreal, and forced guests and staff to flee.

Private funeral. Dean Brian Whitlow officiating. Cremation. Flowers gratefully declined; donations may be made to the Canadian Cancer Society. Arrangements through the Memorial Society of B.C. and First Memorial Services Ltd.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages and cards of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received from our many relatives and friends in sad bereavement, in loss of our beloved husband, father and grandad, Joe Short. We especially thank Dr. Plak, Mr. R. Ferguson, Mr. A. Webb, the honorary pallbearers, and McCall Funeral home.
—Mrs. Pat Short, June and Hugh Ferguson and family.

The family of the late Mrs. Agnes N. M. Durrance wish to extend their thanks to friends and relatives for their many kindnesses during their recent bereavement in the loss of their dear mother. Also thanks to Dr. J. Anderson, Reverend W. E. Greenhalgh, and McCall Bros. for their kind and courteous attention.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BONNER—In loving memory of Bernard R. Bonner (Duke) who left us four years ago today.
—We will always remember him. Marge and Len.

JOHNSON — In memory of Doris H. Johnson.

"Though your smile has gone forever,
And your hand we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories
Of a Mother loved so much.
Your memory is our keepsake
With which we'll never part.
God has you in his keeping
We have you in our hearts."

Tonight's Top Television Shows

THE SAINT. 7 p.m., Channel 6. Take fast cars and fast blondes in equal quantities, mix well and pour. What do you have? A plot for another episode of The Saint. Tonight he comes to grips with a crooked race — cars — and a curvaceous blonde — girl.

SINGALONG JUBILEE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Guest tonight is Dave Bradstreet. He sings It's Hard to Know, and A Million Miles Beyond the Sun. Patrician Ann sings For All We Know and Gene MacLellan sings Hand in the Hand.

THE MEN FROM SHILOH. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5, (Rerun). "Wolf Track." A man couldn't expect more problems than Col. Mackenzie (Stewart Granger) encounters in this episode. He sets out to hunt down a killer-wolf which has been terrorizing his cattle. In their confrontation, the wolf wins out, wounds Mackenzie and escapes. Pernell Roberts (he used to be one of the Cartwrights on Bonanza) turns up as a mean guy who robs the helpless Mackenzie of his horse and gun. Julie Harris, wonderful actress, rescues the colonel but has to contend with the hostilities of the rest of her sodbuster family.

ROOM 222. 8 p.m., Channel 4 (Rerun). "The Long Honeymoon." A basketball star at the school is having an emotional problem, stemming from a void in his home life. His mother and father have long-been separated, and the mother spends much of her time hunting for a new husband. Principal Seymour Kaufman (Michael Constantine) and a student who is a close friend of the athlete attempt to help him. Strong dramatic touches to this episode.

THE SMITH FAMILY. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4, (Rerun). "The Strangers." A young girl runs away and her comfortable family can't understand why since they feel they have given her everything she could possible want. Detective Chad Smith's search for the missing girl takes him to a Sunset Strip hippie haven where he encounters some weird young people.

TO ROME WITH LOVE. 8:30 p.m., Channel 12. (Rerun). A light bit of fare with Craig Stevens, who used to be TV's Peter Gunn, shows up as the operator of a swinging nightclub in Rome called Catnip Club. He gets Mike (John Forsyth) to take on a moonlighting job as manager of the nightspot. Along the way, Mike discovers it's not in character with a teacher.

MEDICAL CENTRE. 9 p.m., Channel 12, (Rerun). Richard Kiley and Gena Rowlands are guest stars, playing a divorced couple in a melodramatic situation. Kiley is a noted surgeon who very noticeably carries the scars of his marriage breakup. He's developed a radical new operation for a serious ailment and one of the first candidates is his critically ill ex-wife.

THE DES O'CONNOR SHOW. 9 p.m., Channel 5. By now, you get the impression that Charley Callas is a comic fixture as he makes his third appearance on the show. Des's rendition of "Mountain Greenery" is the background for a gangster skit featuring Charley, Des and Joe Baker. Callas also does impressions of honeymooning couples of different nationalities. Des's medley consists of "World of Dreams," "But Beautiful" and "It's Easy to Remember." Connie Steven's duo with Des is a country-Western medley "Hey Good Looking," "King of the Road" and "Setting the Woods on Fire."

PAN-AMERICAN GAMES. 9 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Tonight's coverage includes cycling, boxing, swimming, diving and football.

ART SPECIAL. 9:30 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Treasure of Kings. This is a look at the history of Czechoslovakia's Prague Castle art treasures. The collection was started by King Rudolph of Bohemia in the 16th century. It was desecrated by the Nazis, but in recent years over 100 paintings by the old masters have been rediscovered in the castle, disguised and hidden.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30: Channel 13: Peggy (1950 comedy) Diana Lynn, Charles Coburn, Charlotte Greenwood. About two sisters who compete for the title of Rose Bowl Queen.

9:00: Channel 7: The Perils of Pauline (1967 comedy) Pat Boone, Terry Thomas, Pamela Austin. A corny spoof of silent movie melodramas about an ingenious heroine and her clean cut hero, with Terry Thomas as the nemesis.

11:00: Channel 13: Sins of Jezebel (1953 drama) Paulette Goddard, George Nader. A Biblical spectacle about the misfortunes that beset a ruler when a young queen attempts to introduce false gods.

11:30: Channel 7: Return of the Bad Men (1948 western) Randolph Scott, Robert Ryan, Ann Jeffreys. Several infamous outlaws take refuge in Oklahoma during the land rush of 1889.

11:45: Channels 6, 8: Normandy Squadron (1960 French drama) Marc Cassot, Georges Riviere. A Second World War story of French pilots who use Russia as a base of operations to fly against the Nazis.

11:50: Channel 2: Our Hearts Were Young and Gay (1944 comedy) Gail Russell, Diana Lynn, James Brown. The adventurers of Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough as they take their first trip abroad.

YOUR HEALTH Dr. Walter Alvarez

Dr. Raymond N. Miller of Houston, Texas, recently wrote an interesting article on helping patients who have chronic diseases that cause them much pain. As he points out so wisely, the patient's reponse to pain is influenced by a number of different factors, such as the acuteness of the pain, or whether it is chronic or intractable (unable to be stopped). The worst pains, of course, are the intractable ones which do not respond easily to any treatment.

Anxiety states and depressions add to and magnify the already existing physical distress. An intractable pain is bad because it tends to produce a depression. Long-continued pain can have a demoralizing effect on a person's mind and spirit; I have found that persons with a cancer of the pancreas or with a duodenal ulcer eating into the head of the pancreas, can be paratelularly demoralized and sometimes can become almost psychopathic as a result of their suffering.

Sometimes fear of pain or fear of death can heighten the suffering of the patient considerably. Years ago a pathologist at the Philadelphia Zoo wrote on the injurious effects that the fear of impending death can have on the individual. The pathologist suspected that such fears have much to do with the disability and prostration seen in the last stages of fatal diseases. He suspected this because animals, from their inability to understand what is happening to them, do not get frightened; often they will keep running about until the day of their death. One day a monkey will be climbing about his cage, apparently as well as ever, and next morning he may be found dead with every tissue of his body riddled with tuberculosis. The pathologist will then wonder how he ever kept going.

Certainly such an observation strengthens the impression that often comes to a doctor such as me, that if only his patient were no so alarmed over his disease, he would hardly be ill. This can be seen even in a person who is not upset by approaching death. Thus, I remember several able and dynamic and fearless men who, though jaundiced and with the liver full of metastatic cancer (cancer that had spread through the body), felt well and worked cheerfully up to a day or two before their deaths.

Also, people differ tremendously in their sensitivity to pain. There are many people who have practically no ability to feel pain. Anyone who doubts this should go to an arena some night where he will see two big heavyweight wrestlers banging each other about, or two powerful boxers hitting each other with all the strength they have. The average man couldn't stand that sort of thing for 20 seconds, but the professional wrestler or boxer may stand half an hour of it. How different such a man is from the highly sensitive woman who, if her hand is squeezed too tightly or enthusiastically, will cry out with pain.

Dr. Miller, in his article, points out that too often the "treatment group" (attending physician, house staff, and other personnel) taking care of a sick person in a hospital, is not as concerned with the patient's comfort as it should be. A wise physician will learn details about the pain, and will try to adjust the treatment to that type of pain. Many of us pysicians do not realize that when giving pain-killing drugs we cannot just "go by the books"; different patients vary in the amount of a drug that will bring relief. Some of them are highly sensitive to drugs and need only a little to produce the desired effect, while others are markedly insensitive to drugs, and hence will require a larger dose.

The best example of this difference in sensitivity to drugs can be seen with alcohol. A friend of mine once ordered four martinis and drank them in quick succession. When I asked him why, he said, "I don't feel anything until the fourth." And yet another person may "feel high" after only one or two sips.

I'll never forget the time in San Francisco when I was first assistant to one of our most brilliant diagnosticians, Dr. Emile Schmoll. One day I found a man who said he felt very ill; he had a fever, and he had some discomfort in the right lower quadrant of his abdomen. He had a high white blood count, and my impression was that he had an acute appendicitis, but he hadn't the least tenderness over his bowel and he had no pain. Puzzled, I asked my chief to look at the man. He checked the reflexes and found they were gone, and he soon concluded that the eman had no ability to feel pain in his abdomen. Dr. Schmoll immediately called a surgeon who, on operating, found an acute appendicitis. The man had had no warning pain, because he could not feel pain.

STANDING ORDERS

BENFLEET, England (CP) — Rev. Alan Becks, vicar of the Anglican church in this Essex community, has asked his parishioners to stand up instead of kneeling down when they pray during services. He says this will make things easier for some women and elderly persons. But the vicar of a nearby church disagreed, insisting that the changes in position "give the children the chance to have a wriggle."

AIRLINES VOTE TODAY ON NEW LOW AIR FARES

By FRANK GRAY

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Air Transport Association gave the public a peek Tuesday at a new schedule of lower air fares for persons who will travel the North Atlantic in 1972-73.

The fares package announcement was made by H. Don Reynolds, chairman of the IATA fares conference. It came exactly six weeks after the start of the conference June 29.

Mr. Reynolds expressed confidence the package would be approved by the 40 airlines attending the conference. A vote on the package was expected today and unanimous approval is needed if the fares are to be effective.

For the most part, the fares would be effective for one year beginning April 1, 1972, but Mr. Reynolds indicated that certain winter fares would be effective this year.

The package offers reduced fares, some as low as $183 round trip, for transatlantic travellers crossing the Atlantic in group tours or purchasing their tickets three months in advance for trips lasting 22 to 45 days.

AIMED AT CHARTERS

The rates were seen as an effort by IATA, the Montreal-based trade association, to regain some of the business lost to charter operators, whose business has soared in recent years.

Among the proposed fares are:

—A youth fare for persons between 12 and 22 to cost $195 return between New York and London, and $183 Montreal-London in the off season, and $225 and $213 respectively during the summer;

—A three-month advance-purchase fare, New York-London $199, Montreal-London $187 off season, $249 and $237 peak season respectively;

—A winter group-inclusive tour for groups of 10-12 persons staying overseas between seven to eight days; $200 New York-London, $188 Montreal-London;

—A 14-21 day group inclusive tour for groups of 15 persons, New York-London $227, Montreal-London $223 off season, $280 and $268 peak season respectively.

This fare reduces to 14 days from 17 days the minimum number of days required to participate in such a tour. Current rates for the plan are New York-London $220, Montreal-London $208 off season, while peak season rates are $302 and $288 respectively.

The only other change would be in fares for affinity groups, those made up of persons with membership in one club or those who share a special interest.

Montreal-London return affinity fares now are $183 winter, $203 basic and $263 peak. They would drop to $168, $188 and $248 in the same categories under the new proposals.

Those not benefitting from the reductions are travellers using the so-called normal fare persons, usually businessmen, not travelling as part of any particular plan.

The Montreal-London round trip under the normal daily schedule costs approximately $525, more than double most other fares.

Bow Knot Bob One of the Best

One of the best of the 42 entries in the Victoria Riding academy's centennial summer show recently was Bow Knot Bob, the gelding owned by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carpenter of Goward Rd.

Bow Knot Bob was first in road hack, open working hunter under saddle, tandem jumping and green conformation hunter classes; second in the conformation hunter under saddle; and fourth in hunter hack and green jumper competition.

TOURIST OFFICES WON'T SHARE TAX

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Monday he does not intend giving any money from the hotel and motel room tax to municipal or regional tourist promotion offices.

"The answer is no," Bennett said in reply to the question of whether aid would be made available to visitors bureaus to ease financial difficulties.

Bennett has estimated that the five-per-cent tax, which went into effect April 1, will raise $2.5 million in the current fiscal year.

He said the provincial government already makes $1 per capita grants available to municipalities for tourist promotion.

Swine Fever Warning

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Cornell University veterinarians urged New York's swine owners today to watch for symptoms in their herds of African swine fever.

A school spokesman said more than 15,000 swine already have been slaughtered in Havana province, Cuba, in the first invasion of the Western Hemisphere by the most deadly of all foreign diseases of swine.

"The disease could spread to New York," said Dr. Leroy Coggins, associate professor of virology at the college here, "and we're taking every precaution to be ready for it if it comes."

African swine fever does not affect other animals or humans, a Cornell spokesman said.

The swine disease is characterized by high fever, listlessness, loss of appetite and rapid death.

The disease is spread by contaminated garbage, contact between infected swine, carrier animals and contaminated premises, the school said.

CHINESE STYLE WINS 'SUPERBAFFO'

MONTEMESOLA, Italy (UPI) — The echo of foreign affairs was heard even in Italy's annual mustache contest this year, with Ofelio Moretto winning the seventh "Superbaffo" title with his Chinese-style facial hairs.

The "Superbaffo" or "Supermustache" from Contello was chosen by a jury composed of barbers and young women, who preferred the Chinese style to other types such as the Hungarian, the musketeer, the kaiser and the natural.

Family Continues Search for Boy

NEWCOMB, N.Y. (AP) — The month-old search for Douglass John Legg, an eight-year-old boy lost since July 10 in rugged Adirondack wilderness, apparently has ended, except for efforts by family members.

Four specialized German shepherd dogs and their trainers—from the Seattle, Wash., German Shepherd Search and Rescue Dog Association—were scheduled to return home today after five fruitless days scouring the woods north of this remote mining community.

Tuesday night, a spokesman for the state police at Saranac Lake substation said, "As far as the state police are concerned, the search is terminated."

The boy's father, William Legg, said earlier Tuesday he had no immediate plans to seek the help of more special search teams.

The boy became lost 32 days ago after being sent back from a hike with his uncle on the family's 13,000-acre estate just north of Newcomb's centre.

Large-scale search efforts were cancelled Aug. 1 but a skeleton crew of state troopers, forest rangers and a few experienced woodsmen from the area remained for another week.

NIXON, CONGRESS COMPLAIN

Foot-Dragging Charges Launch Vacations

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congress has quit for a month-long vacation after exchanging parting shots with the White House, each accusing the other of foot dragging on vital legislation.

President Nixon, through two aides, complained about Congress' leisurely pace and his administration's "feeling of urgency" about such stalled domestic legislation as welfare reform, revenue sharing and national health insurance.

He could make a good case. In the seven months since Nixon called for "a new American revolution" through such legislation, the Congress has not passed a single such bill —with the possible exception of the Emergency Employment Act to provide public service jobs in the face of growing unemployment.

Instead, the legislators labored on legislation of their own inspiration, contending it was more vital than the proposals set out by the White House.

In reply to White House attempts to pin the do-nothing label on Congress, House Speaker Carl Albert replied:

SEES NO CAUSE

"A party which cannot manage the nation's economy better than this has no cause to carp at a Democratic Congress which has done what it can to surmount administration lethargy."

Of course, it is traditional for progress to be slower when one party controls the Congress and the other forms the administration.

Thus it was good politics for Republican Nixon to criticize a Congress in which Democrats control the Senate by 55 to 45 seats and the House of Representatives by 255 to 180 seats.

But he made his feelings known only through the two deputies, raising speculation that he would save an eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation for the 1972 election year.

An additional annoyance to Nixon was the fact that much of the legislation Congress did pass served to add to government spending, sometimes giving the president more money than he sought or wanted. Ten of 14 appropriation bills went through, increasing the budget by $2.3 billion after the government ended the fiscal year last month with a $23 billion deficit, second largest since the Second World War.

One of the cornerstones of Nixon's new revolution was a scheme to share vast sums of federal revenue with state and local governments. But Congress resents the idea of expanding its unpopular role as tax collector and then turning the money over to the states on a no-strings basis. So the plan is bogged down and unlikely to emerge in anything like the form Nixon urged.

Another Nixon idea that is stalled is his welfare reform plan to guarantee every poor family of four an annual income of at least $2,400—a strong plank he was counting on for his campaign platform.

On the other hand, Congress extended the law empowering the president to control wages and prices as an anti-inflation move—a device Nixon has been dead set against from the start of his term in office.

It also passed a bill authorizing $2 billion to help build public works already planned. Nixon vetoed it as ineffective, but later signed a watered-down version.

To add to the controversy, congressional leaders are talking of adjournment by Oct. 15, which many observers feel is an impossible goal in view of a work load which includes the lengthy annual debate on the defence department budget.

It all has the makings of a good political issue in next year's presidential election unless relations between Capitol Hill and the White House unusually cool in recent months shows a sharp improvement after Congress' vacation.

China Tie Approved

LIMA, Peru (AP) — President Juan Velasco said his cabinet has approved establishment of diplomatic relations with Communist China. He told reporters re-establishment of diplomatic relations with Cuba is "still being studied." Peru already has commercial relations with both Communist countries.

Loophole Boosts Settler Appeals

By JOHN HAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Boom times abroad and domestic unemployment have cut Canadian immigration figures in the last two years. But the immigration appeal board is getting much more business than it can handle.

Immigration declined 8.6 per cent to 147,713 in 1970 but the board's backlog of cases mounted to 6,000 by last May.

Most of the 4,406 appeals it faced in 1970—66 per cent of them—were launched by visitors to Canada whose applications for landed immigrant status were rejected by the immigration department.

The waiting line is growing longer. The nine-member board can process about 100 cases a month. But it receives about 425 new appeals every month.

The board's problem arises from what some call a loophole in 1967 amendments to Canadian immigration laws.

National quotas were abolished. A uniform point system, considered among the fairest in the world, was set for all applicants.

But another change allows a person to arrive as a tourist or student, then apply in Canada for landed immigrant status.

Applicants refused by the immigration department can appeal to the board.

LEADS TO ABUSES

It now takes two years to get an appeal through the board, twice that long if the case goes on to the Federal Court or the Supreme Court.

In contrast, the person who requests immigration from his or her home country cannot come to Canada until that request is finally approved.

Critics say the anomaly has led to abuses. Prospective immigrants, perhaps fearing refusal at home, can lie to border officials that they plan only to visit, then apply for permanent residence once safely in the country.

Most countries, including the United States, send visitor-applicants home to wait for their visas.

Immigration Minister Otto Lang has expressed his own worry about the apparent unfairness in the system and the ever-growing backlog and delays nagging the board.

But while he is "extremely concerned about the increasing backlog," a top aide says, there is yet no amendment prepared to stop it or contend with it.

The aide says the issue is still under consideration in the department, and the hope is to have legislation ready by the fall.

Board officials refuse to divulge just where the visitor-applicants come from. They stick to the principle of dealing with individuals, not nationalities.

The immigration department says it does not keep figures on the former residence of appellants to the board, although it is involved in every case.

But other immigration department figures suggest the biggest single source is the U.S.

Of the 43,010 visitors who were actually granted landed immigrant status in 1970, there were 19,535 who listed the U.S. as their last residence.

Visitors from Britain and Ireland were next, numbering a combined 2,288. Greece, Jamaica and India follow in the top five.

For the first quarter of 1971 the same countries led the list, except that Trinidad replaced Jamaica.

WEST INDIANS UP

In 1970, they provided 8.4 per cent of all immigrants—12,456—compared with 4.1 per cent—7,563—in 1968.

That put the West Indies in third place as an immigration source in 1970, after the long-time leaders, the combination of Britain and Ireland and the U.S.

In 1968, the West Indies were in 10th place.

Immigration officials say the rising importance of the West Indies, India, Greece and Portugal as sources, and the decline of several Western European countries, reflect changing economic conditions in those areas compared with Canada.

Jobs are scarcer here than in much of Western Europe, but more attractive than in the poorer areas of the world.

The changes may also reflect the introduction of the individual point system and removal of national quotas.

Most West Indian immigrants, like most other immigrants, choose to move to Ontario.

There were 8,390 of a total of 12,456 in 1970 who went to the richest province. Quebec was next, receiving 2,597.

Of the total immigration of 147,713, Ontario received 80,732, Quebec 23,261 and British Columbia 21,683.

By sex and age, the biggest group of West Indians was females aged 20 to 24. Males between 25 and 29 were next.

Of the total West Indian immigration, 7,612 planned to enter the labor force.

The biggest group—1,952—planned clerical jobs as bookkeepers, cashiers or stenographers.

The next biggest group—1,781—aimed at jobs in manufacturing and mechanical areas.

Guerrilla Slain

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Police have shot and killed a terrorist suspect they said was a national leader of the underground guerrilla organization Popular Revolutionary Vanguard. The victim was Jose Raimundo da Costa, who had been on wanted lists since June, 1969.

Modern Explorers Arrive Thursday

Four young men who travelled the length of the Fraser River in rubber boats as their personal centennial project will paddle into the Inner Harbor Thursday at 11 a.m.

They will be greeted at the end of their journey, which began July 17, by provincial centennial committee chairman L. J. Wallace and other officials.

Using two rubber boats of 16 feet and 20 feet, David Stewart, 27, of White Rock, Orville Brockwell, 21, of New Westminster; Phil Porth, 23, of Vancouver, and Vern Reimer, 24, of Yarrow, have retraced the footsteps of explorers such as Alexander Mackenzie, Simon Fraser and the Overlanders.

SWAMPED

Stewart said in New Westminster Tuesday their craft were swamped twice by whirlpools along the route.

He and his friends lashed the two boats together to keep them afloat.

The four men had hoped to shoot the falls at Hell's Gate but they found the river in flood and local residents persuaded them to portage.

The canoes are due to arrive in Sidney tonight, and the paddlers will put on a demonstration in front of Tulista Park from 7 to 8 p.m.

Leaving Sidney Thursday morning, they will compete in the last round of races, down the Saanich Peninsula coastline to Victoria.

COLOR TO SCENE

They are expected to arrive in the Inner Harbor at 7 p.m.

Adding color to the scene, the tents the paddlers have used during their long trek will be put up on the lawns of the legislative buildings.

They will be joined by the four Fraser Valley travellers at a dinner hosted by the provincial government in the Empress Hotel Thursday evening.

New Housing Starts Double

New housing starts in Greater Victoria during June were more than double the level of a year ago but total starts this year are 9 per cent lower than in the first half of 1970.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. reports 167 units were started in the capital region last month, 92 more than in June 1970.

The new work brought to 1,199 the number of new dwellings started here since Jan. 1, or 122 fewer than in the period last year.

By comparison, in Vancouver this year there have been 39 per cent more housing starts than in the first half of 1970, but there are also more vacancies in newly-completed units.

FIRST HALF

Provincially, the first half year showed a 28 per cent increase, up 12 per cent in single starts and up 55 per cent in multiple dwellings for a total of 14,230 units.

All June starts of row and apartment type units in this area were in the city of Victoria—57 compared with six a year earlier, when there were also 33 started in Oak Bay.

The balance of 110 units this year were largely new duplex and single family dwellings in Saanich and Langford-Colwood, up from 36 a year ago.

For the six months, apartment-type starts are down from 916 to 747, while the single and duplex types are up from 405 to 452, all areas of Greater Victoria included.

Bavarian Oompa Sunday Theme At Park Concert

Bavarian music and barbershop singing will set the theme Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at a concert in the Cameron bandshell of Beacon Hill Park.

Bill Ratcliffe, who spent four years in Baden-Baden with the Royal Canadian Air Force, will conduct his band — known as Ratkapelle — and John Varrelman will direct the 30-member barbershop group, the Village squires. Special numbers will be presented by quartets that form part of the group.

Master of ceremonies will be Fraser McAlpine.

Admission is free. The concert is sponsored by the city of Victoria, the trust fund of the recording industries, and the Victoria Musicians' Association.

Commuter Buses Proposed

A proposal to relieve downtown traffic congestion with suburban parking lots and commuter buses will be made soon to members of Victoria council.

Ald. Clyde Savage says such a project would be a costly but long range solution to the problem of continuing growth of traffic in the city's core.

He says the parking structures built just inside the city limits and mini buses for the trip to downtown would be used mainly by people whose jobs take them downtown daily.

Savage says he hopes to have a report on the feasibility of the idea prepared by city officials.

Children Urged To Attend Safety Class

The Capital Region Safety Council put out a call today for children to take the September - October program at Tom Thumb Safety Village in Colwood.

The council reported 1,300 students aged 5 to 7 took the one-hour course in the first part of this year's program.

"The validity of a visit to the village as a field trip is now firmly established," the council said in a letter to school boards, principals and other groups.

The course, with the help of a miniature village, pedal cars, bicycles and tricycles, teaches basic training in traffic safety.

CENSUS TO DECIDE BILINGUAL AREAS

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will wait for the results of this year's census before creating most of the 37 bilingual districts proposed in a report by the Bilingual Districts Advisory Board, federal government sources said Tuesday.

However, the sources said the government may be able before then to create several of the districts in areas where the francophone proportion of the population is significantly more than the 10 per cent recommended for the provision of all federal government services in French and English.

State Secretary Gerard Pelletier has said further study is needed on the proposal to make all of Quebec a bilingual district.

The sources said that because the board's plan was based on the 1961 census, Pelletier decided to set up a special committee, which advised the minister to wait for the 1971 census results. They are expected early next year.

Nothing prevents the federal government from creating certain bilingual districts in areas where the concentration of French-speaking people is obviously more than 10 per cent, the source said.

St. Boniface, Man., was an example of such an area.

The proposed bilingual regions, based on the provisions of the Official Languages Act passed by Parliament in 1969, include all of Quebec and New Brunswick.

The number of bilingual districts in the other provinces are: Newfoundland, one; Prince Edward Island, one; Nova Scotia, two; Ontario, 12; Manitoba, eight; Saskatchewan, seven; Alberta, three and British Columbia, one.

Scouts Hike Old Fur Trail

Your entire food supply and equipment for more than a week must be carried on your back.

Slip and break a leg and you not only stall a 29-man expedition but you endanger the whole group.

These were the circumstances for 29 men and boys on an eight-day trek through some of the densest forest in British Columbia.

HIKE COMPLETED

Twenty-one B.C. Venturer scouts and their eight leaders completed such a hike this week, without so much as a twisted ankle to show for their pains.

Their route took them from Lodestone Lake, 20 miles north of Princeton, to an area just east of Hope.

Seven of the Scouts and two leaders were from Victoria. The others came from Penticton, Summerland and Kamloops.

All the Scouts were more than 15 years old, part of the Venturer division of the scouting movement. The expedition was led by Harley Hatfield of Penticton, the vice-president of the provincial scout council.

BLAZES RARE

Phillip Whitfield of Victoria, a Parks Branch employee who accompanied the Scouts, said that although old journals clearly indicated the route of the old fur trail, blaze marks were rare.

The hikers started on the east end of the trail which slopes slightly downhill to the west. However, the mountainous terrain meant that probably more miles were spent going up and down than going straight ahead.

John McCord, 15, said the Scouts carried all their kitchen utensils and tenting equipment.

UNCLEARED FOREST

The expedition was the first journey along the old Bay trail for anyone younger than grown men.

Accordingly, the travellers took extra precautions to ensure that the Scouts' youthful exuberance did not lead them into unnecessary hazards.

The members of the group travelled keeping the man in front always in sight, Scrivener said at times the dense bush cut visibility to less than 20 feet.

The party walked about 60 miles in eight days. They started at 5 a.m. each day, hiked four hours before breakfast and made camp about 3 or 4 in the afternoon.

Victoria Scout leader Jack Scrivener calls it "a damm good hike every day" and to hear some of the Scouts tell the story it must be.

John Swainson, 15, carried a pack that weighed 55 pounds but he said the average pack weight was only about 40 pounds.

The part he liked best about the trek was "getting out into the actual winderness and learning to survive on your own.

"We used to boot-ski everytime we found snow," he said.

DAILY SWIM

The Scots went for a swim every day, he said, and often had to dam a stream to make a sizable pool.

The boys said insects were a problem on the hike. "There were a lot of mosquitoes and blackflies," Swainson said. "Sometimes they were really bad."

The only other problems the travellers had were a resident landowner who objected to his land being crossed, and one of the younger Scouts who developed stomach troubles early on. He was taken back to the departure point.

Leader Scrivener said "From the flora and fauna of the dry interior to the coastal flora and fauna there was a decided difference. Once across the Cascade divide, the country really began to change. Then, Boom! you're into coastal territory."

MANY ANIMALS

He was looking for a new route to take furs from the interior to the coast. The new route became necessary after Americans took over the Columbia River area in 1845.

For 12 years, until 1860, Anderson's route was the only means of land travel between the coast and the interior. Part of the original route has been replaced by the Hope-Princeton highway.

Scrivener calls the area a "fantastic country to be in" and the hike a "wonderful wilderness trek for young people."

"It's great for young people who want experience in a complete wilderness situation," he said. "There can be a real feeling of satisfaction in accomplishing something as dificult as the hike was."

TRAFFIC CONGESTION in up-Island ports mounts daily as freighters are diverted from strike-bound American ports on the west coast. Seen from the air, the waters off Ladysmith are the setting for a nine-ship armada, each lost day costing the ships' owners thousands of dollars. Conditions are getting more critical in the port of Vancouver as more and more shipping is diverted there, with 56 ships clogging up the berths and approaches today. No settlement of the longshoremen's strike, which began July 1, is yet in sight. (John Robertson Photo)

Sunro to Start Hiring For Quick Production

Sunro mine near Jordan River will begin hiring about 120 men immediately and will be in production in about three months, one of the developers said today.

Pollution control standards set out in the permit the province has just issued are "rather stringent but no prohibitive," E. C. Dobell, vice-president of Cronex International, said from Vancouver today.

The mine will meet them and work is going ahead immediately, he added. Crownex is one of the firms backing Dison Development Ltd. which is reactivating the old copper mine.

NO PROBLEM

Dobell said there will be no problem rapidly completing the necessary preliminaries the Pollution Control Branch is insisting upon before production starts.

One of these is extending about 1,500 feet into Juan de Fuca Strait the pipe which will discharge up to a million gallons of mine tailings a day. That's the distance the company will have to carry it to meet thepermit's requirement that tailings be discharged at a minimum depth of 40 feet.

Among numerous other controls set by pollution control director William Venables:

● The company must pay for before-and-after studies of sea life in the vicinity of the discharge. (Venables has the power to tighten controls at any time should monitoring show the need).

● Traces of heavy meatls in the tailings must not total more than one part per million. Cyanide is somelion and cyanide traces must not be higher than one part in process.

● Before starting production Dison must build an times used in the extraction emergency spill basin (in case the tailings discharge system breaks down) and it must have an automatic alarm system.

DIFFERENT LOCATION

The tailings pipe is also to be located about 2,000 feet west of where the company intended to have it meet the water. While this means it will beonly 3,000 feet east of the Jordan River Mouth, it also means the pipe will enter the water froma promontory and reach further imo the strait.

BULLETIN

Heat Wave Ending, Weatherman Says

The heat wave that has broken temperature records for several days in British Columbia is expected to subside Thursday in the Victoria area.

Weatherman Allan McQuarrie said today a low pressure area building in the lower B.C. interior because of the extreme heat there will be drawing air in through Juan de Fuca Strait, bringing temperatures in the mid 70s and high 60s Thursday.

This may be the end of what is probably the hottest early August on record, McQuarrie said.

Despite the relatively cooler temperatures, the sky is expected to remain clear and sunny, he said.

Stanbury Takes Over Kierans' Former Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau lightly shuffled his cabinet today, moving Robert Stanbury, now minister without portfolio, into the communications department and replacing him with Martin O'Connell (Toronto Scarborough East).

Also brought into the cabinet was Alastair Gillespie (Toronto Etobicoke), who will be minister of state for science and technology.

Mr. Stanbury, 41, and a minister without portfolio since 1969, will replace Eric Kierans who resigned from the cabinet in April over economic differences with the government. As minister without portfolio, Mr. Stanbury, MP for York-Scarborough, assisted State Secretary Gerard Pelletier and his responsibilities included citizenship and Information Canada.

Mr. Trudeau told a news conference that Mr. O'Connell, 55, will assume Mr. Stanbury's former responsibilities. A Toronto investment dealer and former political science lecturer, Mr. O'Connell has been an MP since 1968.

Mr. O'Connell has been parliamentary secretary to Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand.

Mr. Gillespie, 49, has often been mentioned as a likely cabinet appointment since he was first elected to the Commons in 1968. There had been speculation he would be involved in earlier cabinet changes.

The Toronto business executive and former Rhodes scholar came to Ottawa with a broad background in business and international affairs. He has been an active member of several Commons committees.

Lindsay Joins Democrats ... On Way to President?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor John Lindsay quit the Republican party today and became a Democrat, paving the way for his possible bid for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

Many elements in the Democratic party look to Lindsay as a charismatic personality who would make the strongest challenge to President Nixon in the 1972 elections. Lindsay has become known as the spokesman for the big cities in the U.S. and is familiar with such problems as crime, narcotics addiction and housing in a metropolitan area containing more than eight million people.

Lindsay has been a Republican throughout his political career. But he lost the Republican primary in his bid for a second term in the 1969 mayoral election and has strayed far from the Nixon administration line in GOP politics.

In what was described as a great comeback, Lindsay won re-election in 1969, running as an independent with the endorsement of the Liberal party and strong support from Democratic reform elements in New York.

Belfast Toll Rises to 21

Times News Services

BELFAST — Northern Ireland exploded today in a fourth day of violence that pushed the death toll to at least 21 and threatened this city with economic strangulation.

British troops battled snipers and called in 600 more British marines to try to avert a civil war.

Meanwhile hundreds more refugees fled into the Irish Republic to the south to escape the violence and the Dublin government put its 6,500 police on alert.

Three Civilians Killed

Three civilians, one of them a sniper, were killed today in Belfast where the British troops trying to tear down the street barricades were attacked by roof-top snipers and hostile crowds.

Normal life in the Roman Catholic areas was at a standstill and economic life in the city was slowly grinding to a halt. Delivery trucks could not get through to many areas and food and milk was running short.

Workers were unable to move in the cluttered streets and many stores were closed.

More than 100 persons have been wounded and millions of dollars worth of damage has been done since riots started Monday in a wake of an Ulster government proclamation of a law permitting internment without trial.

Tuesday night mobs of Protestants and Roman Catholics battled each other. Rival factions of the outlawed Irish Republican Army clashed. Troops and police fought all of them in an attempt to restore order.

IRA Rivals Fight Too

Armed IRA men took over a bakery two blocks from Belfast city hall and held it until troops seized it at dawn. Troops said they killed one IRA man, wounded another and captured six.

The rebels appeared to be re-enacting Dublin's 1916 uprising when Eamon de Valera, now president of the Irish Republic, led a rebel detachment in the seizure of Bolands Mills, a flour mill and bakery.

Insurgents fought at least one gun battle among themveives while troops stood by, barred from action by street barriers. Snipers from the two groups, believed to be rivals within the IRA, exchanged more than 100 rounds.

In the midst of the violence, police continued questioning persons arrested in massive raids earlier. An informed source said 230 persons have been detained after questioning and are held in Crumlin Road prison and on a former submarine depot ship, HMS Mainstone, in Belfast harbor.

In Dublin, an army spokesman said more than 2,000 Catholic refugees had fled across the border from the North and were housed in five camps opened by the Republic.

DEMANDS MEETING

Hillery was reported to have put on record his government's opposition to the internment policy. Political sources also speculated that Hillery had demanded a meeting between the leaders of Britain, his country and the Northern Ireland regime.

Prime Minister Edward Heath is leading the British yacht team in the Fastnet Cup Races. Heath was expected to reach shore today and return to London Thursday.

Northern Ireland, predominantly Protestant, is part of the United Kingdom. The IRA wants it joined with the independent Irish Republic to the south which is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic. The Northern Ireland violence arises out of protests by Roman Catholics about alleged discrimination in jobs and housing by the Protest-

CAMPBELL FACING LAWSUIT

VANCOUVER (CP) —Two members of the Gastown Merchants Association announced today plans to launch a lawsuit against Mayor Tom Campbell and the city police "for trying to ruin gastown," a refurbished area of boutiques and restaurants.

Ed Hicks and Barry Mills, co-owners of the Gastown Wax Museum, said they would start the suit and a decision would be made later today on whether other merchants would join in. The suit could be for about $20 million in lost business and damage to reputation if other members of the association joined i.

The merchants said the mayor's statements would keep potential customers away and incite trouble.

Island Fire Unchecked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sizzling dry weather continued to make work difficult for more than 2,500 men battling some 550 forest fires in B.C., many of them burning out of control.

About 20 fires were burning in the Vancouver district, one small one out of control in the Campbell River area. Another blaze was reported over 150 acres near Pemberton and a third fire was held to 100 acres 35 miles east of Hope in Manning Provincial Park.

More than half the fires in the province — 324 — were burning in the Kamloops and Nelson forest districts in southern and southeastern B.C. Dense smoke in some areas kept water bombers and spotting planes grounded.

NEWS BRIEFS

'Save Rahman'

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has appealed to 23 government heads to use their influence to save the life of the East Pakistani leader, Sheik Mujibur Rahman.

Improvement Sought

KAMLOOPS (CP — The director of the provincial pollution control board, W. N. Venables, has ordered Finning Tractor to improve its effluent and discharge facilities to prevent a recurrence of an oil spill into the South Thompson River.

More Talks Urged

NICOSIA (Reuter) — Turkish-Cypriots want intercommunal talks to continue for a settlement of the eight-year-old split between Greeks and Turks on Cyprus, a Turkish-Cypriot spokesman said today.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 11, 1971 —PAGE 13

Save the Trees!

Shelbourne Residents Irate: 'Where Is It Going to Stop?'

A small group of Shelbourne Street area residents nailed their protest sign to a plane tree this morning.

The group is upset at the removal of all the trees on both sides of the street between Cedar Hill Cross Road and Feltham Road. The street is to be widened to four lanes to handle growing traffic.

Randy Patch, who has lived in the area for 10 years and now studies at the University of B.C., said there are alternative methods. He suggested repaving Cedar Hill Road, Shelbourne and Gordon Head Road.

"There is really no alternative to driving cars at the present, but where is it going to stop? It will be a hot, arid, California 'dream' street.

"My concern right now is that we have a council which is following the same pattern that seems not to be the best pattern in other areas."

●

"Saanich should be sued. It is not necessary at all, I am uptight that they did not do real research and we taxpayers were sold down the river," he said.

He suggested Cedar Hill Road could have been made one-way in one direction and Shelbourne one-way in the other, to avoid widening.

Mrs. W. R. Tapp, 1600 Derby, said she knows the protest is too late to be effective "but maybe it will be a lesson for the future."

Asked why she had not protested earlier, she said others did. "I hadn't realized it was going to happen," she said.

"I can see the point in taking down some trees. But does this make sense? It is supposed to be progress, but I just don't see it. Traffic seems to move perfectly smoothly."

The acting Saanich engineer, John Cowlin, said this morning he sympathizes fully with the protesters.

He said the trees were planted too close to the road and are the type which "heave" roads and sidewalks — which will be built with the widening.

Traffic volumes were increasing and "causing some congestion which is going to get much worse." He pointed out that sewerage construction in Gordon Head will lead to more houses — and thus more people and more cars.

Before the road design was approved, he and public works committee chairman Ald. William Campbell went over the plan very carefully to look at the alternative of saving the trees on the west side, he said.

●

This would involve moving the road over, at a higher cost, retain the problem of "heaving" and bring the road close to residential properties. In addition, some land will have to be bought for bus bays.

Cowlin said new trees were planted aout 10 years ago behind the plane trees. Some had to be removed. They are in the municipal nursery, have grown to about 16 feet and will be replanted.

"So, while in the short run we are taking down some trees, in the long run we will have something just as nice," he said.

Saanich, however, has already taken steps to preserve at least one row of plane trees for half a mile between Kenmore and the park. It has been acquiring a strip of land on the west side behind the trees and when, in the future, four lanes are put in, the west-side trees will form a median strip.

DIARY NOTES

Out of the Dark And Into a Dream

Deary Diary: My ninth day without a cigarette and I do believe I may have the habit licked. There are a lot of bad moments — the first coffee in the morning; starting to write a piece for the paper; coming out of the lake from a swim, etc. But if I felt any better, physically, I couldn't stand it.

I owe it all to the paperback, "The Smoke Watchers' How-To-Quit Book." The whole complicated ritualistic rigamarole of the Smoke Watchers' method with its self-analysis, paper-work, and therapy seemd to me so downright silly I felt impelled to demonstrate that the way to quit is to just bloody well quit. What Smoke Watchers' promises in 26 weeks I did in 26 seconds.

And, by coincidence, reading today some lines by the Globe and Mail's Melinda McCracken that amused me:

"You can always stop smoking and tap a magic source of health that will give you extra mileage, like the extra gallon of gas in a Volks when the gauge reads empty. It's not that hard to throw smoking overboard. You just focus the willpower you use for getting things done on your Habit and it will disappear. You think more clearly. Feel freer. Things taste better. You become aware of a lot of little things you missed as a nicotine freak . . . The feeling of freedom is so unfamiliar one hardly knows how to cope with it. It's enough to make you light up immediately."

Dear Diary: A wonderful man at Nancy's party last night, name of Edgar Stone, visiting from Edmonton, the only man I ever met in my life who has made a hobby of dreaming. He's in a class by himself both in the quality of the dreams he enjoys and in his knowledge of the stuff they're made of.

"For as long as I can remember, long before the process was developed in films," Edgar told me, "I have been dreaming in CinemaScope. I have what you might call the wide screen or wall-to-wall dream. They are in full, glorious color. Sometimes they're in the form of serial stories. If I've enjoyed a particular story I can almost count on it to be continued in my next dream. As a matter of fact, I enjoy them all, since I never dream anything except gay, happy dreams."

Everyone expressed envy at this and my wife, a virtuoso dreamer in her own right, mentioned a recent dream in which she saw herself let loose in an exclusive British import shop on Government where she'd spent hours trying on clothes. She could remember vividly, she claimed, every single item of apparel she tried on.

"Not at all unusual," Edgar assured her. "The studies show that women sleep more lightly and dream more intensely and also that nearly twice as many women as men remember their dreams with total recall."

A man at the party who had suffered at one time from insomnia told us his story. Counting sheep hadn't worked, he said, and so, to slow his mind to idling speed, he had taken to playing golf mentally. He would lie in bed imagining himself playing a certain links and this would take his mind off the crowded worries that normally kept him awake. But the remarkable thing, he said, was that when sleep came he would very often continue the game in his dreams, making fantastic holes-in-one, sinking 80-foot putts and so on.

"That would be a form of the controlled dream," Edgar told us. "There are a great many cases in the books of intellectuals who were able to dream in what you might call a premeditated way. One was Robert Louis Stevenson. Very often when he was unable to work out the plot of a novel he would take it to bed with him and dream the solution. I'm fortunate enough to have this ability myself," he added. "Occasionally, when I'm in the mood I may dream a costume piece or a travelogue, though generally I find it more rewarding to be surprised."

Someone asked him how he'd happened to accumulate this sort of off-beat information and Edgar explained that, having discovered his talent for dreaming, he had acquired a number of texts on the subject. Some things most people don't know:

● The strength of the dream image far exceeds that of the imagination while awake which accounts for the fact that a nightmare may be more terrifying than any actual experience.

● Unpleasant dreams are caused entirely by physical discomfort. Researchers were able to cause some subjects to dream of murder simply by holding them in an uncomfortable position. Dreams of crashing in airplanes have been related directly to indigestion.

● Dreams begin as early as the age of four months and continue throughout life except that after the age of 65 they are more infrequent and "weakly-plotted."

● The popular idea that we dream with extreme rapidity isn't true. Some tested dream sequences have been good for an entire night's sleep and it was likely that my wife's dream of trying on clothing may have lasted for upwards of two hours.

Why would a fellow get so interested in dreams, so keen to anticipate them each night in living color? The answer simply is that Edgar Stone, now 53 years of age, has been blind since he was 10.

Island Ferries Going Full Out And Then Some

Island ferries were operating at more than full capacity at the height of the tourist season today, with delays of up to a full day reported by one line.

More people were coming to the island than leaving it on the B.C. Ferries Tsawwassen-Swartz Bay run.

Delays of two to three hours were reported by the terminal agent at Tsawwassen. There were no overloads at Swartz Bay and ships were running either on time or 10 to 15 minutes late.

The Princess Marguerite to Seattle was booked a full day ahead for cars today, with incoming traffic slightly heavier than that leaving the island.

Black Ball Ferries was turning away cars as much as three hours before sailing times for the line's four ferries to Port Angeles. Black Ball operated an extra ferry overnight Monday and Tuesday, but reports last night's ship was less than full.

PLUCKED FOUR FROM SEA

Heroic Rescuer Gets Silver Medal

Percy Brown, the Becher Bay marina operator who risked his life March 13, 1971, to pluck four people from the storm-tossed waters off Becher Head, will receive the Royal Canadian Humane Association's second highest award.

The association announced today that Brown will be awarded a silver medal in recognition of his bravery.

Single-handed, in a 12-foot wooden boat that later piled up on the rocks, Brown rescued Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wick and Mr. and Mrs. John Parris after the 40-foot troller Janola capsized.

Parris and Mrs. Wick died.

Told of the award today, Brown said he was pleased. "But I don't really worry about medals. It's the work we're doing that counts."

A long-time advocate for better marine rescue facilities in his area, Brown led a one-man campaign after the March 13 accident and raised enough money to buy a rescue boat.

The provincial government, recognizing Brown's services and the area's needs, contributed $500.

Brown patrols the waters daily when pleasure boats are out. On Tuesday he towed a boat in trouble to Sooke harbor.

Major Gordon Bissell, the centre's commanding officer, said today the award was "good news."

"We're delighted to hear that the society has seen fit to confer this honor on Mr. Brown in recognition of his heroic action," he said.

A silver medal will be awarded to Jack Joris of Kerford, Ont., who saved two persons from a blazing service station after a truck loaded with barbecue-lighting fluid crashed into it Aug. 27, 1970.

Two Esquimalt youths have also been honored by the association.

Tom Bates, 15, of 466 Sturdee, and Rick Crothers, 19, of 481 Sturdee, will receive bronze medals for rescuing four persons after their boat overturned Feb. 14.

Two North Vancouver men are also among the bronze medal recipients. They are Carl Agin, who rescued a boy from a burning house Sept. 22, 1970, and Richard Dergousoff, who saved a child from a burning house Jan. 15.

The association awarded three more bronze medals, 10 testimonial parchments and 17 certificates of merit.

Letter from Queen 'Presumed Lost'

A letter from Queen Victoria to Charles Ross, Victoria pioneer, must be presumed lost, Tacoma lawyer A'Lan Hutchison said today in a telephone interview.

The letter was willed to the provincial archives by Maud Wren, Ross's great-granddaughter, who died near Tacoma in 1970.

Ross built Fort Victoria for the Hudson's Bay Company. The letter was reputed to have told him to name the place Fort Albert.

Before she died, Miss Wren said she had loaned the letter to a friend, Mrs. Edith Sokolik. Hutchison, who is executor of Miss Wren's estate, visited Mrs. Sokolik Tuesday but did not find the letter.

"Mrs. Sokolik told me she had heard of the letter but never saw it."

Discovery of the letter could have helped historians settle a dispute over the fort's first name.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you tell me the name of the theatre that was situated on Douglas between Fort and View many years ago, when it was opened, and when it was closed?—J.S.

A. It was called the Victoria and the official opening took place Oct. 10, 1885; the cornerstone was laid March 31 of that year by Robert Dunsmuir and Mayor R. P. Rithet. On Oct. 26, 1910, fire swept the adjoining Driard House. The Spencer brothers bought the hotel and the Victoria for a reported $370,000 and changed them into what is now Eaton's department store.

AS AN ANGLER, I DISAPprove in theory of that West Coast phenomenon known as the salmon derby, and could hold forth with a fair degree of heat on the commercialization of what should be pure sport. But as a fisherman who wouldn't in the least mind boating a money-fish, I've never had the slightest difficulty in putting my scruples aside when a derby beckons.

Not that these yieldings to the gambler's urge have paid off. The only fish we ever snared on a derby day was a spawned steelhead that took a languid pass at my wife's cherished lucky plug. It was a melancholy creature, all big head and skinny body, and we freed it in hopes that it would find its way to less dangerous waters.

The salmon derby, an import from the American Northwest, started small. A fish-and-game club would persuade a few merchants into donating prizes. Then the guys would fish for them, assisted by any outsider who cared to buy an entry ticket.

They were innocent affairs, unmarred by larceny or attempts at the same. Those came later, as derbies that had started small developed into hook-and-line brannigans with cars and boats offered as bait.

I went to my first such derby as a non-participant. My job was to observe the proceedings and help out when it came time to announce the prize-winners. It was an amazing experience for me, and a shattering one for the mild-mannered outdoors writer who had been dragooned into the judging.

As more and more salmon were brought in to be weighed, a kind of gold-rush fever settled upon the scene.

On examination, one spring salmon entered was found to weigh more than its length and girth warranted. A post mortem revealed that it had been ballasted with lead sinkers.

Arguments broke out. Some of the heartier contestants, well-ballasted themselves with spirituous liquors, began to cut up rough.

My friend the outdoors writer got pushed from behind, skidded on a stray fish, and toppled off the weigh-in float into the saltchuck.

Plainly, the lure of gold or its equivalent had worked some changes on the contemplative sport.

Today's derbies are much better organized and policed.

The rewards for a winning catch are far greater, and the sharp operator who might be minded to shoot for the loot with a doctored salmon or one not hooked in fair competition is most unlikely to get away with his swindle.

From merely big, the major derbies have swelled to colossal proportions.

The multi-sponsored British Columbia fish-in coming up next weekend is expected to lure at least 12,000 fishermen in 4200 boats ranging from dinghies to cruisers.

The contestant who draws out leviathan with a hook stands to pouch a first prize of $25,000.

Most Canadian provinces and upwards of 20 American states including Hawaii will be represented on 400 square miles of salmon-frequented water north and south of Vancouver. Other hopeful fishermen will be checking in from Japan, Australia, Brazil, Switzerland, Peru, Holland, Mexico and Italy.

The salmon derby has become big business, made so in part by the fact that it remains an event in which skill takes second place to bull luck. But the smaller derby for lesser prizes hasn't vanished from our scene. I like that kind better, and before the season's done, we'll wet our lines in at least one such.

Not in expectation of winning anything. Nothing would surprise us more. Still, there's always that chance — and though angling purists may frown, it does lend an edge to a day on the water.

Big Role for Mothers At Tots' Swim Lessons

Mothers are the most important factor when it comes to teaching young children how to swim.

And if a mother isn't available, an older brother or sister will do almost as well.

These are the thoughts of Mrs. Nancy McLaren, 24, swim instructor for the YM-YWCA's mother and tot summer swim session now under way at 830 Courtney.

Eight classes will be held this month at a cost of $10 for non-members and $5 for members. The "Y" accepts toilet-trained children from 3 to school age.

"The idea of the class is to teach the mothers what they can do with their kids, because they're the ones that work with them in the water — more than the instructor," Mrs. McLaren said.

By playing water games, the mothers and the instructor make the pool a "fun place" for the children.

"Playing games seems to get them going the best," Mrs. McLaren said. "We're also trying to use a lot of equipment, such as floating bar bells,a life ring and plastic balls. By using these, the children know there is something to hold on to in the water and they won't be afraid to leave the edge of the pool.

"It helps a bit when there are a few more children in the classes," Mrs. McLaren said. (There are only two tots and their mothers enrolled in this month's session).

"Most of the children like to copy. When they see other kids doing something, they'll often get up more nerve to try it," Mrs. McLaren said.

Brother and sistern teams work well together too, she said. The younger ones will often feel obligated to copy and follow the older ones.

"But they learn only as fast as they want to," Mrs. McLaren added.

Age 3 is about the right time to start teaching children how to swim: "That's usually when they're ready to try something. Once their faces are in the water, they can start out on their own."

Only one of the tots in this month's classes charges willfully into the pool's depths.

Irene Lawrence, 4, of 209 Raynor, started swimming last March and has no qualms about "diging like a turtle" (the beginning stage of the crawl, in tots' terms), or splashing around on top of or underneath the water.

Her companion, Josa Schneider, 3, of 1476 Gladstone, however, is a little dubious about wetting her golden locks. This is Josa's first encounter with water, besides the bathtub, and she still has a few reservations about the whole thing.

Cyclists' Calves Stay Untasted In Bike Dorado

By JURGEN HESSE

Nicholas Johnson, one of the Federal Communication Commissioners in the United States, rides his bicycle to work every morning. The only weapon he carries is a can of pepper to discourage dogs from sampling a succulent piece of his calf.

We need not go into the reasons why he chooses the second best mode of locomotion — the best being per pedes, or walking. He and untold thousands with him in the U.S. and Canada have rediscovered the joys of cycling.

(Today is Bike-to-Work Day in Victoria and, as with all such days, officials will pay leg service but continue to use their cars.)

I only mentioned the pepper because I cycle to work, too, every morning. My route is a scant 3½ miles, compared to Johnson's gruelling 15, but then he's obviously in better shape.

No, it's the pepper that gets me. Perhaps Johnson has just cause to carry that stinging spice with him, what with him cycling in the U.S., where dogs may be the lesser of two evils, mugging being the other.

Dogs Know Better

In Victoria, of course, no cyclist that I've ever met carries pepper. Victoria dogs know better than to endanger the local cycling or walking population. It would also detract from the precious tourist trade (ahoy there, Jolly Aunt Empress).

My pepper stays in the kitchen and goes on le bifteck au poivre where it belongs. But this story is not about pepper. It has to do with air, leg muscles and morning dew. It has to do with my standard British-made three-speed.

I've heard about cyclists in the U.S. being crowded off the road by brawny motorists. In Victoria, naturally, motorists are averaging 17 miles an hour and will give the right-of-way to an ant. So no danger from that department.

On the contrary, when I hit the streets at around 6:30 a.m. daily, I encounter the bus driver or the bleary-eyed worker (executives get up later), or the occasional Little Old Man walking his dog for a morning defecation (the dog's).

Hark, hark, I say. Never, so far, have I met a bus driver, L.O.M. or worker who has not given me a thoughtful nod, a tender "Good morning, lovely day, isn't it?" or a grumpy acknowledgement at worst. And, what is even better, I feel so gloriously condescending on my bike, experiencing the cool morning breeze ruffling my hair, smelling the as yet under-polluted street air, working up a mild and benevolent perspiration. (Cyclists don't sweat.)

Any cobwebs hanging around my head after an unsuccessful — or more often brutally shortened — sleep get blown away in the most delicate manner. Try ye olde Victoria morning breeze and see if I'm wrong about that.

So then I arrive fresh-lunged at the desk, the gentle purr of the ribbed tires on asphalt still playing a soothing fandango in my ears.

Hazardous in Big Sities

In Canada, cycling in big cities is a hazardous occupation. Not in Victoria, as yet, where most drivers take only a 50-50 chance in crowding you against the curb because they are rush-houring home to their ever-loving wife and the lawn mower.

No, I'm talking about Big Bad Ugly Vancouver, where last year I owned — for shame and $145 — a 10-speed but sold it when several near-misses made me realize that cars are bigger and don't care as much about dents as I do. The Vancouver exhaust fumes are another matter.

Cycling in Europe is less dangerous and better organized. There, in most countries (especially bike-conscious Denmark and Holland), thoughtful city fathers have had bikeways constructed where one may pedal with impunity.

In Vancouver — I haven't tried Beacon Hill Park yet — all parks purport to cater to pedestrians who arrive in cars. In bold letters the park board announces 'No Cycling.'

I've kept my cycle philosophy for the end. Isn't it ironic that when man finally made his first golf swings on that piece of blue (or was it green) cheese up there, that more and more internal-combustion-engine conductors should forswear the four-wheeled, self-propelled behemoth and return to the simple muscle-powered bicicletta, fahrrad, bicyclette, veloziped, bicycle?

Cycling is the most organic method of automotion. Your heart gets a gentle massage, your lungs are being worked (not everybody is keen on the loneliness of the short-distance puffer), you save on gas and repairs and finance company hassles, you stop more roads being built for those of us who think Mr. Gagiardi didn't do us a favor when he paved everything over, you don't pollute the air, you don't create noise that can drive you nuts, you feel younger, you are more in touch with flowers and bees and smells and people. Isn't that worth a trip on the bike shop?

Uganda's Underprivileged Children To Be Helped by Montreal Doctor

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Klaus Minde, known to his patients as the "talking doctor," plans to use experience gained in working with underprivileged children in Montreal when he joins a World Health Organization team in Uganda later this month.

The German-born physician, appointed a WHO consultant, says he sees little relation between problems encountered in Montreal's low-income Little Burgundy area and what he expects to find in Uganda. But he adds:

"There are certain characteristics common to all of those who are underprivileged — problems of malnutrition, the tradition of feeling inferior, lack of perseverence which accompanies this tradition and so on."

Dr. Minde, a pediatrician, psychologist and psychiatrist, says he became involved with underprivileged children because if experiences during his internship in pediatrics at Bellevue Hospital in New York.

"Look, I can't do much about genes, but I can do something about environment. At least, I can try."

On a leave of absence from his posts in Montreal, including one as assistant professor of psychiatry at McGill University, Dr. Minde will be in charge of developing services to aid the psychological and cognitive growth of Uganda children.

His task will be enormous because of Uganda, with an average family income of $150 a year. "only 40 per cent of children go to schools and those who do not attain a 90-per-cent average have to leave."

CENSUS TO DECIDE BILINGUAL AREAS

OTAWA (CP) — The federal government will wait for the results of this year's census before creating most of the 37 bilingual districts proposed in a report by the Bilingual Districts Advisory Board, federal government sources said Tuesday.

However, the sources said the government may be able before then to create several of the districts in areas where the francophone proportion of the population is significantly more than the 10 per cent recommended for the provision of all federal government services in French and English.

State Secretary Gerard Pelletier has said further study is needed on the proposal to make all of Quebec a bilingual district.

The sources said that because the board's plan was based on the 1961 census, Pelletier decided to set up a special committee, which advised the minister to wait for the 1971 census results. They are expected early next year.

Nothing prevents the federal government from creating certain bilingual districts in areas where the concentration of French-speaking people is obviously more than 10 per cent, the source said.

St. Boniface, Man., was an example of such an area.

The proposed bilingual regions, based on the provisions of the Official Languages Act passed by Parliament in 1969, include all of Quebec and New Brunswick.

The number of bilingual districts in the other provinces are: Newfoundland, one; Prince Edward Island, one; Nova Scotia, two; Ontario, 12; Manitoba, eight; Saskatchewan, seven; Alberta, three; and British Columbia, one.

Tax Legislation Top Priority

OTTAWA (CP) — When Parliament resumes its session Tuesday, Sept. 7, the Commons will be set to work on Finance Minister Edgar Benson's new tax legislation without interruption until the controversial bill is passed, he said in an interview Tuesday.

"We're going to start on it as the first item of business, and go right through with it," he said. "We've got to get it passed in order to have regulations drawn up and new tax forms ready if it is to go into effect Jan. 1, 1972."

The minister, who leaves Friday on a 10-day vacation abroad, said he has received about 600 letters concerning the new tax plan he proposed in his June 18 budget.

"Most of them are in general terms, and most of them favorable." He has received representations for some changes in the plan from some special interest groups, but not as many as he anticipated.

Benson said industrial groups and similar organizations should make whatever pleas they wish for last-minute changes in the proposed law as soon as possible. They will be studied by officials while he is away. Any changes would need to be incorporated in the bill as it goes through the Commons.

The finance minister said he isn't sure how long the Commons debate might last. At first, he thought the tax change proposals might take two months. But opposition parties have been quiet about their intentions and debate may be mild.

Benson assessed the current economic situation as coming along favorably, but expressed concern about the U.S. economy.

There are fears around Washington that inflation is being rekindled, and that drastic action might be needed to stop and reverse the drain on the U.S. balance of payments. Both could have serious repercussions on the Canadian economy.

"Canada can cushion itself against these things to a certain degree, but it can't isolate itself from them," he said.

Next to piloting the new tax law through Parliament in the fall, the minister said his big task is to settle fiscal relations with the provinces before current arrangements expire March 31. Still to be negotiated are agreements by which Ottawa collects the provincial share of personal income taxes for them and pays subsidies to the weaker provinces to bring their government revenues up to a national standard.

Benson said he is willing to go at least part way to meet the provinces' complaints about Ottawa's plan to drop estate taxes Jan. 1.

Negotiations with the provinces may be complicated by Alberta's current provincial election campaign and elections that are probably to be held this fall in Ontario and Newfoundland, he said.

As to federal politics, the minister said:

"We'll be in good shape for a general election in 1972. Unemployment is still too high and troubles me, but you never can get a fast reduction in that figure.

"Other signs look pretty good. Housing was up in July, running at 232,000 starts a year. Real domestic product was up five-tenths of one per cent in May, and industrial production was up six-tenths.

Ban Sought On Hoax Film

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration has asked television stations in 150 cities to refrain from showing The Doomsday Flight, a film it believes has prompted a surge in telephoned bomb threats to airlines.

"Our great concern is that the film may have a highly emotional impact on some unstable individual and stimulate him to imitate the fictional situation in the movie," FAA administrator John H. Shaffer said in a letter to 500 TV stations which have been offered the film by distributors.

Doomsday Flight, written by playwright Rod Serling and originally broadcast on network television in 1967, depicts a bomb hoax to extort money from an airline.

CARRYING BOMB

A telephone caller says a plane is carrying a bomb set to detonate when the airliner drops below a certain altitude, and demands a ransom in return for information where the bomb is planted.

The film was shown in Montreal July 26. On Aug. 3, in an incident that followed the Doomsday Flight script, BOAC Boeing 747 flight carrying 379 persons from Montreal to London was diverted to Denver, Colo., when the airline received telephone threats that it believed were similar to those in the movie.

AEC Plant Clarification Wanted

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said today he expects the federal government will clarify its intentions with respect to the Glace Bay, N.S., heavy water plant.

Mr. Regan was scheduled to meet Energy Minister J. J. Greene following a federal cabinet meeting today. They were expected to discuss rehabilitation of the heavy water plant.

"I think there will probably be a clarification with respect to the recent report made to determine the cost of rehabilitation," Mr. Regan told a reporter before the meeting with Mr. Greene.

The federal government had a study made under supervision of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. to determine how much it will take to put the plant into operation.

The multi-million-dollar installation, started in 1963, has never produced any heavy water. It was taken over by the province in 1966.

Unofficial reports have said that the latest estimate of getting the plant into production involves substantially more than $50 million.

Prehistoric Bones Discovered

WARSAW, Mo. (UPI) — Prehistoric bones of giant extinct elephant-like animals have been dug up near Avery, Mo., according to Dr. Everett Lindsay, a professor who helped lead a digging expedition.

Lindsay, of the University of Arizona, said his team of graduate paleontology students also recovered bones of a huge beaver, a giant frog, a tapir and a dog. He said the bones were found around what might have been an ancient water hole.

TRAFFIC CONGESTION in up-Island ports mounts daily as freighters are diverted from strike-bound American ports on the west coast. Seen from the air, the waters off Ladysmith are the setting for a nine-ship armada, each lost day costing the ships' owners thousands of dollars. Conditions are getting more critical in the port of Vancouver as more and more shipping is diverted there, with 56 ships clogging up the berths and approaches today. No settlement of the longshoremen's strike, which began July 1, is yet in sight. (John Robertson Photo)

Sunro to Start Hiring For Quick Production

Sunro mine near Jordan River will begin hiring about 120 men immediately and will be in production in about three months, one of the developers said today.

Pollution control standards set out in the permit the province has just issued are "rather stringent but not prohibitive," E. C. Dobell, vice-president of Crowpex International, said from Vancouver today.

The mine will meet them and work is going ahead immediately, he added. Crowpex is one of the firms backing Dison Development Ltd. which is reactivating the old copper mine.

NO PROBLEM

Dobell said there will be no problem rapidly completing the necessary preliminaries the Pollution Control Branch is insisting upon before production starts.

One of these is extending about 1,500 feet into Juan de Fuca Strait the pipe which will discharge up to a million gallons of mine tailings a day. That's the distance the company will have to carry it to meet the permit's requirement that tailings be discharged at a minimum depth of 40 feet.

Among numerous other controls set by pollution control director William Venables:

● The company must pay for before-and-after studies of sea life in the vicinity of the discharge. (Venables has the power to tighten controls at any time should monitoring show the need).

● Traces of heavy metals in the tailings must not total more than one part per million and cyanide traces must not be higher than one part in 10 million. Cyanide is sometimes used in the extraction process.

● Before starting production Dison must build an emergency spill basin (in case the tailings discharge system breaks down) and it must have an automatic alarm system.

DIFFERENT LOCATION

The tailings pipe is also to be located about 2,000 feet west of where the company intended to have it meet the water. While this means it will be only 3,000 feet east of the Jordan River Mouth, it also means the pipe will enter the water from a promontory and reach further into the strait.

Jordan River residents, commercial fishermen, conservationists and two government departments had earlier opposed granting the permit, arguing mine tailings in years past have fouled beaches and could adversely affect salmon migration and recreation quality.

Venables initially rejected Dison's application but the company appealed to the Pollution Control Board.

Dollar Recovers

Violence Crippling Belfast

Times News Services

BELFAST — Northern Ireland exploded today in a fourth day of violence that pushed the death toll to at least 21 and threatened this city with economic strangulation.

British troops battled snipers and called in 600 more British marines to try to avert a civil war.

Meanwhile, hundreds more refugees fled into the Irish Republic to the south to escape the violence and the Dublin government put its 6,500 police on alert.

Three Civilians Killed

Three civilians, one of them a sniper, were killed today in Belfast where the British troops trying to tear down the street barricades were attacked by roof-top snipers and hostile crowds.

Normal life in the Roman Catholic areas was at a standstill and economic life in the city was slowly grinding to a halt. Delivery trucks could not get through to many areas and food and milk was running short.

Workers were unable to move in the cluttered streets and many stores were closed.

More than 100 persons have been wounded and millions of dollars worth of damage has been done since riots started Monday in a wake of an Ulster government proclamation of a law permitting internment without trial.

Tuesday night mobs of Protestants and Roman Catholics battled each other. Rival factions of the outlawed Irish Republican Army clashed. Troops and police fought all of them in an attempt to restore order.

IRA Rivals Fight Too

Armed IRA men took over a bakery two blocks from Belfast city hall and held it until troops seized it at dawn. Troops said they killed one IRA man, wounded another and captured six.

The rebels appeared to be re-enacting Dublin's 1916 uprising when Eamon de Valera, now president of the Irish Republic, led a rebel detachment in the seizure of Boland's Mills, a flour mill and bakery.

Insurgents fought at least one gun battle among themselves while troops stood by, barred from action by street barriers. Snipers from the two groups, believed to be rivals within the IRA, exchanged more than 100 rounds.

In the midst of the violence, police continued questioning persons arrested in massive raids earlier. An informed source said 230 persons have been detained after questioning and are held in Crumlin Road prison and on a former submarine depot ship, HMS Maintone, in Belfast harbor.

This source said Prime Minister Brian Faulkner would sign internment orders against the majority of the detainees.

In Dublin, an army spokesman said more than 2,000 Catholic refugees had fled across the border from the North and were housed in five camps opened by the Republic.

Protestant refugees from the fighting flew to England or took shelter with friends or in empty houses in quieter parts of Belfast.

Hillery was reported to have put on record his government's opposition to the internment policy. Political

CAMPBELL FACING LAWSUIT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two members of the Gastown Merchants Association announced today plans to launch a lawsuit against Mayor Tom Campbell and the city police "for trying to ruin Gastown," a refurbished area of boutiques and restaurants.

Ed Hicks and Barry Mills, co-owners of the Gastown Wax Museum, said they would start the suit and a decision would be made later today on whether other merchants would join in. The suit could be for about $20 million in lost business and damage to reputation if other members of the association joined in.

The merchants said the mayor's statements would keep potential customers away and incite trouble.

Island Fire Unchecked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sizzling dry weather continued to make work difficult for more than 2,500 men battling some 350 forest fires in B.C., many of them burning out of control.

—About 20 fires were burning in the Vancouver district and one small one was out of control in Campbell River area. Another blaze was reported over 150 acres near Pemberton and a third fire was held to 100 acres 35 miles east of Hope in Manning Provincial Park.

—More than half the fires in the province — 324 — were burning in the Kamloops and Nelson forest districts in southern and southeastern B.C. Dense smoke in some areas kept water bombers and spotting planes grounded.

CAMPFIRE PERMITS NOW SUSPENDED

Suspension of campfire permits imposed today throughout the Vancouver forest district does not include the use of approved fireplaces in developed provincial park campgrounds, a B.C. Forest Service official said.

Provincial picnic grounds are also excluded unless regulations to the contrary are posted.

But open fires of any kind are illegal although portable camp stoves are acceptable, he said.

Restricted industrial closure has also been ordered by the forest service as the fire hazard remains extremely high.

The restrictions are designed to have workmen out of the woods before the hottest part of the day. All industrial operations in the forests must stop by 1 p.m.

Meanwhile a strong ridge of high pressure remains over the south coastal region and no precipitation is forecast for at least the next five days.

Japan Will Back U.S. on Peking

Japan will strongly support the U.S. position on Communist China's admission to the United Nations, the speaker of the Japanese house of representatives said today.

Naka Funada, here for an 11-day visit as guest of the B.C. and federal governments, said his country is negotiating with Washington on terms for seating China at the UN.

Funada said the talks were concerned primarily with ensuring that the interests of the Nationalist Chinese on Taiwan were protected.

He discounted Red China's concern, expressed frequently by Mao and Premier Chou En-Lai, over what they call the rise of Japanese militarism and ambitious in Taiwan and Korea.

"Absolutely not," Funada said. "We are a nation of peaceful constitution. We want to co-exist with friendly relations."

NO DECISION

He said his government had come to no offical decision on the China question, but would continue negotiations with the U.S. with the aim of establishing relations if this can be done without damage to Taiwan's position.

One of Japan's most distinguished parliamentarians, Funada is a member of the ruling Liberal Democratic party, which holds a strong 62 per cent of the lower house seats.

"They make a great deal of noise, but the noise is not in proportion to the support which they have among the people," he said.

On Tuesday night Funada met William Murray, speaker of the B.C. legislature, in what Murray called a friendly workshop on mutual parliamentary interests.

The Japanese party of 12 planned a tour of the Grefton kraft mill today before heading for Vancouver, Kelowna, Vernon and the Okanagan. They arrive in Ottawa Aug. 18 for talks with House of Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Agriculture Stays

CALGARY (CP) — The agricultural section of the Calgary Stampede won't be dropped from the mid-summer show, Ed O'Connor, president of the Exhibition and Stampede Board, said Tuesday.

The idea of segregating agriculture never reached the executive board for discussion, he said, but future plans have called for an expansion of agricultural facilities.

When the 10-day Stampede ended in July, Agriculture Manager John Dean said agriculture exhibits — the basis for the stampede when it originated in 1908 — soon may be dropped.

Wallace Asks Bennett To Discuss Future

Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace has written to Premier W. A. C. Bennett requesting a meeting to discuss the MLA's political future.

Wallace, elected as a Social Credit candidate in the August, 1969, provincial election, said Monday he hasn't yet had a reply from Bennett's office.

The MLA said 10 days ago he is seriously considering leaving the party — and possibly politics entirely — following recent government moves to increase its control of medical practice.

Wallace wrote the letter to Bennett before returning to Victoria after a week's vacation in the Kelowna area.

Heat Wave Ending, Weatherman Says

The heat wave that has broken temperature records for several days in British Columbia is expected to subside Thursday in the Victoria area.

Weatherman Allan McQuarrie said today a low pressure area building in the lower B.C. Interior because of the extreme heat there will be drawing air in through Juan de Fuca Strait, bringing temperatures in the mid 70s and high 60s Thursday.

This may be the end of what is probably the hottest early August on record, McQuarrie said.

Despite the relatively cooler temperatures, the sky is expected to remain clear and sunny, he said.

The change in weather may also bring some fog patches into the Victoria area.

Ex-Victorian Named To Cabinet Post

Alastair Gillespie, a Victoria-born Member of Parliament, has been named Canada's first minister of science and technology.

The appointment was announced today as part of a slight cabinet shuffle by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Robert Stanbury, a minister without portfolio, has become the new communications minister and a Toronto MP, Martin O'Connell will replace Stanbury.

His parents are the E. P. Gillespies of 1326 Manor Road, and his brothers and sisters also live in Victoria.

Gillespie attended Brentwood College and was a Rhodes Scholar in 1946. He came to the Commons with a wide background in business and international affairs. He has been an active member of several Commons committees.

Stanbury, 41, and a minister without portfolio since 1969, will replace Eric Kierans who resigned from the cabinet in April over the government's economic policies.

Doctors, Minister Talking

The meetings began Tuesday morning at the medical services commission office on Government Street. Black is chairman of a government committee which is dealing with a committee representing B.C. doctors.

Lindsay Paves Way To Presidency

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor John Lindsay quit the Republican party today and became a Democrat, paving the way for his possible bid for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

Many elements in the Democratic party look to Lindsay as a charismatic personality who would make the strongest challenge to President Nixon in the 1972 elections. Lindsay has become known as the spokesman for the big cities in the U.S. and is familiar with such problems as crime, narcotics addiction and housing in a metropolitan area containing more than eight million people.

Lindsay has been a Republican throughout his political career. But he lost the Republican primary in his bid for a second term in the 1969 mayoral election and has strayed far from the Nixon administration line in GOP politics.

In what was described as a great comeback, Lindsay won re-election in 1969, running as an independent with the endorsement of the Liberal party and strong support from Democratic reform elements in New York.

sources also speculated that Hillery had demanded a meeting between the leaders of Britain, his country and the Northern Ireland regime.

Prime Minister Edward Heath is leading the British yacht team in the Fastnet Cup Races. Heath was expected to reach shore today and return to London Thursday.

Northern Ireland, predominantly Protestant, is part of the United Kingdom. The IRA wants it joined with the independent Irish Republic to the south which is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic. The Northern Ireland violence arises out of protests by Roman Catholics about alleged discrimination in jobs and housing by the Protestant-dominated Ulster government.

During Tuesday night's fighting, British soldiers sealed off the Falls Road, Ballymurphy, Ardoyne and Old Park Road areas of Belfast as those Catholic districts crackled to the sound of gunfire under the flickering light of burning buildings.

Mobs of Protestants and Catholics tried to get at each other across Crumlin Road Tuesday night, but troops drove a wedge between them. As the mobs retreated, the soldiers came under sustained sniper fire. The troops flattened themselves on the sidewalk and poured bullets into the surrounding rooftops, which were lit by flares.

Police reported a civilian died in a truck overturned during another clash between Protestants and Catholics hurling rocks and bottles. A youth lost a leg.

FIRE 'VICIOUS'

As Belfast's night fell streets deserted except for combatants. Troops came under "really vicious, highly controlled" fire, the army said.

Explosions damaged a movie theatre and a garage. A bank blazed, and several homes were in flames, stripped of valuables as their occupants fled.

More violence hit Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city, and Newry, its third. A sniper killed a soldier in Derry, and two other soldiers were wounded there.

A boy of 11 and another of 14 were seen placing a package outside an army recruiting office in Londonderry. Seconds later a powerful explosion wrecked the building and hurled a car 30 yards across the street.

Four other explosions shattered the night air in less than seven minutes. One hundred rioters assaulted troops with rocks, flaming gasoline bombs and gelignite nail bombs.

School Construction Projects Held Up

The provincial education department is holding up about $3 or $4 million in school construction projects to avoid overloading the construction industry, deputy minister Joe Phillipson said today.

"There is no 'freeze'. . . no over-all order that nothing should go forward," Phillipson said in denying radio reports of a freeze on all contracts.

He said the construction industry is "plugged" with work in most parts of the province and suggestions have been made to the department both from people in the industry and from school boards to try to level off the workload.

Phillipson said he is "most hopeful" that the construction peak will ease in the next month or two.

One of the effects of building at the peak is higher costs, he said. The delay in putting out the tenders is simply "common sense," he said.

About $8 million in work is currently out to tender and isn't affected by the new policy, he said. None of the delayed work was expected to be ready for the current school term, he said.

Phillipson said that most of the shift classes in the province in September will be the result of burn-outs. The school construction program this year was "extra large," Phillipson said, adding that the delayed projects account for only a small proportion of the total.

In the Greater Victoria school district a spokesman said today that it's not known for certain if any projects will be affected.
